CABARET MEN OFFER EVIDENCE OF GRAFT

Ready to Tell Whitman About Paying Tribute for Their All-Night Licenses.

NOT SEEKING TESTIMONY

His Hands Full of Other Matters Just Now—Mayor Praises Early Closing and the Lid Stays On.

Although District Attorney Whitman and his assistant, James Smith, who is handling the excise license graft investigation, would not go into details of specific cases yesterday, it was learned that several restaurant and café proprietors who were forced to close their places at 1 o'clock in the morning had offered to give to the District Attorney evidence to prove that they had been obliged to pay tribute to obtain all-night licenses when these were granted originally.

District Attorney Whitman's attention was called last night to some of the evening newspapers, which attributed to him an allegation that he had obtained an affidavit from Andre Bustanoby, in which the latter said he had paid $2,500 to get an all-night license. According to the published stories the money was "paid through an attorney who is an intimate friend of Mayor Gaynor."

"I did not take the affidavit in question, and know nothing about it," said Mr. Whitman. Then he called Mr. Smith, who had drawn the affidavit in question, and asked him about the contents of the document. Mr. Smith said that Bustanoby had sworn that he had tried for five months to obtain an all-night license, and that his applications had been rejected until his brother suggested that he retain Leo Bamburger. Smith added that Bustanoby had sworn that he paid Mr. Bamburger $500. This fee, however, was in payment of other legal services than those rendered in the matter of the liquor license.

"I do not see that this affidavit reflects on any one," said Mr. Whitman. "Mr. Bamburger acted as Bustanoby's legal adviser and charged him a fee for his services. That is all there is to the matter."

Has No Army of Investigators.

The District Attorney denounced as a falsehood the report that twenty-five trained investigators, both men and women, were busy under the direction of Assistant District Attorney Smith in an effort to obtain information about graft in the issuance of all night licenses. He would not comment upon the possible significance of the fact that it was a few days after Bustanoby had made his affidavit that Mayor Gaynor issued his order that all restaurants with cabaret performance must be closed at one o'clock beginning April 1.

It was learned last night that information regarding a former city official had reached the District Attorney's office. The ex-official in question is alleged to have interested himself in obtaining an all-night license for a café and restaurant in West Fiftieth Street. The place figured in the Rosenthal investigation. The rumor which the District Attorney is trying to confirm is that the former official got $5,000 about two years ago for getting the license.

District Attorney Whitman also denied the story that he had obtained evidence against a police Captain who for four months held a Harlem command and who, according to the report, had been called in conference with two officials from Police Headquarters and ordered to get affidavits charging members of the District Attorney's staff with graft. The Captain alluded to was alleged to have secured eight affidavits from disorderly house proprietors and fallen women that they had paid graft to certain members of Mr. Whitman's staff through Jack Sullivan as collector. According to the published reports, the police secured these affidavits on the promise not to interfere with the places of the persons signing them.

"I have no knowledge of any such plot against this office," said Mr. Whitman, "nor do I know of the existence anywhere of any affidavits accusing any members of my staff with corruption."

Mr. Smith corroborated his chief's statement.

Police Commissioner Waldo was enthusiastic yesterday over the effective manner in which his men had carried out Mayor Gaynor's closing edict. The Commissioner made an early morning tour yesterday from Harlem to Chinatown to observe the way in which his orders were being enforced.

According to Thomas F. McAvoy, Deputy State Excise Commissioner, the commission is not going to interfere one way or the other in the clash between the police and the restaurant men.

"The only concern of our department," said Mr. McAvoy, "is to attend to the liquor tax. We have nothing to do with the closing hour nor are we anxious to meddle with it."

Restaurant Managers Protest.

The proprietors of the real restaurants complain that Mayor Gaynor's order is unjust. They assert that the respectable restaurants are being made to suffer for the transgressions of the few, who have rightly brought upon themselves the censure and condemnation of the Mayor.

"I know of no law," said William Murray, of Murray's in West Forty-second Street, "which would sanction the action of the police in shutting up places where food only is served after one o'clock. If we stop selling liquor at that hour I cannot see what authority the police have to interfere with us."

Mr. Murray said that concerted action would be taken by the restaurant men to forestall a condition which would not only menace their business, but would also seriously inconvenience New York's great transient public, which centres about Forty-second Street by reason of the location of the Grand Central and Pennsylvania stations.

Mayor Gaynor himself was about the only person yesterday who had no complaint to utter. He praised the work of Commissioner Waldo in putting the lid on so effectively, and defied the threats of graft revelations to District Attorney Whitman. The Mayor said:

"I see that some men say they are going to the District Attorney to make graft disclosures. Good! Let them go and tell everything. That is what we all want. If any of them paid graft it has not saved them. They threw their money into the waste basket.

"The orders of the Commissioner pub-

YOUNG EDISON LEARNING.

Premature Explosion of a "Bomb" Injures His Hand Slightly.

Theodore Edison, the fourteen-year-old son of Thomas A. Edison, had an experience yesterday in his father's laboratory in West Orange, N. J., that reminded his amused father of something that happened to him when he was about the same age. Theodore was experimenting with explosives, in an effort to invent a floating bomb. The contrivance exploded when Theodore did not expect it. A doctor picked pieces of glass out of one of Theodore's hands, but the lad will get over it, just as his father got over all his mishaps.

The incident in the life of the inventor which Theodore's mishap recalled was the explosion of his chemical laboratory which Thomas A. maintained while he was a newsboy on a train, utilizing the baggage car for the purpose. Thomas had to remove the outfit to the cellar of his father's house after that experience, for the railroad could not view with complacency the burning of a baggage car every time the boy hit upon some new idea.

Theodore lately got the idea into his head that he could manufacture a bomb that would float on the water and explode with tremendous power whenever it happened to be touched by a hostile vessel. Friendly vessels, would, of course, be wise and avoid touching the bomb. To Theodore's mind the best way to shape up the device would be to inclose it in an air-tight bottle and put the bottle in a casing of cork, so that it would be sure not to sink.

He had proceeded as far as mixing the explosive and depositing it in the glass bottle, when the explosive went off. Theodore had the bottle in his hand.

Mrs. Edison has decreed that Theodore's future experiments with explosives shall be under the supervision of his father.

$60,000 IN STOLEN JEWELS.

Traced from Pawntickets Held by Former Store Employe.

Sheriff Julius Harburger in his official capacity took into possession yesterday $60,000 of jewelry supposed to have been stolen from the offices of William Sheer, a jeweler of 1,219 Madison Avenue, last Autumn. It was recovered by tracing pawntickets found in the possession of Henry J. Schultz, employed in the jewelry firm for five years. Pending a determination of the ownership of the articles they are deposited in a safe deposit vault.

On attachments issued by the Sheriff a diamond lavalliere, a diamond ring, and a pearl necklace was recovered at McAleenan's, Thirty-fifth Street and Broadway; a diamond ring and diamond pendant from the branch of the Provident Loan Society at 346 Fourth Avenue; six diamond pins, four diamond bracelets, a diamond ring, and a diamond lavalliere from the branch at 736 Seventh Avenue, and seven rings, two pins, and two brooches set with diamonds from John F. Simpson's of 168 West Forty-sixth Street.

ANNOYED MRS. BELMONT.

Collectors Who Invaded Her Home Are Arrested.

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont caused the arrest yesterday of two brothers, Joseph and Stephen Lyon of 114 East 121st Street, who called at Mrs. Belmont's residence, 15 East Forty-first Street, to collect a bill for some dressmaking, and refused to leave before they received their money. Both were discharged later in the Jefferson Market Court by Magistrate Appleton, when Mrs. Belmont's attorney said the case would be settled.

Mrs. Belmont's secretary, Miss Elizabeth Mabel said the two men entered Mrs. Belmont's house and delivered some dresses, which had been made up, and refused to go without getting their money. They made a disturbance, the secretary said, and she had to call a policeman and have them arrested. Mrs. Belmont did not appear in court, Miss Mabel appearing as complainant.

According to the story, the goods were sent by Mrs. Belmont to a dressmaker to be made up, and were in turn, sent by the dressmaker to Mrs. Joseph Lyon to be finished.

Mrs. Lyon was unable to get her money from the dressmaker, and she sent her husband and his brother direct to Mrs. Belmont. Mrs. Belmont, the lawyer said, did not know anything about the transaction.

TAKES MAYOR TO TASK.

East Side Asks Him to Observe Titanic Day in Seemly Manner.

Members of the East Side Protective Association, which is arranging a memorial service for Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus, to be held on April 15, the first anniversary of the sinking of the Titanic, learned yesterday that Mayor Gaynor had accepted an invitation to a dinner to be given in his honor at the Café Boulevard on that date.

After some discussion Harry H. Schlacht, Superintendent of the association, was instructed to take the matter up at City Hall. Mr. Schlacht addressed this letter to the Mayor:

1 Avenue B, New York, April 2, 1913.
Hon. William J. Gaynor, City Hall, New York.

Dear Sir: I have read with sincere regret in the morning papers that your Honor has accepted an invitation to be the guest of honor at a dinner to be tendered to you by a committee of citizens at the Café Boulevard on April 15.

I hasten to remind you that the greatest disaster in the history of modern times occurred on April 15, 1912, when the "unsinkable" Titanic went down. No pen, however gifted, can describe the awful scenes of that heart-rending tragedy. It is inconsistent with the common dictates of man to hold on the anniversary of that disaster a public dinner such as that advertised. Tears will be shed on that day in the homes of millions in the east side. Memorial services will be held at night in honor of those brightest jewels of America, the friends of the friendless, the champions of human sorrow, Mr. and Mrs. Isidor Straus, at Public School 62.

It is inconceivable that this terrible catastrophe, which sent a thrill of horror through the civilized world, should fade in twelve months from the hearts and minds of men. I appeal to your Honor with all the power at my command not to violate the sanctity and holiness of that evening. Very respectfully,
HARRY H. SCHLACHT.

Mr. Schlacht said that in addition to the Titanic memorial services in Public School 62 other services were being arranged for east side halls.

TOMKINS PUT OUT; SMITH IN HIS PLACE

Mayor Makes a Quick Shift of Dock Commissioner to Get "Full Co-operation."

MOVE HAD BEEN EXPECTED

Opposition to Shore Front Plan the Reason—"I'm Out, but I Didn't Resign," Says Tomkins.

Calvin Tomkins ceased to be Dock Commissioner yesterday and Mayor Gaynor appointed Robert A. C. Smith in his place. It was given out at the Mayor's office that Mr. Tomkins had resigned, but Mr. Tomkins denied this. Apparently the first news the Commissioner had of the change in his department was when he was informed of the appointment of Mr. Smith.

"I have not resigned," said Mr. Tomkins. "I am out of office, but I did not resign."

"Were you removed?" he was asked.

"Well, you can say that," he replied.

"The Mayor and I agreed to differ," he went on. "There will be no pyrotechnics. There was a difference of policy regarding the port conditions of the city, a radical difference, between the members of the Board of Estimate, the Mayor and myself. The Mayor and I had some correspondence on the subject and I will give out copies of these letters to-morrow as well as a statement regarding what has happened."

At the Mayor's office it was said that a letter had been received from Mr. Tomkins, but it was not given out. All the Mayor gave out was a copy of the letter to Mr. Smith. This is the letter:

City of New York, Office of the Mayor,
April 2, 1913.

Dear Mr. Smith: The time has arrived when I find it necessary for the full co-operation and help of the Dock Commissioner in the work we are doing in the relocation of the New York Central Railroad tracks as they come down through the city, and in the location and construction of the new long docks. The period for talk and discussion in these matters has been prolonged and has certainly passed.

I am appointing you Dock Commissioner because you are in full accord in the doing of these things and have helped me all along in arriving at their accomplishment. I esteem it fortunate for the city that I have overcome your refusal to accept the office and that you are now ready to enter upon the duties thereof. I am certain that you will proceed to carry out the things which have been determined on.
Sincerely yours, W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.
Robert A. C. Smith, Esq., 100 Broadway,
New York City.

There has been considerable friction between Mr. Tomkins and the members of the Board of Estimate, including the Mayor, over the matter of the west shore front improvements, which have been before the board in one shape or another for more than a year.

The final break between the Mayor and his Dock Commissioner came on Monday, when the latter published an open letter to the Mayor protesting against the Walker bill, now before the Legislature, on the ground that it deprived the city of control over waterfront terminal facilities and made the Dock Commissioner a mere employe of the Board of Estimate. Mr. Tomkins already had put himself on record as strongly opposing the plan of the Board of Estimate's Terminal Committee for the New York Central's west side improvements, although the Mayor and the other members of the board apparently favored it.

Rumors that the Mayor intended to remove Mr. Tomkins were current a week ago. They followed the proceedings before the Board of Estimate when the question of building long piers north of Forty-fourth Street was under discussion. It was agreed by all the members of the board that the piers should be constructed in that neighborhood, but Commissioner Tomkins insisted that it would be much better to build them further downtown. The Commissioner became so insistent on this point that the Mayor spoke to him with considerable asperity. Following this came the Commissioner's open letter to the Mayor.

Mr. Tomkins had been with the Gaynor administration since the beginning, and at various times the Mayor had spoken highly of him. He was known as a prolific writer on all subjects relating to his department.

Mr. Smith is an authority on dock matters. He was Chairman of the committee appointed by Gov. Dix to study port conditions in the city, and last year he submitted a long report on the subject, suggesting changes in the bulkhead line between Thirtieth Street and the Battery for the accomodation of bigger liners. When Henry L. Stimson, as Secretary of War, refused to extend the permit for temporary pier extension of certain steamship lines, and it looked as if New York might lose the big passenger steamships now being built because of lack of dock facilities, Mr. Smith took an active part in the controversy and accompanied the Mayor to Washington to speak in favor of having the West Street bulkhead line extended.

Mr. Smith is described as a capitalist. He is President and Director of the American Mail Steamship Company; President, Manager and Director of the North American Mail Steamship Company; President and Director of the Oakland Bayside Realty Company, and a Director in many other concerns, including the Pelham Electric Light and Power Company, the Chicago Union Traction Company, the Albany & Hudson Railway Company, the American Tobacco Company, the Holmes Electric Protective Company, and the International Banking Corporation. He is a member of the Manhattan, Union League, Lotos, Turf and Field, New York Yacht, Larchmont Yacht and other clubs. He is known as an enthusiastic yachtsman, and in politics he is a Republican. He lives at 12 West Seventy-second Street, and has offices at 100 Broadway.

NEW ART SHOCKS CHICAGO.

Vice Commission Will Investigate Cubists and Post-Impressionists.

CHICAGO, April 2.—Charges that the International Exhibition, of which Cubist, Futurist and Post-Impression pictures are the sensational feature, now at the Art Institute, contains many indecent canvases and sculptures will be investigated at once by the Illinois Legislative "White Slave" Commission. A visit of an investigator to the show and his report on the pictures caused Lieut. Gov. O'Hara to order an immediate examination of the entire exhibition.

Mr. O'Hara sent the investigator to look over the pictures after he had received many complaints of the character of the show. "We are not condemning the International Exhibition without an impartial investigation," said the Lieutenant Governor to-day. "I have received many complaints, however, and we owe it to the public that the subject be looked into thoroughly."

The investigator reported that a number of the pictures were "immoral and suggestive." Senators Woodward and Beall, of the commission, will visit the exhibition to-day.

LIGHT DAY FOR PROF. TAFT.

Begins His Yale Work by Attending Chapel and Later a Faculty Meeting.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 2.—Prof. William Howard Taft started his first day as a member of the Yale Faculty right by attending college chapel. He arose early and was seated in the body of Old Battell at 8:10 o'clock when the exercises began. He was warmly greeted as he walked back to the Hotel Taft from chapel.

Later Prof. Taft met the Faculty body and discussed the lectures which he will begin in about two weeks. The date has not been exactly set. Lampson Hall has been assigned for the address to the undergraduates.

The lectures will be largely informal this Spring, and the regular series which he will give as Kent Professor of Law will not be begun till next Fall. Ex-President and Mrs. Taft spent most of the day in their suite at the Hotel Taft. They will go house hunting again soon, as they have yet to select their permanent New Haven home. Prof. Taft has said that he would probably take a house in the Prospect Hill district.

TO RECOGNIZE CHINA.

Bryan Notifies Diplomatic Corps of the Administration's Purpose.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The assurances conveyed a fortnight ago by President Wilson in a public statement of the sympathy of the American people in the republican movement in China are to have practical form in the recognition of the Chinese Republic. The first formal step to this end was taken to-day. Secretary Bryan invited to the State Department the diplomatic representatives of those countries to which the Chinese Government has sent accredited representatives and delivered to them a communication on the subject of the recognition of the new Government by the powers.

The Ambassadors and Ministers were gathered in the diplomatic reception room, whence one at a time each was asked in to the Secretary's office. The conference in each case lasted from ten minutes to half an hour and was begun by the simple announcement from Secretary Bryan that it was the purpose of this Government to take the initiative of recognizing the Chinese Republic. Coupled with this was the expression of the hope that all the powers might see fit to join in the welcome to be extended to the new Oriental Government.

This action by the Secretary of State followed a long conference between President Wilson and Mr. Bryan at the White House last night, in which the subject was discussed and the probability of the step proposed by the President for this Government being acceptable to the other Governments was considered.

That the President has been encouraged to believe that his action will meet the approval of many of the powers is indicated by the attitude of the representatives of Great Britain and Germany within the last few days. These two powers may be expected to join the United States in the recognition of the Chinese Republic without delay.

Secretary Bryan, when asked, after the Ambassadors and Ministers had taken their departure, if the recognition of China was soon to take place, asked to be excused from saying more than that he had asked the diplomatic representatives to meet him to-day, and that within a few days a formal announcement would be made of the nature of the "communication" he had delivered to each of them. It is believed that the President will make a proclamation of recognition soon.

There is an agreement among six powers for concert of action in China. These powers are Great Britain, Germany, France, Russia, Japan, and the United States. That agreement provides that none of the powers shall recognize the new republic singly, but that all shall act together in the formal recognition. When President Wilson issued his statement two weeks ago, after a conference with a delegation of American bankers interested in the Chinese loan, his act gave notice to the world of what was to come. That statement did not of itself take the United States out of the concert, but the path which the President had chosen for his Government was indicated, and now it is being entered, and the other powers are asked to enter it also. For the President to recognize the Chinese Republic without the assent of the other five powers will break the agreement.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 2.—The news that the United States Government would officially recognize the republic of China caused wild rejoicing to-day in San Francisco's Chinatown. The Mongolian population of the city took a half-holiday to celebrate, hoisting flags and bunting with the Stars and Stripes entwined with the colors of the new republic.

RAT POISON KILLED EATON.

Detective Says Arsenic Was Probably Administered in That Form.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 2.—John H. Scott, of Braintree, a State detective, said to-day that he believed the arsenic that killed Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, of Assinippi, was in the form of rat poison.

On the day of Mrs. Jennie May Eaton's arrest, charged with the murder of her husband, District Attorney Barker said that "some form of arsenic" killed the Admiral. The indictment went so far as to mention "white arsenic," but stopped there.

It became apparent the moment that Scott said rat poison was probably the form in which the drug was administered, that the search to locate any purchase of it would be more difficult than if arsenic in commercial form had been used. To buy arsenic as such involves considerable questioning, signing a book and other formalities.

Rat poison may be bought without all this trouble.

Mrs. Ralph P. Keyes and Miss Dorothy Eaton, daughters of the accused widow, conferred with her counsel, Francis J. Geogan, in Rockland to-day. Points for the defense were gone over with suggestions made by Mrs. Eaton from her cell in Plymouth jail.

H. P. DAVISON HOME DESTROYED BY FIRE

Faulty Flue Causes Loss of Beautiful Summer Residence at Peacock Point, L. I.

MOST OF CONTENTS SAVED

Mrs. Davison and Her Sons There on a Visit at the Time—$100,000 Loss Covered by Insurance.

GLENCOVE, L. I., April 2.—The Summer home of Henry P. Davison of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., situated on Peacock Point on the Long Island Sound, was entirely destroyed by fire late this afternoon. The loss is estimated at from $100,000 to $125,000. The Davison place adjoined that of William D. Guthrie and was not far from J. P. Morgan, Jr.'s, and the Howard Whitney place. It was one of the handsomest residences on Long Island.

The house, a three-story brick and white stone structure, covered a large area, and was practically rebuilt last Spring. It had been closed all Winter, but there were caretakers in a small house not far away.

This afternoon Mrs. Davison, with her sons, Trubee and Harry, and three of their school chums, motored out from New York to spend the day. It was quite cool in the house as there was a strong wind blowing from the Sound, and the boys decided to build a wood fire in the fireplace in the west end of the house. Logs were brought and these were lighted shortly after noon. The wood made so much smoke that the boys decided there was something wrong with the chimney. They put out the fire and tried to find the cause of the trouble, but were unable to do so and after a time gave up the search for it.

The boys then engaged in a game of ball on the lawn in front of the house and Mrs. Davison sat at a window watching them. So absorbed were they in their play that they did not notice a fire in the upper part of the west end of the house. It was about 4 o'clock when one of the caretakers saw smoke coming from the top of the house and he quickly gave the alarm.

The five boys, with the caretakers, then ran to the top floor of the building and found it ablaze. Realizing they could do little to extinguish the flames they turned their attention to saving the furniture and other valuables in the house. A telephone call was sent to Glen Cove, three miles away, for the fire apparatus. A number of valuable rugs and some costly furniture and bric-a-brac in the lower floors of the house were carried out before the flames spread through the building.

It was a long run for the firemen, and when they reached the place the house was doomed. There was little water to fight the fire with, the firemen not having hose enough to reach the Sound. What little water they could get was from a small lake on the estate, but the pressure was so light that this water did practically no good.

The high wind carried sparks from the burning building to several small houses occupied in the Summer time by servants, chauffeurs and caretakers, and what little water was to be had by the firemen was used by them to put out the fires in the smaller houses, which were saved.

When it was seen that the fine home could not be saved Mrs. Davidson went to the home of a neighbor and telephoned to her husband in Manhattan. Mr. Davison did not come here, however. The fire burned fiercely for about seven hours, and then there was nothing left of the handsome residence but four blackened walls.

Mrs. Davison said she did not believe that $100,000 would cover the loss. The property was purchased seven years ago from Mrs. Charles O. Gates.

At his home, 12 West Fifty-first Street, Mr. Davison said last night that he had been advised that most of the contents of his Glen Cove mansion had been saved.

"I had no paintings or art objects of especial note or value at Glen Cove," he said. "The house is totally destroyed, but it is fully covered by insurance."

MOB LOOTS WRECKED CARS.

Thieves Fire on Buffalo Train Crews—Railway Loss $200,000.

BUFFALO, April 2.—Using revolvers to drive away the train crews, a mob of fifty roughs looted the cars of two Lehigh Valley Railroad freight trains wrecked near Lackawanna to-night. The loss from the wreck in burned and stolen property is estimated at $200,000. Four trainmen were injured.

Both trains were westbound. The first came to a standstill on the outskirts of Lackawanna, and the second, a fast freight, drawn by two engines, crashed into it. Valuable merchandise from twenty wrecked cars was strewn about.

The noise of the collision attracted a crowd from nearby resorts and in a short time the looting began. Trainmen who tried to disperse the mob were met with a fusillade of revolver shots. Police aid was summoned from here, but the thieves were driven off by a fire that started in the wreckage and escaped with their plunder.

Engineers Clarence Warner of Sayre, Penn., and Jacoby Baker of Buffalo were seriously injured.

It is said that Mr. Astor is so well pleased with the result of his first efforts at scientific farming that he is ready to work a large tract as an object lesson for the farmers of Dutchess County.

At Unionvale Mr. Astor has obtained an option on about 700 acres. It is said that he asked Gov. Sulzer his advice about buying land, and that the Governor answered: "By all means invest your money in land. It is the safest investment from every point of view; and further your plans for experimenting upon your farms in Dutchess County."

Government Asks German Papers to Suppress Accounts of Progress.

BERLIN, April 2.—A semi-official appeal to the German newspapers to refrain in the future from publishing news as to the voyages and evolutions of German military airships is published in the Norddeutsche Allegemeine Zeitung to-day. They are asked not to record the advances made in aviation and not to report bomb throwing and machine-gun experiments carried out by military aviators. They are also requested to maintain silence generally as to developments in German military armament and equipment.

The Government organ takes as its text the success of the British War Office in concealing its supremacy in aviation and in the numbers of its military aeroplanes until Col. Seely, the British Secretary for War, made his startling announcement in the House of Commons on March 19.

Court Refuses Him Permission to Attend Son's Funeral.

The application for the release from Ludlow Street jail of Alphonse C. Charlot, a mining promoter, that he might go to Bisbee, Arizona, and make arrangements for the interment of his son, who was killed two weeks ago in a revolutionary fight in Sonora, Mexico, was denied yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Lehman. Charlot is in jail because of his failure to pay $230 alimony to his wife, Dace Melbourne Charlot, who is suing for a separation. Edward Isaacs, Charlot's attorney, said that Charlot was willing to pay the expenses of a Deputy Sheriff for the round trip.

Justice Lehman in denying the motion said: "I cannot believe that the defendant is unable to pay the alimony ordered. However great the hardship of his imprisonment may be, I feel that it is not the court's, but his fault and contumacy that creates the hardship."

CANAL READY MAY, 1914.

Prediction of Col. Goethals—Culebra Work Hastens.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, April 2.—The excavation of Culebra Cut is completed, except three miles at Culebra embracing the area of slides. A little more than 10,000,000 cubic yards of excavation remains. This work will be finished in October.

A steamship company cabled to Col. Goethals to-day, asking when it could advertise for traffic through the canal, and asking the probable date when the first ship would pass through. Col. Goethals answered that the canal would be completed and ready for ships in May, 1914.

'LETTERGRAMS' IN ENGLAND

Post Office Department Institutes a Cheap Night Wire Service.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—Postmaster General Samuel has announced the institution of a system of night "lettergrams."

These are telegrams sent during the night at the rate of six words for a penny. They are delivered by the first mail in the morning, with the idea of benefitting people who have missed the last post at night.

$1,000 NECKLACE GONE.

Mrs. John Herndon French Thinks She Lost It While Shopping.

Mrs. French, wife of Dr. John Herndon French, of 43 West Fifty-first Street, reported to the police of the East Fifty-first Street Station last night that she had lost a pearl necklace worth $1,000 while on a shopping tour during the afternoon. She did not miss the necklace until she arrived home, and then a search was made of her automobile, but no trace of it was found.

Mrs. French said she did not know whether the necklace had been stolen or had become unclasped and fallen from her neck.

H. M. FLAGLER IS BETTER.

Unconscious for a Time Yesterday, but Physicians Are Hopeful.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., April 2.—Henry M. Flagler slept better last night than at any time within two weeks. His condition, however, is still thought dangerous.

At 6 o'clock to-night he was reported unconscious, but later he recovered consciousness and showed other favorable symptoms. His physicians are now hopeful of his recovery.

McCOMBS HERE, SILENT.

Friends Insist He Will Not Accept Ambassadorship to France.

William F. McCombs, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was in the city yesterday, but he remained in seclusion and said nothing about whether he would accept or refuse the post of Ambassador to France. Several of Mr. McCombs's friends said they thought he would not take the place.

"The story that Mr. McCombs has accepted the Ambassadorship is news to me," said Walter W. Vick, Assistant Secretary of the National Committee. "I returned from Washington with him yesterday, and when I left him last night he didn't mention anything of the sort.

"It is reasonably certain, I believe, that Mr. McCombs will go to the Continent for a rest, and that may have given rise to this story. He is very fond of France, and Aix-les-Bains in particular, and probably would spend his vacation there."

Later, after he had talked further with Mr. McCombs, Mr. Vick added this to his statement:

"Mr. McCombs's position is exactly what it was when he made public his statement more than a week ago declining the Paris appointment. Any other report is erroneous."

TWO FRENCH AIRMEN KILLED

One, Yves Faure, Was Also Well Known as a Balloonist.

VERSAILLES, April 2.—Yves Faure, a military aviator, was killed to-day by the overturning of his biplane at a height of 300 feet. He was crushed to death beneath the motor when it struck the earth.

AMIENS, April 2.—A military aviator, Sergt. Phansoux, was killed here to-day.

He had just arrived from Rheims and made an error of judgment in effecting a landing. The machine tilted and the airman was thrown out.

Two hundred and forty-one persons have lost their lives in aeroplane accidents since 1908.

Faure was a well-known airman, and previous to his death had made more than 300 flights. His first flight of any prominence was in 1905, when he crossed the English Channel in a balloon. In 1905 he won the International balloon contest which started from Paris. In this flight Faure covered 899 miles, landing in Hungary. Faure was well known in this country.

CHAUFFEUR MURDERED.

Clute's Body Found in a Country Road Beside His Automobile.

ALBANY, April 2.—A blood-stained automobile standing by the roadside and the lifeless body of Frank J. Clute, an Albany chauffeur, lying in a ditch, were found by milkmen early this morning on the Schenectady-Troy road not far from the City of Watervliet. Three bullet wounds in the chauffeur's head revealed the manner of his death, but an all-day search by the authorities has failed to disclose the identify of the murderer.

About 9:30 o'clock last night, according to information given to the District Attorney, a tall, slender man, wearing a dark overcoat and Fedora hat, stepped up to Clute, and asked to be taken to Troy. Clute was not seen alive after he left the city with his passenger.

Several persons reported having seen the car standing by the roadside before 11 o'clock last night, but believing it had simply been disabled made no attempt to investigate.

A bloody trail across the road to-day showed that Clute's body had been dragged to the ditch after the murder.

Clute was employed by his father, Richard J. Clute, who conducts a garage in Albany. He was 25 years of age. A watch and ring which he wore were undisturbed. The police say the shots which killed him were fired from behind.

SULZER, ENRAGED, ASSAILS BARNES OVER FULL-CREW BILL INQUIRY

DENIES PLEDGE TO UNION

Though a Pledge Would Have Been "All Right"—Referred Trainmen to His Record.

TALKS WITH FITZGIBBONS

Who, He Says, Denies Authenticity of Letter He "Didn't Want Printed."

BARNES LAUGHS AT HIM

And Senator Brown Says the Republican Boss Did Not Inspire Inquiry Resolution.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—Infuriated and not a little worried over the events that have followed his approval of the so-called "full crew" bill, Gov. Sulzer, in an interview this evening said that William Barnes, Jr., Chairman of the Republican State Committee, had not only inspired but actually had dictated the resolution introduced in the Senate yesterday by Senator Elon R. Brown, the minority leader. The resolution asked the Judiciary Committee of the Senate what action, if any, the State could take with regard to the conduct of the Executive. According to a persistent report the Governor had signed the bill in fulfillment of ante-election pledges secretly made to John V. Fitzgibbons, the Legislative representative of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in this State. The basis for the Senate action was found in a circular letter which it is alleged was sent out on the eve of last election by Mr. Fitzgibbons for the purpose of making votes among the railroad men for Mr. Sulzer, the candidate for Governor. According to the letter, the full text of which was printed in the Albany dispatches of THE NEW YORK TIMES on Tuesday morning, the Governor is alleged to have told Fitzgibbons that if elected not only would he sign the full crew bill if it was passed by the Legislature, but he would do all in his power to further its passage. Furthermore the Governor was quoted as telling Mr. Fitzgibbons:

"I would come out openly for the bill if it were not for the fact that if I did the railroads would spend barrels of money to defeat me."

This letter has been published at intervals since last November, but seems to have attracted little attention until the signing of the bill on Monday gave it a new importance. When Mr. Fitzgibbons was asked by THE TIMES correspondent on Monday as to the genuineness of the letter, he said:

"I don't know that I want that letter printed; it was marked 'confidential' and not for publication."

Then he added:

"It may not be the right letter. One letter about this bill was published last December which purported to have emanated from me, but which was not authentic."

The publication of the letter has caused a great sensation at the Capitol. It has been pointed out time and time again since the letter was printed that nothing could be more improper on the part of a man who, if elected, would be compelled to swear when taking his official oath of office that he had not obtained his election by any promises or any valuable consideration. In the hearings on the bill before the Governor, it was brought out that the Governor's approval of the bill would take $2,000,000 annually from the treasuries of the railroad companies and put this sum into the pockets of the trainmen. In the last analysis this sum would be paid by the traveling public and by the shippers of freight.

Sulzer Sees Fitzgibbons.

Mr. Fitzgibbons has been about the Capitol every day since the publication of the letter in THE TIMES, but it was not until this evening, after the correspondent of THE NEW YORK TIMES had asked the Governor, who denies having made the statements attributed to him in the circular letter, whether or not he had summoned Mr. Fitzgibbons to his presence and taken him to task for circulating false reports about him, that the agent of the trainmen made a tardy appearance in the Executive Chamber.

Even at that time, according to reports, Mr. Fitzgibbons did not visit the Governor in response to a summons. A friend who accompanied him said that Mr. Fitzgibbons just "happened" into the Executive Chamber.

After the Governor had talked with Mr. Fitzgibbons for about ten minutes he shook hands with him with every show of cordiality. Mr. Fitzgibbons was then ushered out through a back door—a most unusual proceeding in the Executive Chamber—whereupon Gov. Sulzer summoned the correspondent of THE TIMES and subsequently some of the other newspaper correspondents at the Capitol to tell them that he had obtained from Mr. Fitzgibbons a denial of the authenticity of the letter reprinted in THE TIMES, as well as an explicit statement to the effect that the Governor had never made any statements to Mr. Fitzgibbons to justify him in sending out a circular letter like the one that was printed.

The Governor was told at the time that the denial of Mr. Fitzgibbons regarding the authenticity of the letter was hardly convincing, in view of the fact that when he was first questioned regarding it by THE TIMES's correspondent he quoted statements which were made in the letter of which at the time his interviewer had no knowledge.

It was said to-night that thus far no action had been taken by the Senate Judiciary Committee on the resolution introduced by Senator Brown. It is likely that a sub-committee will be appointed later to consider the matter. Mr. Fitzgibbons, it was learned to-night, when talking in confidence to his friends does not deny his responsibility for the circular letter itself, but disclaims responsibility for some of the statements that form part of it.

When Gov. Sulzer talked with the newspaper correspondents this evening he was asked if he had anything to say regarding the Brown resolution.

Warns Boss Barnes.

"Why, that resolution is rot," said the Governor. "You don't suppose a matter like that can intimidate me. I want to say now that if Boss Barnes does not keep out of the Senate and keep his hands off the Legislature, I will get after Mr. Barnes. Barnes is the man that instigated that resolution. If he thinks he can keep me from doing my duty he has another thought coming. He is part of the 'invisible Government.' He has no business meddling with the Legislature. Suppose Mr. Murphy was to come up here and meddle with the Legislature. There would be a howl if Mr. Murphy came here and went into Senator Wagner's room and drew resolutions against the Governor. I want Mr. Barnes to keep away from the Capitol. He is the Republican boss. The people don't want bosses up here. The people are the bosses now."

"Mr. Barnes was here yesterday. He was here putting up, as he thought, a fine job on the Governor with Senator Brown. Mr. Brown had better read what the newspapers said about him a few years ago when he was in the Legislature. I am not looking for trouble. But if anybody wants trouble with me in the performance of my duty to the people he can have it at the drop of the hat. The idea of a Senator introducing a resolution like that. Even if I had promised that I would sign the Full Crew bill it would be all right. Gov. Hughes and others promised that they would sign certain bills if they could get them passed. There is nothing wrong in that. It's all a trick of Barnes, Brown and the railroads."

"The point they make, Governor, is that the pledges were not made openly," said one of the newspaper correspondents.

"Is that the point?" broke in Gov. Sulzer. By this time he was laboring under a great deal of excitement and was pacing the floor in the centre of the little circle of newspaper men in the "People's Corner."

Tells About His Pledges.

"I made no pledges to any one during the campaign except to the people," said the Governor. "There is not a man in the State who can say truthfully that I made a pledge to get the nomination for Governor or to get elected to the office. If any man says I made such a pledge let him come forward and prove it.

"I know what this resolution of Brown's was put in for. It was done to deter me from doing my duty to the people. I see Gov. Fielder signed a Full Crew bill over in New Jersey yesterday. Between the railroads and the people I am with the people. In my opinion one human life is worth more than a whole train of freight cars. Who will dispute that? Mr. Barnes and Mr. Brown put up that job on the Governor yesterday, but it will not work. I'll go on doing my duty."

"Mr. Brown introduced the resolution," said one of the correspondents.

"I want the Republican boss of the State of New York to keep away from the Legislature," cried Gov. Sulzer in a white heat of anger. "All bosses look alike to me. If the Democratic boss comes around there is an awful hullabaloo about it, but the Republican boss, Mr. Barnes, can do practically what he pleases in the Legislature and the newspapers think it is a good thing. If Mr. Barnes is looking for trouble with me I will give him all the trouble he wants right here in Albany. I know a few things, and he knows I know them.

"The people can rest assured that while I am Governor of the State nobody can strike terror to my heart. I am after all the evil doers. I am going to do right—what I believe is right, and fearlessly do my duty. Let Mr. Barnes digest that. That will make him sit up and take notice for a while. He knows what I mean."

"Governor, have you seen Mr. Fitzgibbons?" Mr. Sulzer was asked. "Have you taken him to task for circulating false reports about you in his letter?"

"I have not seen Mr. Fitzgibbons since he made his argument here in favor of the bill," said the Governor. That was late on Saturday.

"He has been about the Capitol corridors," said one of the group.

"I saw him to-day as I was coming up to the Capitol from luncheon," the Governor replied.

"He told me there wasn't any truth in these stories."

"There seems to be no doubt that the letter as printed in THE TIMES was authentic," the Governor was told by one of the correspondents.

"Of course, I am not responsible for what other people write," the Governor replied. "They wrote lots of stuff about me in the campaign. No one knows that better than you do. I am responsible for what I write and for what I say. It is about time the people of the State of New York had a Governor that even the railroads can't influence, notwithstanding the fact that their advertising appears to have influenced the editorial pages of a good many newspapers."

Barnes Not Disturbed.

William Barnes, Jr., was at the Capitol to-day. When told of the Governor's talk he laughed blithely, and dictated the following statement to a stenographer:

"I expect to exercise my individual rights as all other citizens do until the Constitution is repealed, withdrawing them. However, if it is personally uncomfortable to the Governor to have me visit the Capitol to watch the travesties on government daily occurring there, I shall be pleased to make my visits to the People's House, which, as one of the people, I unquestionably have the Governor's invitation to do."

Senator Elon R. Brown, when he was asked regarding the Governor's statement that the resolution he introduced yesterday had been inspired and dictated by Mr. Barnes, said that the Governor had been misinformed. The woman stenographer who helps Senator Brown with his correspondence also said that she had taken no dictation from Mr. Barnes in the matter of the resolution.

"Mr. Barnes did drop in here yesterday," said Senator Brown, "and I would have felt very much offended if he had not when he visited the Capitol. But when he came in I was just going into the Senate, and all we had time to do was to exchange a few jocular remarks about the form of government we are having here at present. I am certain that the inspiration for the resolution did not emanate from Mr. Barnes, and my stenographer, I think, will tell you that she took the dictation from me and not from Mr. Barnes."

Gov. Sulzer, after he had his talk with Mr. Fitzgibbons, said the latter had assured him that he had never made any of the statements attributed to him in the circular letter.

"Mr. Fitzgibbons also tells me that he never sent any such letter, and he wants the original produced," said the Governor. "I remember having received Mr. Fitzgibbons as well as delegations of railroad men at Syracuse and at Buffalo, who told me that Mr. Hedges and Mr. Straus both had come out in favor of the full-crew bill. They asked me to do the same. I told them that I would not do it, that I thought it would lose me votes, and that they would have to take my past record on labor measures as a guarantee of what I would do in the future if I was elected Governor. That is all there is to it."

Mr. Fitzgibbons absolutely refused to comment on the letter published in THE TIMES.

FOR HIGHWAY REFORMS.

Sulzer's Good Roads Commission Reports on Methods.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 2.—That the new Commissioner of Highways should bear in mind that the roads of the State are not being constructed and improved "solely for the benefit of automobiles and automobile trucks," and that he should give proper attention to the location, construction, and improvement of farm and market roads, is one of a number of recommendations made by Gov. Sulzer's Good Roads Advisory Commission.

These recommendations, embracing suggestions for changes not only in future highway construction and maintenance, but also in the administration of the Highway Department, are embodied in the commission's report submitted to the Governor to-day.

The commission deems it "inadvisable and impracticable" to suggest to the Governor any one for appointment to the office of Commissioner of Highways, [illegible] recently created by the Highway Department reorganization bill.

The commission requests that the public should be informed that the great difficulties in the problem of highway construction and maintenance "are due in part to the change and increase in vehicular traffic as well as in part to mistakes in construction made at various times since the establishment of the department."

The remarkable development of the automobile truck adds to the complexity of the problem. In all probability, the commission says, it will be in ordinary use on improved roads throughout the State in a few years. The old type of traffic compressed the roads, while the new sort tears and disintegrates them.

In detail the commission recommends:

Extensive new construction work should not be put under contract until the Commissioner shall have ascertained the types of roads that have already been constructed in the State that have worn and stood up best.

In experimentation on new types, no long and costly stretches of road should be constructed.

Not more than 1,000 miles of new construction work should be put under contract in any one year.

Contracts for extensive new construction should be let in the months of September, October, and November, and not more than 500 miles of road should be advertised for letting in any one week.

Alterations radically changing the character of construction of roads under contract should be avoided.

The Commissioner should bear in mind that the roads are not being constructed or improved solely for the benefit of the owners of automobiles and automobile trucks, and he should give proper attention to the location, construction, and improvement of market or farm roads, and should endeavor to build up unconnected links as soon as practicable, with the object of having a comprehensive connected system.

The specifications should be simplified, and their interpretation by the engineers should be uniform.

Proper maintenance and repair of roads is almost equal in importance to the construction of new ones. Perhaps in no other respect are the road departments of England and France so vastly superior to those in this country as in their efficiency in making prompt and proper repairs. This to be effective must be constant, immediate, and unremitting.

The Auditing Department should be as efficient and vigilant as possible and inspection of construction should be constant and unremitting.

CHAMPION ANTI-ARSON BILL.

Fire Commissioner Johnson and 150 Business Men at Albany Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—Fire Commissioner Joseph J. Johnson of New York City made an effective demonstration in Albany to-day in favor of the Anti-Arson bill, in behalf of which he has carried on a vigorous campaign. This measure requires insurance companies to make a careful inspection of all risks before issuing a policy, and compels the applicant for a policy to make a statement answering questions concerning the risk, while the companies must look into the character and standing of the applicants. It also requires the companies to file with the Fire Commissioner copies of all policies. The making of a false statement in connection with the taking out of a policy is made a misdemeanor.

About 150 business men accompanied Commissioner Johnson to Albany.

The Assembly Chamber was given up to the Insurance Committee, which gave a hearing on the bill. Mr. Johnson's striking exhibit of property to the value of $3.96, on which agents of the Fire Commissioner were able to secure a total insurance of $127,500, was placed on view before the legislators. Mr. Johnson said that the ease with which fire policies could be obtained in New York City was an incentive to arson, and that he had traced many incendiary fires to the temptation held out to those engaging in insurance frauds.

The bill, he said, would put an end to insurance frauds and reduce the number of fires. He asserted that several of the insurance companies and many of the most prominent merchants of New York favored its passage. He said that the objection that the bill, if enacted, would increase the insurance rates seemed to carry little weight, in view of the benefits to be derived from it.

Arguments in favor of the bill were made by William E. Ellison, Robert H. Neilson, and Louis Amundsen, President of the People's Mutual Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia. The speakers in opposition were Charles Hoffman of the Fire Insurance Brokers' Association, F. B. DeBerard of the Merchants' Association, John A. Murphy of the Buffalo Chamber of Commerce, and representatives of the Brooklyn Fire Insurance Association and the Manufacturers' Association of New York.

SULZER REAL PRISON HEAD.

Carmody Says Governor Is in Charge While Vacancy Exists.

ALBANY, April 2.—Attorney General Carmody holds that Gov. Sulzer is the Acting Superintendent of Prisons, from which office Col. Joseph F. Scott was recently removed, and that matters in the Superintendent's office requiring discretion and judicial determination cannot be delegated by the Governor.

Senator Brown, the Republican leader of the upper house, yesterday introduced a resolution requesting the Attorney General to advise the Senate as to the law governing the administration of the office of Superintendent of Prisons during the interim caused by the removal of Col. Scott. The resolution also asks under what law Owen L. Potter is now assuming to administer the department. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Penal Institutions. Mr. Potter is Deputy Counsel to the Governor and Pardon Clerk. Since the removal of John G. McDowell, Chief Clerk in the Department of Prisons, Mr. Potter has been in charge, acting for the Governor.

The question as to the status of the Prison Department was raised by Controller Sohmer, who asked as to the validity of certain payments on a prison contract.

HALTS A TAMMANY BILL.

Fight in the Senate on Telephone Transfer Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2.—The Tammany plan to place all of the New York Telephone Company's system in this State under the jurisdiction of the Public Service Commissioner of the First District, now dominated by Tammany, apparently has failed. The Fitzgerald bill, which transfers the power of supervision over telephone and telegraph lines from the Second District to the New York City Commission, was so bitterly attacked in the Senate to-day that the friends of the measure postponed the vote after the debate.

Those who opposed the measure denounced it as a Tammany grab. It was said that the three Democratic Senators from Erie County, Senator Murtaugh of Elmira, and other Democrats representing up-State districts would not vote for the bill.

NEW CITY DIRECTORY OUT.

96,000 Names in It, or 6,500 More Than Last Year.

The sixty-first volume of Trow's Copartnership Directory for the boroughs of Manhattan and the Bronx has just been issued for the year 1913. The volume contains approximately 96,000 names, or 6,500 more than the 1912 issue. The first volume, published in 1849, contained just 5,000 names.

The directory gives the names of partners and special partners of each firm, the officers, the capital and Directors of banks, insurance companies, and corporations, and the State under whose laws they were incorporated; registered and unregistered trade names and the proprietors, and foreign or out-of-town firms and corporations doing business in New York, with the location of their home offices and their New York agents or representatives.

The publishers estimate that of the [illegible] names in the new volume, 66 per [illegible] are either new or are those of existing firms and corporations the information concerning which varies from that contained in the previous volume.

TO TRY STILWELL IN SENATE APRIL 8

Judiciary Committee Reports Favorably on Motion to Hear Bribery Charges.

TAMMANY CHIEFS ALARMED

Accused Senator Attends Meeting at Which Plans for Inquiry Are Arranged.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 2. — The Senate Judiciary Committee will bring in a unanimous report to-morrow providing for the trial of Senator Stephen J. Stilwell on the charges of attempted bribery made against him by George H. Kendall, President of the New York Bank Note Company. The trial will begin on April 8. The report will leave the Senate to decide whether the trial will be before the full Senate or before the Senate Judiciary Committee. In either event, the trial will be public.

The adoption of this report followed a series of persistent efforts by some of the Senate leaders to have Senator Stilwell tender his resignation in order "to save trouble." Some of the most influential of the "organizations" spokesmen in the Senate labored with Mr. Stilwell for many hours last night and to-day, and it was only after he had turned a deaf ear on all their pleas that the action outlined by the committee was decided upon.

The idea of one or two weeks of sensational doings in the Senate in a year when Tammany Hall must fight a municipal campaign in New York City is filling the hearts of the leaders with gloom. They are determined to make the best of the situation, however. Mr. Wagner, President pro tem of the Senate, declared to-night that the body would confront its task of house cleaning in a spirit of determination and sincerity.

Senator Stilwell was in his seat in the Senate Chamber all day. As a member of the Senate Judiciary Committee, he did not permit any sense of delicacy to keep him away from its secret session to-night, where the finishing touches were put to the plan of procedure adopted for his own trial. To-night the Senator said that, at the suggestion of his friends, he would have nothing to say regarding the charges until the trial.

Friends of Senator Stilwell insist that his accusers have nothing even resembling a case against him. For all that, there is the general fear in the Stilwell camp that in deference to public opinion the Senate may declare his seat vacant.

Samuel Lewis, Jr., Revision Clerk of the Senate, who was removed from office yesterday by Senate Clerk McCabe after admitting that he had accepted a fee of $250 for drafting the Kendall bill, which caused the charges against Senator Stilwell, is preparing to fight his removal. Senator Elon R. Brown, leader of the Republican minority in the Senate, became the spokesman on the floor for Mr. Lewis, although the latter is a Democrat. Senator Brown introduced a resolution calling on Mr. McCabe to report to the Senate the grounds on which he removed Mr. Lewis. The latter contends that he was perfectly within his rights when he accepted a fee for drafting the Kendall bill.

"It should be evidence of my entire good faith in the matter," said Mr. Lewis to-day, "that I not only accepted a check from Mr. Kendall for the services I rendered, but even sent him a receipt. That does not look like concealment, does it?"

"Is it true that you divided your fee with Senator Stilwell?" Mr. Lewis was asked.

"I am the goat, but I am saying nothing," was his reply. "I have a perfect right to do with my money as I see fit."

Gov. Sulzer and Attorney General Carmody turned over to the Senate Judiciary Committee all the documentary evidence they had in support of the charges against Senator Stilwell.

It was intimated here to-night that Gov. Sulzer might ask District Attorney Whitman to take cognizance of the charges against Senator Stilwell, and to begin action in New York City, independent of the prospective action of the Senate.

NO STOCK EXCHANGE FUND.

President Mabon Denies Charges Attributed to Senator Stilwell.

President James B. Mabon of the New York Stock Exchange denied emphatically yesterday that there was even the shadow of truth in statements, which George H. Kendall said Senator Stilwell had made to him on three different occasions, that the Stack Exchange had raised a fund to defeat proposed legislation at Albany.

"Any statement alleging that the New York Stock Exchange has raised any fund to influence legislation at Albany, directly or indirectly, and any statement that it has maintained a lobby at Albany," said Mr. Mabon, "is an unqualified falsehood. The Stock Exchange has relied solely upon its briefs, arguments, and an appeal to reason."

This was the second time Mr. Mabon had been moved to refute published charges that the Stock Exchange was making use of a lobby, backed with money, to head off certain bills having to do with trading in stocks and bonds. He issued a denial last week of such reports, and described at length the methods the Exchange was employing at Albany, and told of the support which had been given to the Exchange in its fight by civic and business organizations of the city.

According to Mr. Kendall's version of Senator Stilwell's charges the lobby was particularly interested in defeating the measure which would force the Stock Exchange to be incorporated. Mr. Kendall said that Stilwell had mentioned the corruption fund twice in Albany and once in the Senator's law office in this city.

FIREMEN'S FUND SHORT.

Secretary Accuses ex-Secretary Bennett of $9,266 Thefts.

Charles E. Bennett of Hamilton, N. Y., former Secretary of the New York Firemen's Benevolent Association, was held in $3,500 bail for further examination yesterday by Magistrate Campbell in the Tombs Court. He was charged with the theft of $9,266 from the association.

Bennett was arrested on the complaint of Abraham De Groot, the present Financial Secretary, who says that in the five years that he had been employed Bennett defrauded the association by making false entries in the books. Bennett served as Secretary of the association from 1906 to 1911.

DIRECT ELECTION SOON.

One More State Will Carry the Senatorial Amendment.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The action of the Pennsylvania Legislature to-day in ratifying the amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the election of Senators by the direct vote of the people makes it possible that the amendment will be proclaimed by Secretary Bryan as an inherent part of the Constitution some time this Spring. Pennsylvania is the thirty-fifth State to indorse the amendment, and only one more assent is needed to make up the required three-fourths of all the States.

Florida, it seems likely now, will be the final State to ratify the proposed amendment, and its Legislature may do this before the Summer. The Legislatures of Rhode Island and Connecticut are now in session—neither having acted on the amendment—but their course is doubtful. Rhode Island is expected to reject the change, and in Connecticut, though the popular sentiment is reported favorable to the amendment, it is not known whether enough pressure has been put upon the legislators to induce favorable action at present.

Not long ago the Delaware House of Representatives ratified the amendment, but the Senate rejected it. Even if the thirty-sixth State does give its ratification in the near future there may be some delay before the amendment becomes effective. In the case of the income tax amendment the Secretaries of State of some of the States delayed almost a year in formally notifying the Federal Secretary of State. Not until three-fourths of all the States have informed the Federal Secretary of State can due proclamation be made.

The States that have ratified the amendment are Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Idaho, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Missouri, Michigan, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin, and Wyoming.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 2.—Indications are that Connecticut will next week ratify the proposed amendment to the Federal Constitution providing for the election of United States Senators by popular vote.

The Committee on Federal Relations has returned a favorable report and the question will come before the House on Tuesday. With the Democrats and the Progressives pledged to such a measure and the Republicans having but a majority of two, there seems to be scant likelihood of failure. It is expected that many Republicans will vote for the measure and this, with the Progressives and the solid Democratic vote for the amendment in caucus, assures success.

The Senate will offer no opposition for the Democratic Senators will undoubtedly consider the question as a party issue, and they hold a safe majority.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE R. I., April 2.—Gov. Pothier, when informed to-night that ratification by only one State was now needed to make constitutional the proposed amendment for the election of United States Senators by the people, said that he could not tell what the Rhode Island Legislature would do.

The measure was passed by the House, and is now in the files of the Judiciary Committee of the Senate. Republican leaders generally also said to-night that they could not tell what action would be taken on the measure. The Democrats, however, will attempt to-morrow to take the measure from the committee and put it on its way for passage. Two such attempts have already failed.

There is a belief around the State House now that as the amendment seems practically certain to become part of the Constitution the Republicans who have not favored it will vote in its favor.

POLICEMAN ACCUSES POLICE

Pritchard's Son Says His Father, the Pawnbroker, Was 'Framed Up.'

James Pritchard, a policeman and the son of James C. Pritchard, proprietor of the Pawnbrokers' Sales Company at 253 West Forty-second Street, who is on trial before Justice Seabury in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court for receiving stolen property, testified yesterday that he believed his brother-policemen had "framed up" his father.

After his father's place of business had been raided on Jan. 6, he said, he looked after the business and discovered a book in which the record of the sale of the jewelry stolen from Miss Frances Barnes at the Hotel St. Andrews was contained. This book was mentioned in the testimony of the detectives, who raided the place, as "lost." When asked how he could explain the fact that he found it when the others could not, Pritchard said:

"Well, I believe that the police intentionally overlooked the book in order to discredit my father."

Clarence McGuire, a lawyer, testified that he had represented the defendant, and that Miss Barnes had told him she had no desire to press the charge against Pritchard, as she felt she had done him an injustice, and believed he had been treated in a most brutal manner by the police. Pritchard was then called, and said he had no idea that the jewelry was stolen, and that Miss Barnes had given him $400 for its return. She insisted, he said, that she did not wish him to lose by the transaction.

The trial will be continued to-day.

lished this morning forbidding any officer or man of the force from entering hotels or liquor places in the enforcement of the liquor law except under the Commissioner's orders is not new. Do you not remember that I made that regulation shortly after I became Mayor? It is repeated now only for safety. Seeing these all-night carousing places entered some of the force might think they could do the like on their own hook. To allow them all to enter or interfere with such places would reinstate the immense organized liquor graft which was done away with."

One little sidelight on the all-night drinking controversy took the form of a Gaynor letter to E. Hamilton, a Brooklynite, who wrote to the Mayor a few days ago. To-day Mr. Hamilton will receive the following characteristic reply:

> Dear Sir: Your letter of April 1, quoting from a certain [illegible] newspaper what it gives as a declaration of mine, that the foreigners here have as much right to ask us to change our flag as we have to prevent them from drinking liquor on Sunday, and rebuking me for the utterance, is at hand.
>
> You must be a very stupid man, or else very vicious, to believe any such thing. Do you not know that that newspaper makes up such things from day to day? Do you not know that I never say anything to that newspaper at all?
>
> But let me ease your mind by saying to you that I never said what you attribute to me. Would it not be well for you to give up the ragbag, corrupt newspapers and read decent papers? Do you not know that we have several respectable newspapers in this city? Sincerely yours,
>
> W. J. GAYNOR, Mayor.

All of the cafes and restaurants throughout the city which are affected by the new edict were told again by the police to close promptly at one o'clock this morning.

The closing of the restaurants this morning was carried out in the same way as for the past two days. Inspectors Dwyer and Gillen with their full staffs and men from other precincts made the rounds of all of the restaurants and cafés in the old and new Tenderloin districts. In every instance they found the [illegible] At 1:[illegible] except the few which had received permission to stay open.

INDICTED INSPECTORS PLEAD.

None Confess, but Confessions Are Expected—Walsh's Testimony Near.

Justice Seabury denied yesterday the motion to vacate his own order designating himself as a Commissioner of the Supreme Court to take the testimony of ex-Police Capt. Thomas W. Walsh prior to the trial of ex-Inspector Sweeney. Justice Seabury plans to take Walsh's testimony in District Attorney Whitman's library at 2 P. M. to-morrow. Should Walsh's physicians advise against making a trip to the Criminal Court Building, the testimony will be taken at the Walsh home.

Four persons against whom indictments have been found in connection with the graft investigation, pleaded not guilty yesterday. A fifth had his pleading postponed until to-day. Ex-Inspector James E. Hussey, who was indicted on two counts last week with ex-Inspectors John J. Murtha and James F. Thompson, was the first to plead not guilty. He had been arraigned previously, but had asked for a postponement. Next came Thompson, who asked through his lawyer that his case be put over for a day. This was granted. Murtha, the third of the trio, pleaded not guilty last week.

Some surprise has been expressed that Murtha and Thompson have not turned State's evidence. It was said that Murtha, when on the point of telling District Attorney Whitman everything, had had a sudden change of mind over night. Thompson, when arraigned to-day, is expected to plead not guilty, but the rumor persists that both Murtha and Thompson will weaken before their cases are called for trial. Hussey was represented yesterday by Francis L. Wellman and Thompson by Arnold L. Davis.

Sergt. Peter J. Duffy, accused of being the uniformed collector for Sweeney, pleaded not guilty to the eighth indictment found against him. He was represented by Abraham Levy. Policeman Thomas J. Heaney, accused of collecting graft in the First Inspection District, also pleaded not guilty before Justice Seabury. Tom Lloyd, the Harlem gambler, pleaded not guilty to the charge of extortion before Judge Malone in General Sessions. It was explained that the charge against Lloyd could not be bribery, because Lloyd was not a public official. Technically, Lloyd is accused of acting for Sweeney in the same capacity as Sergt. Duffy, with the difference that Lloyd wore no uniform.

INCOME TAX SNAG HALTS TARIFF BILL

Validity of Giving President Power to Raise the Rate in Crises Is Questioned.

$100,000,000 IN JEOPARDY

Sugar Duty Another Obstacle—Wool Now Made Free—Wilson for House Bill or Nothing.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—A great constitutional question, possibly serious enough to jeopardize the success of the revenue-raising plans of the Democratic Party, has been brought to the front in connection with the drafting of the proposed income tax provision of the new Tariff bill. It revolves around a proposal to enact what may be described as a flexible graduated income tax law for want of a better appellation. That such a proposal has been advanced and is now being seriously considered by the Ways and Means Committee of the House and President Wilson was learned definitely to-night. It involves vesting the President of the United States with power, in his discretion and at will, to readjust the income tax rate to suit and meet revenue conditions in the Treasury.

This vitally important proposal, which if adopted might jeopardize the entire income tax provision and cause a loss of $100,000,000 revenue, has served in a measure to delay final agreement between President Wilson and the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee on all the terms of the Tariff bill. But the real delay on the bill itself is due to inability on their part to determine whether sugar should be free or taxed, and if taxed, what the dutiable rate should be. If sugar were made free the loss of revenue would be something more than $52,000,000, and it would be necessary to fix the income tax rate so as not only to bring compensation for this large sum, but for the revenue loss through the general reduction of duties on other products and extension of the free list. Until the sugar question is adjusted definitely decision on the income tax issue must remain in abeyance.

The vital question confronting the President and the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee is: Shall we adopt the provision giving the President authority to increase or decrease the income tax rate according to the exigencies of the Treasury and thus run the risk of having the Supreme Court declare that provision unconstitutional as a delegation of legislative power?

Ways of Empowering President.

Under this plan, should the Treasury be confronted with a deficit at the end of a fiscal year, the President might have power, by proclamation, to fix a new income tax rate to be collected the following year, and thus replenish the revenues. It may involve going as far as authorizing the President to change the income tax rate at any time he sees fit to do so, or it may restrict the President in his authority to change the rates only once each fiscal year in connection with the proposed National budget plan, which a special Caucus Committee of the House Democrats is also considering. It was not learned whether, in proposing to vest the President with such vast power, Congress was to be asked to lay down some rule for his guidance in this delegation of legislative power to the executive branch. This might be done, for example, by fixing a limit beyond which the President might not go in naming a higher income tax rate.

The Ways and Means Committee has not yet decided to accept the plan. One thing that stands in the way is the Constitutional doubt that clouds the proposal. In the end, this may be serious enough to cast the decision against its adoption.

There is strong sentiment in the committee for the adoption of some such flexible income tax described, as well as vigorous opposition to the innovation.

If the proposal is approved by the Ways and Means Committee and the President it must certainly, Constitutional lawyers assert, be so framed as to circumscribe carefully the limits within which the President may act in changing the income tax rate. Even with some legislative rule enacted to govern the President in what he might do with respect to changing income tax rates, there is doubt in some minds as to the constitutionality of any proposals which would vest the President with power to raise revenue by fixing a rate upon which Congress does not pass.

House Bill or Nothing.

"The House bill or nothing" appears to be President Wilson's attitude toward the forthcoming tariff legislation. In other words, the President wants the Democrats in Congress to agree in advance on the tariff measure and to abide by its provisions consistently until it is enacted into law. Contrary to expectation, the President did not give a final decision to-day as to all the changes he would like to have the Ways and Means Committee make in the tentative draft of the tariff bill.

One of the things Mr. Wilson has made plain is that he believes that placing cereals on the free list would not have the effect of reducing the cost of living. He does hold, however, that the duties should be removed from foodstuffs and other necessaries of life whose prices are fixed as a result of monopolistic conditions. Such a course, in his opinion, would lead to a reduction in prices of those articles.

Although earlier in the day President Wilson had indicated to members of the Ways and Means Committee who were interested in taking the duties off raw materials that he favored a duty on raw wool, further conference produced a general change of front; and it was understood last night that the committee and the President had reached an agreement that the tariff bill should provide for the free admission of raw wool.

A majority of the Democratic members of the Ways and Means Committee had favored a duty of 15 per cent. on the raw product.

'TYPHOON' PLEASES LONDON

This Lengyel Adaptation a Success, "The Happy Island" a Failure.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—An enthusiastic audience gave a great welcome to the adaptation of Melchior Lengyel's "Typhoon," which was produced at the Haymarket Theatre to-night. The critics predict a long run, not only because of the power of the play, but also because of its novelty. The remarkable acting of Laurence Irving as Takeramo is sure to attract large audiences.

In consequence of the failure of Fagan's adaptation of Lengyel's "Happy Island," Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree announces that it will be withdrawn from His Majesty's Theatre after a sixteen days' run.

FIVE SANK WITH TUGBOAT.

Only Three Saved When the T. F. O'Brien Capsized in a Squall.

The body of David Hennessy, mate of the tugboat Thomas F. O'Brien, who was drowned with four other members of the crew when the tug sank off the foot of Van Dyke Street, Brooklyn, on Tuesday night, was recovered yesterday near the scene of the accident. Hennessy lived at 235 Degraw Street. The bodies of the other four men are thought to be on board the tug, and it is believed that they will be recovered when the tug is raised. The four missing men were known only by their first names. Two were deckhands known as Chester and Jess, and two were firemen, both named Matthew.

The Thomas F. O'Brien is owned by the firm of O'Brien Brothers, Incorporated, of 54 South Street, Manhattan. The vessel was towing two scows laden with sand when it was struck by a sudden squall and turned turtle so suddenly that there was no time for those below decks to escape.

The tug William H. Flannery of the Chapman-Merritt Wrecking Company, which was a short distance away, rescued Capt. Eli P. Conine, Patrick Nugent, the engineer, and Luke Tucker, the assistant engineer. They could give no information as to the other five members of the crew. They said the boat went down without warning and they found themselves suddenly thrown into the water. The Flannery towed the two scows to the foot of Van Dyke Street.

STARTS MULRANEY HEARING.

Rosalsky Wants Better Alibi for Convicted Murderer.

Judge Rosalsky in General Sessions began an investigation yesterday into the assertion of John Mulraney, also known as "Happy Jack," who is in the Death House at Sing Sing, having been convicted of the murder of Patrick McBreen, that he had new evidence to show that he was not guilty of the crime.

Two of the witnesses who testified yesterday were Nicholas Jacobson, better known as "Zumach," and William Reilly. They said that they met Mulraney as he departed from Sweeney's saloon at Lexington Avenue and 108th Street on the night of Oct. 3, 1911, and that they took him home two hours before the murder. He was then intoxicated, they asserted. Mrs. Emma Davidson, a relative of Mulraney, testified to the same facts. At the end of the hearing yesterday Judge Rosalsky turned to Joseph A. Shay, counsel to Mulraney, and said:

"You will have to present more convincing testimony than that which has just been introduced to obtain a new trial for your client."

Mr. Shay said he intended to do this, and had applied for three writs of habeas corpus to bring to this city three prisoners who would testify that Mulraney did not commit the murder.

WILLIAM H. FLETCHER DEAD.

Ex-President of Engineers' Club and a Leading Shipbuilder.

William H. Fletcher, Vice President of the W. & A. Fletcher Company, North River Iron Works, and President of the Consolidated Iron Works of Hoboken, N. J., died at his residence, 777 West End Avenue, on Wednesday at noon, after a brief illness. Mr. Fletcher was a well-known engineer and shipbuilder, the firm of which he was Vice President having built many of the largest and most important steamships, steamboats, and steam yachts in the country.

He was a leading member of the Engineers' Club, and served as its President for several terms, and was largely instrumental in having the present club building erected. Mr. Fletcher for many years was Vice President of Webb's Academy and Home for Shipbuilders. He was Secretary of the Robert Fulton Memorial Association, and a member of the American Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Engineers' Club and the New York Yacht Club. Mr. Fletcher died in his 56th year, and a widow, daughter, and two sons survive him.

SUFFRAGIST HITS AT FLIRTS.

Mrs. McCulloch Tells of a Girl Lobbyist Who Hurt the Cause.

ST. LOUIS, April 2.—Mrs. Catherine Waugh McCulloch of Evanston, Ill., to-day told the Mississippi Valley Suffrage Conference that women who marched in suffrage parades should not trust too implicitly in the chivalry of American men. She said girl marchers should have chaperons.

Mrs. McCulloch told of a girl who went to Springfield, Ill., to lobby for the cause. She sat on the sofa with a member of the Legislature, and other members of the House observed that he flirted with her. That injured the cause, said Mrs. McCulloch, and it was necessary to caution the young lobbyist against sitting on sofas with legislators.

SAYS FINLAY OFFER DIDN'T MOVE HIM

Friedmann Asserts He Didn't Know of $1,000,000 Reward for Cure Until His Arrival.

NO ONE CAN SPEAK FOR HIM

Angered by Reports That He Seeks to Commercialize Vaccine, He Denies Interviews Attributed to "Friends."

Angered by reports which have cropped up here from time to time that he was attempting to make money from the vaccine which he says will cure tuberculosis, and insinuations made by some persons that it was the offer of Charles E. Finlay, President of the Aetna National Bank, of $1,000,000 for such a cure which brought him to this country, Dr. Friedrich Franz Friedmann, the Berlin physician, issued a statement yesterday in which he said that he had no friends authorized to speak for him in this country. He said he had been misrepresented and that he thought he had been deceived regarding the Finlay offer. This last assertion came after he had said that he did not know of the offer until he arrived here. Replying to a suggestion that perhaps there were others who had known of the offer before he sailed, and, knowing of it, had urged him to come here, figuring upon profiting by the commercial exploitation of his vaccine, Dr. Friedmann said that if this was true it was a great misfortune.

Dr. Friedmann made this statement in his apartment in the Ansonia. He spoke in German most of the time, but lapsed into English frequently. Once he admonished one of his assistants who seemed amused by something that was said, that it was "no laughing matter for him." It was thought significant of a change in Dr. Friedmann's attitude toward his associates that Dr. Arthur Friedmann, his brother, moved yesterday from the seventh to the second floor of the Ansonia. He has not had any apparent part in the affairs of his brother for several days. It was reported that Dr. Friedmann intended to dispense with one of his assistants.

"Many stories have appeared regarding my relations with Mr. Finlay," said Dr. Friedmann. "They are lies. No man in the world has paid me a cent since I sailed for New York. I want this distinctly understood for the report has been the basis for many lies. Mr. Finlay never offered me $1,000,000 while I was in Europe. I never knew of the offer when I came to America. It was after I came here that I received Mr. Finlay's offer and I have rejected it.

"I pay all the expenses of the trip myself and for the gentlemen who accompanied me to America. No one in the world has the right to represent me in this country. The fact that it has been believed that I have representatives, is a thing I bitterly regret and the report has been a misfortune to me."

Dr. Friedmann faced about sharply at this point and bringing one hand down upon another, said: "I have no representatives and in the future I am going to prove it. I am Dr. Friedmann and I am acting for myself.

"I was led to this country by no offer of money. I came here upon the request of hundreds of American physicians who cabled me: 'Come and teach us your cure and how to administer it.' It was that which led me to come and not a desire to commercialize my discovery. I had determined to come to America before I received the offer of Mr. Finlay to treat his son-in-law. I have not treated Mr. Paris nor have I treated any private patients."

When Dr. Friedmann was asked whether he intended to abandon the Seton Hospital clinic because he considered the Government was picking hopeless cases with a view to discrediting his vaccine, he said that he had not abandoned the tests or criticised the Government's physicians. An afternoon newspaper said yesterday: "'Dr. Friedmann,' said one of his friends, 'feels that the Government doctors have gone too far in their natural desire to ascertain if Dr. Friedmann's serum is a real cure.'"

"I have no friends!" Dr. Friedmann shouted when this was shown to him. "I am Dr. Friedmann and I have no representatives except my cultures. No one is authorized to speak for me. From this time on it will be understood that Dr. Friedmann only is representing Dr. Friedmann. It is part of my character to look after my own affairs, and I could not have progressed so far as I have had I not that character."

While Dr. Friedmann was speaking to the reporters, representatives of drug concerns which seek to control the sale of the Friedmann vaccine in this country were in the lobby of the Ansonia. On a settee near by was Dr. Arthur Friedmann, brother of the Berlin physician. Before going for an automobile ride in the Park Dr. Friedmann said:

"I have read in the newspapers that children should not be allowed to receive my treatment; that the treatment is injurious to them. In answer to that I will say that eighteen months ago I treated 350 new-born children. To-day they are all normal and in the best of health."

Regarding the report that Drs. Pirkowski and A. Mueller had discovered what they said was a tuberculosis treatment similar to that of Dr. Friedmann, the specialist said: "They have nothing similar to the 'cure' I use. There are only two people in the world who know what the Friedmann treatment is. They are Dr. Schleich of Berlin and me."

Dr. Friedmann was asked about a report that he intended to depart from this country at once because of pique over his treatment here.

"I shall leave this country when I consider my mission accomplished, and not before," he replied.

SELLS PIORKOWSKI SERUM.

Pittsburgh Doctor Says No Law Bars Tuberculosis Remedy.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 2.—Dr. Austin B. Heid of this city is sending the Piorkowski tuberculosis serum throughout the country. He has not sought permission because, he says, such a thing is not necessary. The serum is being distributed in Pittsburgh and some of it has gone to California.

Large quantities of serum cultures have been shipped from the Piorkowski laboratories in Berlin to Dr. Heid.

"I really am not marketing the Piorkowski serum," said Dr. Heid to-night. "I've been sending it to physicians in various parts of the country who have written to me asking for cultures for experimental purposes. It is not my intention to make money through placing the serum on the market. My purpose is to do all I can for humanity. For what I have distributed I have charged the cost price, with a little added for the time I spent in preparing it for shipment. But I have not sought the permission of any one to send this cure to reputable physicians. No permission is needed."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2. — Surgeon General Rupert Blue of the Bureau of Public Health said to-night that he had no information concerning the marketing of the Piorkowski serum. Dr. Blue said the law did not forbid the manufacture and sale of any alleged specific so long as it remained within the State where it was manufactured, and there was nothing to show that Dr. A. B. Heid, who was reported to be using the serum in Pittsburgh, was sending it across State lines. If the serum is to be used in inter-State commerce, said Dr. Blue, it must be passed upon by Government experts.

FAMILY LEAVE ROME WITH MORGAN'S BODY

Italian Capital in Mourning as Party Starts in Special Cars to Catch Steamer.

TAKE LA FRANCE SATURDAY

Simple Services Held in Hotel—Kaiser Sends Wreath—Doctors' Story of Illness.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, April 2.—The body of J. Pierpont Morgan was conveyed from the Grand Hotel here this afternoon and placed aboard a special car attached to the Simplon express, which left Rome at 6:15 o'clock this evening for Havre. The body will be transferred to the steamer France, sailing from Havre for New York on Saturday.

The baggage car containing the body was draped in black and gold, and the coffin was completely hidden under a great bank of flowers and floral emblems which had been sent by friends of Mr. Morgan in various parts of Europe. A private sleeping car also was attached to the express train, and was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mr. Morgan's son-in-law and daughter, and Miss Helen Hamilton, his granddaughter.

The final arrangements for the journey were not decided upon until noon, as the family was uncertain whether to convey the body to Naples or Havre for embarkation for New York. Finally it was decided to proceed to Havre and take the steamer France.

Complicated legal formalities were necessary to allow the body to pass through Switzerland and France, and special permits were required. Paris representatives of the Morgan firm who are here telegraphed personally to President Poincaré, and without awaiting a reply, which they assumed would be favorable, the family decided to take the body to Havre, risking any difficulties that might arise at the frontier.

Preparations for the journey were interrupted unexpectedly during the afternoon by the arrival of the German Ambassador carrying a large wreath sent by the German Emperor. This was placed upon the massive coffin beside the many other magnificent floral tributes.

All Rome seemed to be in mourning when the hearse bearing the body left the Grand Hotel for the railway station. Flags on numerous buildings fluttered at half-staff, and a throng of people gathered in the streets near by the hotel.

Thirty municipal policemen sent by Mayor Nathan, and thirty military policemen from the Home Office lined the small square wherein the hotel stands. Those in the party accompanying the body to the railway station were Mr. and Mrs. Satterlee, Miss Hamilton, Mr. O'Brien, the American Ambassador; Dr. Dixon, Dr. Starr, and Prof. Bastianelli.

The coffin bore the inscription: "Johu Pierpont Morgan; Born 1837; Died March, 1913."

The automobile containing members of the family was driven by Mr. Morgan's favorite chauffeur, who had a mourning band on his arm. The man appeared to be overcome by grief.

Another great throng of people was encountered at the station. These represented all classes of inhabitants of Rome, and all stood with heads uncovered as the coffin was borne to the train.

Memorial services for Mr. Morgan will be held next Sunday at the American Protestant Church in Rome. All Americans here have been invited to attend.

DOCTORS' STORY OF ILLNESS.

Say Mr. Morgan's Health Was Impaired When He Left New York.

ROME, April 2.—A simple funeral service was held this morning in the chamber of the hotel where Mr. Morgan died. Only the relatives, a few intimate friends of the family, and official representatives were present. The coffin reposed in a bower of flowers. The Rev. Mr. Nelson, rector of the American Episcopal Church in Rome, performed the service.

By an odd coincidence the bell of the Church of Santa Maria degli Angeli, nearby, rang at the time, appropriately joining in the service for the man who had often admired its majestic arches.

Beside Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee and Miss Helen M. Hamilton stood Thomas J. O'Brien, United States Ambassador, and Mrs. O'Brien; Prof. Giuseppe Bastianelli, Dr. Allen M. Starr, and Dr. George A. Dixon, the three physicians who had attended Mr. Morgan; Mrs. Woodworth of New York, and Charles Lanier of New York.

The German Emperor sent a message of condolence to Mrs. Morgan to-day as follows:

> Accept the expression of my sincerest sympathy in your great bereavement. Your husband's death is a loss not only for you, your family, and your country, but his many friends in all parts of the world shall never forget him.

Just before the departure of the train the French Consul arrived bringing a beautiful wreath from the city of Aix-les-Bains. It bore the French tri-color and an appropriate inscription.

The physicians who were in attendance on Mr. Morgan issued the following official statement to-day:

> When Mr. Morgan left New York he was a very tired man, physically and mentally. Digestion and nutrition were impaired. It was hoped that his usual trip to Egypt would be of great benefit, giving him rest and building up the nervous force, especially as he had no organic disease. His appetite, however, failed, and consequently his strength and weight did not improve.
>
> Mr. Morgan contracted a severe cold while in Egypt, which further weakened him. A state of mental depression and feebleness developed. He arrived at Cairo in a very run-down condition, but during three weeks in Cairo he improved mentally and physically, his powers of concentration and memory showing no impairment. The trip to Rome did not fatigue him, and he continued to gain slowly for ten days.
>
> A week before his death his strength began to fail. He was put to bed Wednesday afternoon, March 26. He became delirious, and extreme exhaustion followed. This continued until Sunday evening, when he passed into a state of coma. He died at 12:05 P. M., Monday.

BOLOGNA, Italy, Thursday, April 3.—The train conveying the body of J. Pierpont Morgan passed through here at 3 o'clock this morning. Officials were at the station, but did not disturb the mourners, who were resting.

At Florence the train was met by the American Consul and representatives of the municipal authorities, who offered their services to Mr. and Mrs. Satterlee.

PARIS, April 2.—All the usual formalities respecting the transportation of bodies through France have been waived by the French Foreign Office in connection with the body of J. Pierpont Morgan at the request of the French Ambassador to Italy. A special train is to be made up at Dijon and will arrive at Paris on Friday. It will pass around the city on the circular railway in order to join the line running to Havre without the necessity of transferring the coffin from one train to another.

PRAISE FOR J. P. MORGAN, JR.

London Times Says He Is Well Versed in Money Conditions Abroad.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—The London Times, in an article discussing the Morgan firm, says:

"Although Mr. Morgan's commanding personality cannot be replaced, his death will cause no difficulty, since the possibility of the worst result of his ill-health must have been taken into account and arrangements made beforehand. The simple fact that it has not been found necessary to make any changes whatever in the firm speaks volumes for his calm confidence in his successors."

After referring to J. P. Morgan, Jr., as a man of proved ability, The Times says:

"It is in him whom the British public will take the greatest degree of interest. Indeed, the eyes of financiers all over the world are fixed upon him, and there are indications that in what they expect of him they will not be disappointed."

Speaking of the thorough and intimate knowledge of London money and Stock Exchange conditions which J. P. Morgan, Jr., acquired during his training in London, The Times says:

"This is a branch wherein American bankers, as a rule, are defective, and their ignorance of London conditions sometimes leads to confusion. In view of the fact that its development is comparatively new, a country like the United States requires all the capital available, and American bankers do not have an opportunity of studying international finance as do the bankers of London and Paris, where capital is readily available for foreign loans. J. P. Morgan, Jr., enjoys a reputation for qualities of quickness and decision which he inherits from his father and grandfather."

FUNERAL AT ST. GEORGE'S.

Morgan Services to be Held in This City—Burial at Hartford.

Wall Street was draped with flags hung at half-staff from nearly every building, in respect to the memory of J. P. Morgan, yesterday when the brief funeral services were being held over the body of the financier in Rome. At the front door of the Drexel Building, at Broad and Wall Streets, the headquarters of J. P. Morgan & Co., a card announced that the offices were closed on account of the death of the head of the firm, although, as on the preceding day, a small force of office workers was kept employed within on the routine work of the day.

There, after a conference with J. P. Morgan, Jr., who went to the office for a short time, Henry P. Davison gave out a brief statement, to the effect that the funeral services would be held at St. George's Church, of which Mr. Morgan was a member, and that the burial would take place at the Cedar Hill Cemetery in Hartford, Conn., in which city Mr. Morgan was born and where the Morgan family plot is situated. The time of the services and the burial, Mr. Davison said, depended entirely on the arrangements made in Italy for sending the body back to this country, arrangements concerning which the office of J. P. Morgan & Co. had not yet received definite information.

Stock Exchange Memorial To-day.

At the Metropolitan Museum of Art no information could be gathered as to the probable disposal of Mr. Morgan's great loan collection of art works there. The life-sized portrait of him, painted by Carlos Baca Flor, remained at the head of the main stairway, where it was viewed by many visitors. It was announced at the Museum that the exhibition of Mr. Morgan's paintings, which had been temporarily withdrawn after the news of his death was received, would be opened again on Sunday, to continue on view indefinitely. This decision was reached at the suggestion of J. P. Morgan, Jr., speaking for himself and his sister, Miss Anne Morgan, and other members of the family. Mr. Morgan added that he felt his father would not have wished to close the exhibition. The Museum itself will be closed to the public on the day of Mr. Morgan's funeral.

The New York Stock Exchange probably will be closed in the afternoon of the day of Mr. Morgan's funeral, although, pending receipt of definite information as to the arrangements for bringing the body back to this country, no action has been taken by the Governors of the Exchange. The Chamber of Commerce meeting to-day will take the form of a memorial gathering in respect to Mr. Morgan, who was a member of the body for more than fifty years and served four terms as one of its Vice Presidents. Addresses will be made by Senator Elihu Root, Joseph H. Choate, Seth Low, and Robert W de Forest, and memorial resolutions will be presented by Frank A. Vanderlip, President of the National City Bank.

Resolutions were adopted by the Board of Directors of the New York Central at a special meeting held yesterday, voicing the respect of tnat body for the memory of Mr. Morgan, who was a member of the board. A resolution of regret was adopted also by the Directors of the National City Bank at a special meeting.

It was rumored yesterday that J. P. Morgan, Jr., probably would succeed his father as a Director of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, and that prominent associates of his father were strongly in favor of the son's accepting places left vacant on a large number of boards.

Director of Many Railroads.

This succession would not be possible in the case of the United States Steel Corporation, since J. P. Morgan, Jr., has been a member of its Board of Directors for several years. In addition to the New York, New Haven & Hartford, other railroads of which J. P. Morgan, Sr., was a Director are, the New York Central, the Big Four, the Lake Shore, the Lake Erie & Western, and the New York, Ontario & Western. Mr. Morgan was not a member of the Northern Pacific, but his son is. J. P. Morgan, Jr., represents the interests of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. in the National Bank of Commerce and the National City Bank. His father was a Director also of the First National Bank.

A special meeting of the Trustees of the American Museum of Natural History probably will be called in a few days, at which resolutions of respect to the memory of Mr. Morgan will be adopted. While Mr. Morgan had no loan collections at this museum, such as that at the Museum of Art, he had presented many collections to the museum, and was among its largest benefactors.

Mr. Morgan's Italian Decorations.

Agostino de Biasi, editor of L'Araldo Italiano, described yesterday the honors conferred by the King of Italy on J. P. Morgan and the ranks to which they entitled him.

"It has been published," he said, "that the King of Italy made Mr. Morgan a member of two orders, one of which carried with it the privilege of addressing the King as 'cousin.' This is not true. Victor Emmanuel III. conferred the Great Cross of Sts. Mauritius and Lazarus upon Mr. Morgan when he gave back to Italy the cope of Ascoli. This is a great honor, which is conferred only upon those persons who have distinguished themselves in civil or military careers, in science, art, literature, commerce, and especially in philanthropies.

"There are only sixty persons who have this honor. Those, however, are not considered 'cousins' of his Majesty. Cousins of the King are only the Chevaliers of the Order of St. Annunziata."

PRINCESSES LOSE MILLIONS.

Belgian Court Withholds $12,500,000 from Leopold's Daughters.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

BRUSSELS, April 2.—The Court of Appeal has delivered final judgment regarding the $12,500,000 of the late King Leopold's estate claimed from the Belgian Government by his daughters, the Princesses Louise and Stephanie.

The court dismissed the appeal, in spite of the advice of the Public Prosecutor to the contrary.

This places Princess Louise, who is overwhelmed with debts, in a disastrous situation.

The suit was concerned with the entire Congo property of the King. Recently the Princesses rejected the proposals of the Minister of Justice that they take $7,500,000 as their share. The property will now go to the State and the Niederfulbach Foundation.

Whne the Congo Free State, Created by King Leopold, was turned over by him by the Belgian Government in 1908 the latter declined to ratify the transfer unless the King included in it his personal holdings in the Congo. He yielded, and in his will provided for his daughters by a bequest of $3,000,000. He also created, in Germany, the Niederfulbach trust, placing in the hands of Trustees securities worth about $12,000,000. These at the time of his death were in Brussels and were seized by the Government. It was to recover this vast sum that the two Princesses brought suit, retaining G. G. Archibald, an American lawyer resident in Paris, to look after their interests.

ISN'T PUSHING GAYNOR BOOM

L. A. Ames Deprecates the Attack on District Attorney Whitman.

Trouble developed yesterday in the Committee of Fourteen which was organized to further the renomination and re-election of Mayor Gaynor. Louis Annin Ames, who was named as Chairman of the committee, in a circular issued the day before, and which contained an attack upon District Attorney Whitman, denied that he is Chairman or even a member of the committee. He said he told the organizers that he would wait and see who joined the committee and what they intended to do.

"I was asked to become a member of this committee," he said, "and later I was asked to become Chairman, and invited to contribute to its support. In each case I replied that I must know more of what the committee proposed to do. I will have no connection with anybody that indulges in senseless, unbridled and uncalled for attacks upon men in public office who have done honest, clean service for the community, whether the men be Whitman, Mayor Gaynor, or anybody else.

"As a matter of fact, there is no man in this city who has a higher opinion of Whitman than I have, and at the same time I think the Mayor has done good work in his administration. I think it is wrong to attack either of them. I am not a member of this committee, and I don't know that I shall be. Men whom I know have asked me to join it, saying that its idea was to reward the men who made the subways possible, but I am out of it, and I am sorry that my name has ever been mentioned in connection with it."

HOLDUP IN GRAND CENTRAL.

Woonsocket Merchant Accuses Man Police Caught with $732.

A man who described himself as Henry Sacks, a salesman, but who refused to give his address, was locked up in the East Fifty-first Street Station late yesterday afternoon by Detective McDonald of Inspector Cahalan's staff on a charge of assault and robbery. Carmel Pouliot, a merchant of Woonsocket, R. I., complained that the prisoner assaulted and robbed him of $732 in money in the waiting room of the Grand Central Terminal. The police say this amount was found on the prisoner. A few hours after he had been placed in a cell a large touring car with five well-dressed men drove up to the station house and asked if they could bail Sacks out.

The police say Sacks asked Pouliot to see if he had all of his money, and when the merchant pulled his money from his pocket, Sacks struck him in the face, grabbed the money and ran. Two railroad detectives gave chase. Sacks darted into the lobby of the BBlmont Hotel, followed by the detectives and a crowd. He left by the Park Avenue entrance, where he was caught a few feet away and attacked by the crowd, who beat him up so badly that an ambulance was summoned from Flower Hospital and a surgeon dressed his wounds.

Odell Declines Sulzer Appointment.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., April 2.—Ex-Gov. Odell to-day sent a letter to Gov. Sulzer declining the appointment as a Trustee of Washington headquarters. Mr. Odell gives the pressure of private business as a reason for his declining the honor.

LAST RAILWAY CUT; CAIRO IN REAL PERIL

River Still Rising and People Must Flee in Boats if the Levee Breaks.

36 SOLDIERS SWEPT AWAY

Floating Down Mississippi on Dyke—Dayton Would Borrow $40,000,000 from Government.

CAIRO, Ill., April 2.—With the highest flood waters passing Cairo in the Ohio River to-night, the city is in a state of expectancy never experienced here before. The river gauge at 6:30 o'clock stood at 54.4 and rising—a stage three-tenths higher than any prior record. Almost every hour brought reports of trouble in other cities. Capt. S. A. Martin, regimental quartermaster, and Capt. H. A. Jamieson of the Sixth Missouri National Guard, were rescued in a launch from a section of levee which broke away at Bird Point, Mo., just below here. Thirty-six of their men, they say, are on the levee section, which is 200 yards long and ten feet wide, and is floating down the Mississippi.

Commander McMunn of the Naval Reserves has embarked in a steam launch and has started to rescue the Missouri soldiers. A pilot who understands the river course has been taken to guide the reserves. There is a swift current and the safety of the guardsmen is causing much worry to their commanding officers. The regiment is on military duty in Bird Point, which has been threatened with inundation for several days.

Traffic on the main line of the Illinois Central Railroad was paralyzed to-day because of a washout of the tracks between Cairo Junction and the Cache River in the drainage district. The Seminole Limited, southbound from St. Louis, and the Panama Limited, from Chicago, were unable to pass. The stretch of submerged property is four miles long. Several hundred feet of track has been washed out. Hurried orders were sent for supplies and men. It is said the road can get none of its traffic into Cairo for several days. That may prevent Cairo from getting further supplies of sand. There is a sandbar in the Mississippi here, but the quality is not god for use on the levees.

Struggle to Hold Levees.

The weather is fair and warm and the work of reinforcing the leveees is proceeding vigorously.

A hundred negroes who had failed to go to Police Headquarters to register excuses for not reporting for work, were taken to the headquarters of Col. Moriarty and most of them were set swinging sandbags.

The inundation of the Drainage District north of Cairo is complete. The waters are on a level with those in the Ohio, and are prevented from flowing into the Mississippi only by the Mobile & Ohio levee. From seven thousand to nine thousand acres are from seven to twenty feet under water. Most of the industrial plants in the section are submerged to second story windows. Many houses are completely under water.

The Big Four Railroad was the first to go out of commission. Since then the Illinois Central, the Mobile & Ohio, and the Iron Mountain have been cut off. That made the tie-up of railroad traffic into this city complete. In case of a break in the levee here, the only means of escape for the inhabitants would be by boats.

The supply of food has become a problem. Food conditions to date have been good, but if the tie-up of trains continues for two days, the situation will be greatly changed. No suffering has been reported.

Safety Measures for Cairo.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., April 2.—Following communication with the War Department, Gov. Dunne to-day delegated Adjt. Gen. Dickson as Illinois' representative to whom direct communication should be sent concerning the care of flood refugees and the distribution of supplies. Gen. Dickson has accepted the offer of the Illinois Fish Commission's steamboat Illinois. He will establish headquarters at Cairo.

Lieut. Col. C. E. Ryam, FourthInfantry, telephoned to Gen. Dickson from Cairo at noon that the water, which had not risen last night, began rising at 6 A. M. He said Mr. Miller, the Government engineer in Cairo, thought the stage would reach 57 feet, but it was believed the levee would hold.

DAYTON'S DEATH ROLL 83.

City Plans to Borrow $40,000,000 from the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, April 2.—Business men of this city are urging a plan by which it is hoped to borrow $40,000,000 from the Government to be used in the restoration of Dayton. It is proposed to offer as security for the loan $60,000,000 of banking and building loan collateral.

Assurances that additional food supplies are on the way here have relieved the anxiety concerning a famine. There was no reduction in the distribution of staples to the bread lines to-day.

Reports from the hospitals indicate that conditions of health are comparatively favorable. There are five diphtheria and two scarlet fever cases and one of pneumonia in the ward for contagious diseases at the Miami Valley Hospital. Thirty cases of adults and children are under observation in the National Cash Register Relief Hospital.

A revised list of the known dead, containing eighty-three names, was issued to-day by Coroner J. W. McKemy, who clings to the belief that at least 200 persons perished in the flood. Many bodies, he says, have geen buried by undertakers who have not reported to him. He is of the opinion that others will be found in the wreckage.

Death List in Columbus is 80.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, April 2.—The number of bodies recovered in the West Side wreckage left by the receding floods in the Scioto River had climbed to eighty to-night. Coroner Benkert said he estimated that at least 125 would be found. All but three of those recovered have been identified.

Although the city is fast regaining normal conditions, relief stations are filled nightly. Gov. Cox and the State Relief Commission conferred to-day regarding further alleviation of conditions. It is planned to tour the State to determine what relief is necessary. The commission left here at 3 P. M. for Springfield. It next will go to Dayton, Hamilton, Cincinnati, Ohio River towns, and points in the Muskingum Valley. Reconstructive legislation then will be planned. Miss Mabel Boardman, Secretary of the Red Cross Society, started for New York.

Help Call from Chillicothe.

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio, April 2.—The Relief Committee sent out to-day an appeal for financial aid in caring for the 4,000 persons who lost almost everything they possessed in the recent flood. The loss to citizens will run over a million dollars.

MONEY NEEDED IN INDIANA.

Much Suffering Along the Lower Ohio and the Wabash.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 2.—Hundreds of thousands of dollars are needed to relieve suffering among the flood refugees here, the relief committee reports. Three thousand families have lost all or part of their house furnishings. It was decided to-day to start popular subscriptions.

Appeals from the State poured in on Gov. Ralston. Terre Haute sent a committee asking that $75,000 be appropriated to help rebuild the houses devastated by the tornado which preceded the floods. Peru and Logansport also asked State aid. The Governor said he would request the Red Cross to learn just what help was needed.

Suffering Along the Wabash.

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 2.—Lower Ohio River flood relief work was centred here to-day. The river's stage was 47.5 feet, within three-tenths of the 1884 stage, and rising steadily. Mayor Heilman estimated 400 families of this city had been driven from their homes. Conditions are improved at Shawneetown.

Urgent telephone messages from the observer at Mount Vernon, Ind., picture the desperate condition of Wabash River flood victims in the neighborhood of Maunie and Grand Haven, Ill., scores of whom, without food, have been fighting for existence against the water since Sunday. Capt. W. K. Naylor fitted out a boat to be sent to Shawneetown and points on the Wabash.

OHIO FALLS AT LOUISVILLE.

Inhabitants Fleeing from Lowlands in Western Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, April 2.—The Ohio was falling here to-night at a little more than a tenth of a foot in twelve hours. At 7 o'clock the stage was 44.9. Salvage corps are keeping watch at several big distillery warehouses in danger of collapse. The receding waters have disclosed weakened foundations under many houses. Policemen are patroling the imperilled sections in boats. A large warehouse of the Rugby Distillery Company collapsed late last night, releasing to the river 5,000 barrels of whiskey, valued at a quarter million dollars.

Western Kentucky points continued to report rising water to-night. Owensboro, Henderson, and Wickliffe were centres of refuge for inhabitants of the lowlands fleeing before the crest of the flood.

Flood Spreading Over Paducah.

PADUCAH, Ky., April 2.—The flood situation here is growing worse hourly. At 7 o'clock to-night the first floors of all wholesale houses and many retail stores were inundated. The river rose a foot and a half to-day, going to a stage of 52.2 feet. The forecast is for four feet more of water. Should that occur only five blocks in the city would be out of water.

Lieut. S. B. Buckner, Jr., U. S. A., and two non-commissioned officers commandeered to-day the steamer Rapids and every power boat they could get, and with three barges started for Cairo.

Small wooden buildings have been erected hastily on the western edge of the city and are occupied as the water rises. There are rations for 10,000 persons for ten days.

WEDS IN SPITE OF FLOOD.

Indianapolis Girl, Driven from Home, Married in Y. W. C. A.

INDIANAPOLIS, April 2.—Though the flood that filled her home forced her among the refugees, Miss Ethel Krouse of 968 West Pearl Street did not permit it to postpone her wedding. Miss Krouse, who is 18 years old, and Christian Anderson, 21, had set the date of their marriage for 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They were married according to schedule.

The ceremony was performed in the Young Women's Christian Association with many friends present. To the bride, who had been sheltered there, was given a complete trousseau to replace the one lost in the flood. It was the first wedding in the Y. W. C. A. quarters, and the members made the most of it.

Chippewa in Flood in Wisconsin.

CHIPPEWA FALLS, Wis., April 2.—The Chippewa River is raging. Ice has formed a dam a mile above the city and another fifteen miles above. Heavy rains in the night increased streams until the water overflowed the banks, and much surrounding country was submerged. The immediate danger is expected in the cities.

FLOOD TOWNS ASK FOR MORE AID

Need of Money Is Still Urgent, with 100,000 Persons to be Fed in Dayton Alone.

RED CROSS FUND $420,511

Mayor Has Collected $111,059—Mayor of Omaha Sends $3,000 Here to Aid the Flood Sufferers.

Messages received here yesterday from the flood districts in Ohio and other States showed that relief was still needed there. A telegram came from Dayton, Ohio, to the offices of the National Cash Register Company in this city which said there were some 100,000 persons in that town who must be fed for an indefinite period. The telegram asserted that the city's food supply would last three days and that there was urgent need for assistance. At the time the message was sent, the last car in the last New York relief train was being unloaded.

Catlettsburg, Ky., through J. J. Montague, the Mayor, sent this brief appeal to Mayor Gaynor yesterday: "Ohio flood has placed us in desperate condition. Help us."

The Mayor forwarded this appeal to the Red Cross authorities at Washington and asked them to attend to it. The Mayor also notified Robert W. de Forest, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Mayor's Flood Relief Committee in this city. Later in the afternoon the Mayor received this telegram:

> The Mayor, New York:
> Situation in Dayton appalling. Financial help urgently needed at once to feed and clothe and re-establish our people in their homes. Thousands of homes have been entirely destroyed. Sanitary problem very serious and will involve great expense. We are compelled to feed the entire population, as the supplies of our local grocers are practically exhausted. Send remittances to W. F. Bippus, Secretary-Treasurer Dayton Citizens' Relief Committee.
> JOHN H. PATTERSON,
> Chairman of Dayton Citizens' Relief Committee.

This resolution was passed yesterday by the Trustees of the American Museum of Safety. It will be forwarded at once to John H. Patterson, President of the National Cash Register Company at Dayton, Ohio, in recognition of his heroic work among the flood sufferers:

> Resolved, That the Trustees of the American Museum of Safety by formal resolution desire to express their esteem and appreciation of the civic heroism and the unselfish devotion of John Henry Patterson, President of the National Cash Register Company, one of the gold medalists of the Museum this year, in placing himself, his family, and his factory unstintedly in the service of rescuing, sheltering, and feeding the afflicted in the great flood catastrophe overwhelming the City of Dayton. The Trustees, furthermore, feel that this unselfish devotion and patriotic social service, typical of a long life devoted to social welfare, should not be accepted by the Museum for the public in silence.
> This resolution is ordered spread upon the minutes and copy sent to Mr. Patterson.

More subscriptions to aid the flood sufferers were received here yesterday, and as fast as possible the money was distributed. The total fund received by the Red Cross, including money taken in yesterday, was $420,511. This included the Mayor's fund up to Tuesday night amounting to $108,740, and $3,325 which was turned over by the New York Cotton Exchange. The Red Cross Uptown Fund amounted to $7,172. By telegraph, $60,000 was sent to Washington yesterday, making $385,000 sent out for flood relief by the Red Cross authorities here. The fund of the Merchants' Association was increased by $3,000 yesterday. The total amount collected by the association was $65,415.

Alton B. Parker, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee for the Instant Relief of the Flood Sufferers, announced yesterday that the Governor of Illinois had telegraphed $3,000, and Mayor Dahlman of Omaha the same amount, for immediate distribution in isolated districts in the flooded territory. With $4,310, the amount received yesterday, the Mayor's fund now amounts to $111,059.

Three contributions of $25 or more, were received by agencies here yesterday.

ELECTRICITY KILLS STUDENT ON BRIDGE

Yale Man Making Measurement for Lawsuit Death Case Struck and He Falls to Tracks.

CLASSMATE BELOW BURNED

Unable to Let Go His End of the Steel Tape Which Crosses the Live Wires.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., April 2.—Edward J. Fogarty of Elm Street, New Haven, a civil engineering student at Yale University, was instantly killed here to-day by electricity and a fall from the Division Street bridge over the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. He was using a steel tape line to measure the height of the wires which transmitted the power to the electric trains. His classmate, Donald E. Brockett of 119 College Place, New Haven, was standing directly beneath him between the rails, and he is in the New Rochelle Hospital suffering from deep electric burns of the legs and hands.

The two young men were employed by C. S. Hamilton, a New Haven lawyer, to take measurements in relation to an accident in which an engineer was killed by electricity on his own engine when his head touched the charged wires. The measurements were to be used as evidence against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad Company.

Hamilton was standing on the bridge directing Fogarty and Brockett. Fogarty stood on the stone abutment of the bridge holding one end of the steel tape, while Brockett held the other end to the ground between the rails. Hamilton told Coroner William H. Livingston of New Rochelle, who investigated the accident, that Fogarty let the steel tape slacken and the wind carried the slack against one of the wires which passed beneath the bridge, carrying eleven thousand volts. There was a flash of flame, and Fogarty threw up his hands and plunged head first to the rock ballasted roadbed, twenty feet below. His skull was fractured and he died, beside Brockett, who was painfully injured, and was still grasping the sputtering tape, of which he could not let go, the upper end being looped over the live wires. Policeman Kiernan ran down the railroad embankment and, using a newspaper, which he had in his pocket, as an insulator, he snatched the steel tape from Brockett's hand.

Kiernan got a shock but was able to help carry Brockett to the ambulance, which took him to the New Rochelle Hospital. The accident was witnessed by 100 women and college girls who were on the station platform 200 feet away, bound for the theatres in New York City.

Taits Safe in Dayton.

Frank M. Tait, President of the Dayton Light and Power Company, was reported missing in the flood in Dayton, Ohio, but the New York Edison Company received word from Vice President Lieb yesterday that he had found the Tait family marooned on the second floor of their home, where they had been held for two days. Mr. Tait wired to Secretary Martin of the National Electric Light Association that he and his family had a narrow escape, but were all right.

The Fashion Plate Is a Comma

¶ The trouble is that most makers of clothes regard the fashion plate as a full stop or period.

¶ We regard it as a beginning and not a finale.

¶ A fashion plate at Saks' is an idea with a comma after it.

¶ It is half a thought, a suggestion, a preface, an outline, a scenario, a simple how-do-you-do in the pour-parlers of fashion.

¶ Give most makers of men's clothes a fashion plate, and presto! their problems are solved.

¶ Give us a fashion plate and we will drag it out of its wooden anonymity and give it a local habitation and a name!!

¶ Of course if you seek merely good clothes, tailored in serviceable fabrics and on perfectly conventional lines, we are not the only tailoring establishment available.

¶ But if you seek individuality, distinction, style, and the satisfaction which these things afford, you must come to us.

MRS. PANKHURST HER OWN LAWYER

Trial on Charge of Inciting Arson Begun—True Bill Found Against Miss Hocken.

PASS 'HUNGER STRIKE' BILL

Measure to Permit Rearrest After Release is Read a Second Time in the House of Commons.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, April 3.—In moving the second reading of the bill to deal with recalcitrant suffragettes yesterday in the House of Commons Home Secretary McKenna mentioned publicity as the keynote of the militant propaganda.

The suffragettes cannot complain of lack of publicity to-day, for columns upon columns of the newspapers are filled with their doings. First is Mrs. Pankhurst's trial at the Old Bailey, and then the debate in Parliament on Mr. McKenna's bill.

Throughout yesterday the streets were paraded with files of sandwichmen, whose placards called Mr. McKenna's bill, in the phrase created by Mrs. Pankhurst, the "Cat and Mouse Bill." "Englishwomen Being Tortured in Prison," ran other placards. "Englishmen, Stop It!"

Mr. McKenna proposes to release hunger strikers on licenses as soon as they are in danger of total collapse, and to rearrest them on their recovery, repeating the process as often as is necessary to compel them to serve their full sentences in prison.

The discussion of the bill was on non-partisan lines. Mr. McKenna, in moving the second reading, said the suffragettes had adopted the hunger strike as a method of publicity. They shocked the public by the violence of their outrages, and then attempted to enlist sympathy by tales of suffering. He had been charged with want of courage because he did not risk letting hunger strikers starve, but he could not see what evidence of courage there was in taking a risk at the expense of another person's life.

He admitted that forcible feeding was a most objectionable practice, but said that at present if he released one of these prisoners it meant the remission of the sentence. Under the new bill he could do that without remission.

The Home Secretary said he desired to be able to employ feeding where necessary, but it was not his intention to use that power in the case of ordinary prisoners sentenced for window-breaking and obstruction. It would only be employed after repeated offenses where there was danger to the public if the prisoner were released.

Lord Robert Cecil, one of the ablest supporters of women's suffrage in the House, likened the powers of the Home Secretary under the bill to those of Louis XVI. of France when he ordered prisoners to the Bastille. It would, he said, bring the criminal law into contempt. "My remedy is deportation," said Lord Robert, and, amid laughter, he suggested that if Mr. McKenna would resign and get him appointed Home Secretary he would end the trouble.

"What would Lord Robert do if women adopted the hunger strike on the voyage?" was asked.

Lord Robert inquired of the Speaker how far he was to be cross-examined, and Mr. Lowther told the members they had better wait till the noble Lord brought in his own bill.

In conclusion Lord Robert told of an altercation he had with a suffragette, at which her final retort was, "You are just as bad as McKenna." The House roared with laughter at this thrust. As usual in debates of the kind, the House seemed more inclined to banter than to serious argument.

LONDON, April 2.—Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, from the prisoners' inclosure in the Old Bailey to-day, pleaded "not guilty" to the charge of having "counselled certain persons, whose names are unknown, to place, feloniously and maliciously certain gunpowder and other explosive substances with intent thereby to damage" Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd-George's country house at Walton Heath.

The frail looking, pale Suffragette leader, when she looked around the courtroom this morning, found practically all the public seats occupied by women wearing rosettes of the suffragette colors. Then she turned composedly to Sir Charles Montague Lush, the Judge, and announced: "I will defend myself."

Archibald H. Bodkin, Counsel for the Treasury, had not proceeded far with his opening of the case when Mrs. Pankhurst interposed with the objection:

"I do not mind counsel introducing reports of my speeches made by journalists, but I object to police reports. They are grossly inaccurate, very ignorant and ungrammatical, and convey an absolutely wrong impression of what I said."

A laugh was caused over a rubber overshoe found in the ruins of Mr. Lloyd-George's house.

Mrs. Pankhurst suggested that it was a man's, but Police Inspector Tudgay disagreed.

Mrs. Pankhurst asked: "Are you married? Have you ever looked at your wife's feet?"

The Inspector replied "Yes."

Mrs. Pankhurst—"And you still think this is a woman's golosh!"

Inspector Tudgay—"Yes, I think it would just fit her."

The Grand Jury at the Old Bailey Sessions to-day returned a true bill against Olive Hocken, the militant suffragette who was committed for trial last week on the charge of attempting to set fire to a pavilion on the Roehampton golf links.

The second reading of the bill to circumvent "hunger strikes" by militant suffragettes condemned to prison was carried in the House of Commons today by 296 to 43 votes.

J. Keir Hardie's motion to reject the bill was previously defeated by a vote of 335 to 98.

DA GAMA DESCENDANT FREE.

Lisbon Heiress Refutes Charge of Conspiracy Against Republic.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LISBON, April 2.—The greatest interest was aroused throughout Portugal by the court-martial yesterday in the case of Senhorita da Gama, the details of whose nine months' imprisonment on a charge of conspiracy against the republic have already been published in THE NEW YORK TIMES. The prisoner refused to allow any witnesses to be called for her defense, and instructed her lawyer not to ask for her acquittal.

The court was crowded, hundreds of women prominent in society being present, all wearing black. Nearly all in the courtroom arose when the prisoner entered and took her place beside two other prisoners, a soldier and a servant, who were alleged to have been her accomplices. Senhorita da Gama was in deep mourning, as her brother died last month. The only ornament she wore was a silver Maltese cross. She answered all questions with unhesitating serenity and showed that her relations with political prisoners had been solely those of charity.

Her lawyer said that her imprisonment was a monstrous outrage, committed by ferocious Jacobins. Her account books proved that during the last year $8,195 had been sent her from all parts of Portugal and had been distributed among political prisoners, 1,900 of whose children she had clothed and fed.

When asked whether she wished to say anything, Senhorita da Gama requested the jury to acquit the other two prisoners as the compensation due her for her long and unjust imprisonment.

The trial ended in her acquittal and the sentence of the two other prisoners to two years' imprisonment. The acquittal of Senhorita da Gama was received with enthusiastic applause. There was a touching scene between her and her mother, who was waiting outside to take her home after their long separation.

SPLENDID FUNERAL OF GREEK MONARCH

Obsequies of King George Most Imposing Ceremony Ever Seen in Modern Athens.

HOLY STANDARD IS CARRIED

Taken, for the First Time Since the Kingdom Was Founded, from the Church Built for It.

ATHENS, April 2.—Such imposing ceremonial as to-day marked the burial of the murdered King George of the Hellenes has never before been witnesesd in modern Athens.

The procession, which was of great length, presented a remarkably varied pageant. Its ranks were composed of a striking mingling of many Eastern and Western nationalities.

The royal Princes of Greece and the missions representing the Courts of Europe and States of the American hemisphere joined with deputations from European Turkey, from the islands of the Aegean Sea, and from Asia Minor, each in the distinctive national dress.

At the head of the procession the coffin, borne on a gun-carriage, was followed by King Constantine, the Crown Prince of Greece, and a number of other royal Princes. The missions from foreign States then came in carriages, preceding the Dowager Queen, the reigning Queen, and the Princesses. The Greek Cabinet Ministers, the members of the Diplomatic Corps, practically all the members of the Greek Parliament, the municipal officials, a large number of prominent civilians, and a host of deputations of patriotic societies took their places in order in the procession, interspersed by large bodies of troops, most of whom had participated in the war.

A prominent feature of the procession was the "Holy Standard" of the Greeks, which never before had left its resting place in the church specially built for it at the inception of the Greek Kingdom.

The funeral service in the Cathedral was attended by a great gathering of Greek and foreign notables, mostly in brilliant uniforms blazing with decorations. The assemblage of clergy participating in the service was a remarkable one. No fewer than sixty Archbishops and Bishops assisted.

Minute guns were fired continuously from the time the coffin, borne on a gun-carriage drawn by bluejackets, left the Cathedral until the actual moment of interment, which was signaled to the populace by a salute of 101 guns.

On its arrival at the railroad station the coffin was transferred to a mourning car for conveyance to Dekeleia, where the body was interred in the presence of members of the family alone.

SERVICE IN NEW YORK.

Seven Consuls General Attend Ceremony in Orthodox Church.

Internationalism was the most striking characteristic of the memorial service for the murdered King of the Hellenes, held yesterday in the Eastern Orthodox Church in Seventy-second Street. The service was attended by the Consuls General of Greece, Great Britain, Germany, France, Austria-Hungary, Norway, and Persia. Mr. Moses, formerly the Minister from Washington at Athens, was also present.

The entrances to the chudch were draped with Greek and American flags, and within the pillars were covered with black. The flower display was abundant, one of the most elaborate pieces having been sent by the pupils of the Greek school at 909 Eagle Avenue, the Bronx.

The church was packed, and throughout the service, which was without music, those present remained standing.

HYDE LECTURES IN LONDON

Addresses French Institute—Does Not Intend to Return Here.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—James Hazen Hyde made his début in London as a lecturer to-night. In Marble Arch House he addressed the French Institute here, his subject being "The Rôle of France in the Development of the United States."

"It was not quite my London début," he explained to a NEW YORK TIMES correspondent. "Many years ago I addressed the agents of the Equitable Life Assurance Society here, but that was business instead of recreation."

Mr. Hyde has been lecturing recently, addressing students at Toulouse, Bordeaux, Lille, Nantes, Lyons, Dijon, Grenoble, and Rheims on the same subject. He treats it from the Treaty of Versailles down to the Algeciras Conference in 1905, when France received the support of the United States. He said in part:

"The American constitution was inspired by Montesquin, Voltaire, and Rousseau, but these Frenchmen were inspired by English institutions. America is the natural link between France and England. She speaks the same language as England, she has a government identical with that of France. The same colors are found in all three flags."

Mr. Hyde is preparing a new lecture, -alled "Franco-American Historical Relations," which will soon be delivered at the universities of Brussels and Paris. Asked by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent if he would ever return to America, he said, smiling:

"Not that any one knows of. Any intentions of returning to that delightful spot are as distant from my mind as when I last departed. I find in Paris the most delightful life, and the present problems there are interesting. Just now the fight for the three years' military service absorbs me. Despite the Socialist opposition, I believe the nation will be forced to adopt it.

"France has a real President in M. Poincaré, who will revive the obsolete powers of the office and make a great record for himself and the country."

Suit Case Supports 200-Pound Trunk

Striking Display of Strength Astounds Chicago Crowds.

Chicago people have gazed in wonder at a window display showing a fragile suit case supporting a big 200 pound wardrobe trunk.

Many first thought the demonstration a trick of some sort, but investigation proved conclusively that the only trick was in the manufacture of the suit case. The manager of the Chicago Indestructo Baggage Shop said: "The reason that the little light case is capable of supporting such excessive weight is due to the fact that the Indestructo people have discarded the old-fashioned suit case weakness. "Instead of pasteboard sides, we use a 3-ply hardwood veneer body underneath the handsome leather exterior."

Further investigation proved that the wood and leather case weighed three pounds less than the old style cases, and cost one-half as much.

If you are going to buy a suit case, get one that will last a life time without becoming sagged or unsightly. Buy an Indestructo suit case and be assured of a life time of service.

200 MONTENEGRINS DIE TO GAIN FORT

Not a Single Bomb Thrower Survives, but Capture of Tarabosch Is Effected.

AUSTRIAN WARSHIPS ARRIVE

International Situation Again Grave —Servian and Montenegrin Excesses Alleged.

CETTINJE, April 2, 6:20 P. M.—Great Tarabosch Fort, which for months has held the Allies off Scutari, is now practically in the hands of the Montenegrins, thanks to the sacrifice of 200 bomb throwers, every one of whom lost his life in a last desperate effort to clear the way to the town, for the possession of which Montenegro is ready to give up everything.

These bomb throwers were all picked men, chosen from several battalions. Clambering up the mountain side under a murderous fire from the Turkish guns, they cut the wire entanglements, and, getting to close quarters, threw bombs among the Turks, thus opening the way for the storming party.

Not one of the bomb throwers returned, but they had accomplished their object, and the Montenegrin infantry, following close upon them, charged the trenches.

The Turks held their ground and a desperate and bloody hand-to-hand fight ensued, lasting an hour and ending in victory for the Montenegrins, who lost 300 men killed and wounded. Tier after tier of entrenchment had to be taken, but the troops of the southern division under Gen. Martinovitch, to whom the task had been assigned, overcame all obstacles.

The tactics followed, particularly in regard to the use of bomb throwers, were similar to those adopted in the capture of Adrianople. But in the advance on Adrianople the soldiers who cut and divided the wire entanglements surrounding the forts were clad in cuirasses and provided with shields. At Tarabosch the nature of the rough mountainside made it necessary for the Montenegrins to dispense with all impediments.

Four Austrian warships arrived in Montenegrin waters early this morning. They are anchored about ten miles off shore between Antivari and Dulcigno.

LONDON, Thursday, April 3.—Just as Montenegro has scored her first real success by getting a foothold at Tarabosch, the key to Scutari, the warships of the powers are gathering along the coast to compel her to give up the most precious fruits of five months' fighting.

After a series of desperate engagements, the Montenegrins, assisted by the Servians, are practically in command of Tarabosch. Simultaneously with the arrival of this news came the information that Austrian warships were anchored off Antivari and that British and Italian warships were on their way to join them for the purpose of making a demonstration. This step is approved by all the powers, not excepting Russia.

Should the demonstration prove ineffective it is understood that the Montegrin ports of Antivari and Dulcigno will be occupied.

Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, informed the House of Commons yesterday that, as Montenegro had resumed the attack on Scutari, contrary to the will of the powers, the latter had decided to proceed with the naval demonstration off the Montenegrin coast. Two British warships, he said, were ready to participate.

Very disquieting news has reached here of grave excesses committed by the Servian and Montenegrin troops in Albania.

The Ambassadors here of the European powers decided yesterday at the last moment that it was useless to hold the meeting they had projected, owing to the uncertainity of affairs in the Balkans.

No reply to the note of the powers has been received from the Balkan allies.

WHERE WILL PAGE LIVE?

English Evince Keen Interest in Ambassador's Choice of Residence.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—There is great curiosity, according to The Westminster Gazette, as to where the new American Ambassador to London will pitch his tent. The diplomatic representatives of the United States in the past have lived in various parts of town. The story is apocryphal, no doubt, of the American Minister in the early days who was found wandering sadly in Trafalgar Square. A policeman advised him to go home and received the reply: "I have no home; I am the American Minister."

The first American Minister to establish himself in a really fine house was John Lothrop Motley, who took Lord Yarborough's house in Arlington Street. James Russell Lowell was satisfied with a much less pretentious dwelling in Lowndes Square, where his hospitality was limited. The same house served Edward J. Phelps, whose régime was brighter, owing to the universal affection inspired by Mrs. Phelps.

John Hay inaugurated another period of magnificence when he took a house in Carlton House Terrace. When James G. Blaine was taken there by a friend he said: "This is the first really palatial house to which you have brought me." Hay loved English society, and when recalled to become Secretary of State said sadly: "All my fun in life is over."

Joseph H. Choate also lived in Carlton House Terrace, while Whitelaw Reid eclipsed all previous records by the magnificence of Dorchester House.

THE OLYMPIC SAILS.

Begins Her First Voyage to New York After Her Reconstruction.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—The White Star liner Olympic left Southampton to-day on her first trip for New York since she was fitted with the double steel bottom and additional bulkheads that are declared by her owners to make her unsinkable. A Southampton dispatch says her departure recalled the scenes when her maiden voyage began.

The passengers include Judge Mortimer C. Addams, Lorenzo Daniels, Montague Glass, Charles Kiralfy, and William Church Osborn. A number of White Star officials went on an inspection trip to Queenstown.

PRAISE STEFANSSON PLANS.

Admiral Peary and Dr. Bruce Speak at Congress in Rome.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

ROME, April 2.—At a meeting to-day of the International Geographical Congress Vihjalmar Stefansson presented the plans of the Canadian expedition of exploration in the arctic. The plans were heartily supported by Admiral Peary and Dr. W. S. Bruce.

Admiral Peary said the United States was very much interested in Mr. Stefansson's work. The National Geographical Society at Washington and the American Museum of Natural History at New York had agreed to finance Mr. Stefansson, but had withdrawn the offer at the request of the Canadian Government. These institutions, interested only in the progress of science, were glad that Mr. Stefansson had from the Canadian Government support worthy of the great work he had undertaken.

Admiral Peary said he wished Mr. Stefansson success, and felt that his past achievements justified the hope of valuable results. Both Mr. Stefansson and Canada were to be congratulated on the arrangement. The region to be explored was most interesting, and possibly, even probably, startling discoveries would be made.

Dr. Bruce emphasized the oceanographic importance of the expedition. He said when exploration in the North and the South was compared it appeared that the arctic had been explored on the Atlantic side and the antarctic on the Pacific side, but nothing had been done in the Pacific arctic, due to the fact that the region was so far distant from great centres of civilization and to other difficulties. Mr. Stefansson possessed as a scholar and explorer of experience the essential qualifications for success in the work he was undertaking. They were glad to know he would carry a complete oceanographic outfit, and he had selected an exceptionally good man in James Murray, of Scottish Loch Survey and Shackleton expedition experience.

As Admiral Peary had given American indorsement to the action of Canada is supporting Mr. Stefansson, so Dr. Bruce voiced British approval of the Government's attitude, which, he thought, might well be followed by the British Imperial Government.

At a meeting of the International Polar Commission to-day Herbert L. Bridgman of New York, a delegate of the United States, submitted the following resolution, which was passed: "That the International Polar Commission learns with pleasure of the decision of Premier Borden and his Government to support further exploration of the arctic contiguous to Canada by Mr. Stefansson and his expedition, and commends this example to other Governments."

PANIC IN COLON FIRE.

Picture Theatre Destroyed — Over 100 Americans Cut and Bruised.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, April 2.—Fire started tonight in the operating room of the Star Picture Theatre during the performance, and completely destroyed the building and contents. More than 100 American employes of the Canal Commission attending the performance were cut and bruised while making their escape with the panic-stricken audience.

The Garden Theatre on the opposite side of the street was threatened by flying sparks from the burning structure, and another panic followed there when the spectators fled through the doors and windows. In response to an appeal for help the Fire Department at Panama sent engines and firemen on a special train, preventing spread of the flames.

IN FEAR OF GREEKS, JEWS PLEAD FOR AID

Tell Kinsmen in America They Expect Massacres in Anatolia at the Passover.

ACCUSED OF RITUAL MURDER

Greeks Use This as a Pretext for Punishing Them for Being Friendly with the Turks.

Intensely vivid letters received by relatives in this city from kinsmen in Anatolia, describing persecutions of Jews of that country at the hands of the Greek inhabitants, were brought yesterday to the attention of the American Jewish Committee, with an appeal for intervention and protest against the continuance of the outrages from some authoritative body in this country. The leters are written in Ladino, a Spanish-Yiddish dialect, by merchants of Tchesme, a town of Anatolia, and some of them close with a warning to relatives in this country that they may be the last letters the writers will ever send, inasmuch as a general massacre of the Jewish inhabitants is imminent on the occasion of the near Greek Easter and the Jewish Passover celebrations, which fall at the same time.

Just what action the American Jewish Committee will take in the matter could not be learned last night.

Its President is Louis Marshall, and on its Executive Commitee are Justice Julian W. Mack of the Commerce Court; Dr. Cyrus Adler, President of Dropsie College, Philadelphia; Jacob H. Schiff, Justice Mayer Sulzberger, Cyrus L. Sulzberger, Julius Rosenwald, Jacob H. Hollander, the Rev. Dr. J. L. Magnes, Harry Cutler, Isaac W. Bernheim, Samuel Dorf, Isador Sobel, and A. Leo Weil.

Tchesme is a town of about 15,000 inhabitants, all of whom are Greeks with the exception of twenty or thirty Jewish families and the oficials of the Turkish Government. The town is nearly opposite the Island of Chios in the Aegean Sea, which island the Greeks have captured from the Turks.

According to Dr. Herbert Friedenwald, Secretary of the American Jewish Committee, the Greeks are at present bringing against the Jewish residents of the place the terrible century-old accusation of ritual murder, a cry that has cost thousands of Jewish lives ever since the Middle Ages, by accusing Jews of using the blood of Christian children in preparing their "matzoth" or unleavened bread for the Passover feast.

Here is one letter, written by Jacob Joseph, a reputable merchant of Tchesme, to his brother, David Joseph, in this city, and translated from the Ladino for THE TIMES:

Tchesme, Turkey, Adar 26, 5673,
(March 22, 1913.)

My dear brother: Last week I advised you what is happening here to our people. All our supposed Greek friends turned out to be our enemies. They are accusing us of having kidnapped a Greek child and using the blood for our coming Passover. Young and old are maltreating our people wherever they see them, stoning them, &c. At a mass meeting held the other night they decided to boycott the Jews, not to buy anything of or to sell anything to them. The things began to happen in this way:

About a month ago a little girl of Yanko Kallida, about 4 years old, who lived near the house of Maro (a wealthy man of that city) was lost, and people claimed at the time that outlaws went into the house and, taking her for the rich man's child, kidnapped her with the idea of receiving some ransom. Then the parents claimed that the Turks took her and killed her.

Ten days later the child was found in a well near the house of Nikro Tafio. It was Saturday morning, and all the people of the town, including the Governor and all the officials of the city, doctors, policemen, &c., went to view the body, and we also went to see it. Before the removal of the body from the well to the house the Greeks on the scene began a great outcry that the Jews had taken the child for her blood for their Passover feast, and then all the Greeks came in front of our stores and prevented the people from coming into the stores, either to buy or to sell goods.

The day after the meeting the Greek priest came with a pail of so-called "Cursed Water" (Aforissimos) and sprinkled it about so as to prevent any Greek from passing by our stores, for, as you know, they believe any Christian stepping on that water must eventually die, unless the priest revokes the order.

Yesterday Vassil Simyakou, who was supposed to be a friend of ours and for whom you did so many favors when you were here, went with a revolver to the landlord of our store and threatened to kill him if he did not put us out of the store by April 1. So you understand now what kind of a situation we are in. It is not a matter of changing a store and paying more for it. They are simply taking the means of our livelihood. Some of our people have begun to emigrate because of this state of things. I am afraid that if no one interferes in our favor they are even going to put us out of our house.

Please ask the newspapers and the organizations to interest themselves in our plight, as the Greeks will surely kill us the first chance that they get. Our Chacham Bashif (Chief Rabbi at Constantinople) made the Government write to the Greek Patriarch that he should advise the Greeks of our city to stop their outrageous conduct against us. The chief Greek priest here received a letter and posted it on the door of the church with a remark under it, scaled by himself, telling the Greeks that the Jews are such evil-minded people and have so much influence with the Turkish Government that they brought pressure upon our holy Patriarch to write to us a letter in their favor against his own wishes.

I just hear while I am writing you this letter that they have even a false witness, and that he is going to the house of the Governor to say that he saw the little girl in my store and in the store of Raphael Touvi, which is some distance from my store, just before she disappeared, when at first they stated she had disappeared at night.

The Greeks in our city are writing to Greeks in Smyrna urging them to discharge Jews in their employ under penalty of boycotting them. JACOB JOSEPH.

In a letter dated Adar 3, 5673 (Feb. 10, 1913), sent by Jacob Abulafia of Tchesme to Isaac Abulafia of New York City, he corroborates among other things the story given in the letter of Jacob Joseph. Another dated Feb. 26 from Abraham Isaac to Mordecai Isaac of New York City tells the same story, and another letter of Feb. 27 from Aaron Palambe to his friend, Isaac Abulafia of this city, repeats the story, and tells the adventure he had while traveling from the city of Tchesme to a nearby town, when some Greeks caught him on the way, and, after taking all his money and his gold watch and ring, beat him badly, tied his hands behind his back and kicked him down an embankment, telling him that this was the punishment to be expected by the Jews for their being friendly with the Tnrks and the Turkish Government.

"This might be regarded as an isolated instance of fanaticism," said Dr. Friedenwald last night, "were the hostility of the Greek Catholic Church, particularly to the Jews and to the adherents of other denominations, not so well known. Recently, when Salonika was captured by the Greeks, a number of Jews were murdered, their houses and shops pillaged, and the women outraged. Similar excesses have occurred in several other places in the possession of the Greeks.

"As the Jewish Passover is but a few weeks off, the Jews, wherever the Greek Catholic Church predominates, are in mortal dread that the slander of the use of Christian blood for 'ritual' purposes will be given renewed impetus by the priests, who take no steps to prevent the promulgation of this outrageous charge."

URGES WIRELESS STATIONS.

British Postmaster General Deplores Delay in Construction.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—That public interest in the Parliamentary Marconi inquiry is failing seemed to be apparent from the smaller gathering in the committee room of the House of Commons when the proceedings were resumed to-day.

Postmaster General Samuel gave evidence. He scored a heavy point when questioned by Mr. Terrell with the object of showing that the American Marconi Company could obtain the right to erect a station in this country only by the consent of the Postmaster General. Mr. Samuel produced an agreement with the Marconi International Wireless Company, made by Lord Stanley in 1904, by virtue of which the existing stations at Cliffden and Poldhu were licensed. The agreement was for fifteen years.

Mr. Samuel closed his evidence with the significant warning:

"If at some later date it is found that grave injury had been done to imperial interests by this delay in constructing wireless stations, my duty is to make it clear that I left undone nothing I could do to obviate it. That is why I protested that the stations might have been half built by now."

Mr. Samuel has promised to reply to-morrow to a question whether he considers that the Government's contract with the Marconi Company still holds good notwithstanding the company's notification of its cancellation.

Wants Billiard Room in Commons.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, April 2.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Watt asked if a billiard room could not be provided for the use of the members, whose recreations, he said, had hitherto been strictly limited to chess. Mr. Benn, speaking for the First Commissioner of Works, threw cold water on the suggestion by doubting the existence of a general desire for the innovation.

TWO FIREMEN ISSUE UP TO ARBITRATORS

One of Carter's Huskiest Men Engages the Conference with His Science, H-2 O Firing.

HE'S KELLY AND A FIGHTER

B. & O. Engineer Says the Firemen Can't Stand the Work and He Has to Help on Every Trip.

Frank Kelly, a fireman on the Cumberland Division of the Baltimore & Ohio, created a diversion at the session of the Arbitration Board at the Waldorf yesterday by the picturesqueness of his testimony, and the expression of somewhat elaborate ideas as to economical firing. Kelly is a big man with a thick beard and a head of thick black hair. He wears a cloth cap with a visor, and has attracted attention by his appearance since the beginning of the hearings, at all of which he has been a faithful attendant. Yesterday his turn came, and he told at length of the defects of mechanical stokers, which the railroad managers say lighten the work of the firemen and which the firemen say don't work.

Kelly said he was about as husky as any man on his division, and had had aspirations for welterweight honors before he became a fireman. Elisha Lee, Chairman of the Conference Committee of Managers, asked him if he was pretty handy as a boxer, and he said modestly that he "had done a little at it." As to shoveling coal, it was second nature with him, he said, and the engineers were amazed at the way he worked. Mechanical stokers, he said, used a great amount of coal, and he could cut down the consumption 50 per cent. by hand firing.

"How do you mean that you can go over the road with 50 per cent. less coal?" asked Mr. Lee.

"Just a minute," said the witness. "In the construction of a stoker there are certain things to be taken into consideration."

"Is this the Brandeis theory you are going to give us?" asked Judge Chambers, Chairman of the Arbitration Board.

"This is from my own knowledge of the affair," he replied.

"I should think it would be worth a good deal to these railroads," observed Judge Chambers, as Kelly rose from the witness chair, rested one hand on the table in front of him, and proceeded to elucidate his theories.

Some Technical Details.

"The chemical reactions, you understand," he said, "that take place in a firebox are entirely different on a stoker engine than what they are on a hand-shoveled engine. Science tells us that 75 per cent. of the air we breathe is oxygen, while a very small portion of it is hydrogen. Oxygen itself is an aid to combustion only, while hydrogen will burn with an intense heat. The presence of the hydrogen gas burning can be noted by extremely white, bright flames in the firebox.

"Now, then, I have found this to be my actual experience, that while on the line of road, after we get a little fire built up with a shovel and wet our coal, and when we have got the engine to working, the temperature of the firebox is something over 110 degrees Fahrenheit. That is naturally pressure enough to separate the oxygen from the hydrogen, and consequently by wetting the coal we get what is known as H-2 O two atoms of hydrogen and one atom of oxygen in the make-up of a molecule of water, and by freely distributing the water over the coal, we get the hydrogen that is necessary to burn, and we also get a little more in addition to the elements that are taken out of the atmosphere to add to our oxygen, and it will be much more aid to the combustion of any foreign or volatile substance that might arise in the coal, consequently we do not have the amount of clinkers to put up with, we are getting a freer draught through the grates and on the other hand we do not have to be inhaling dust from one end of the division to the other.

"I was only looking for an opportunity of this sort, Mr. Lee, where I could get up and put myself in evidence that if the stoker people or the stoker inventors would question our rights in regard to a man's amount of wages for a man's amount of work, I would place myself in evidence as going to the Grand Lodge and getting them to cooperate with the various anti-tuberculosis societies of the different States, if the stoker was allowed to remain in vogue, and have them abolished."

W. S. Carter, President of the Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said that one of the railroads' exhibits, showing tests on stoker engines and hand-fired engines, confirmed largely what the witness had said.

Most of the other witnesses called by the firemen yesterday in rebuttal devoted themselves to showing that the claims made for mechanical stokers by the roads were unwarranted and that they burned more coal without getting up as much steam as the hand-fired locomotives. Mr. Carter contends that the extra expense for coal would offset the cost of an additional fireman on the heavy engines, as requested by the men.

B. & O. Singled Out.

The Baltimore & Ohio seems to be singled out especially as a horrible example of excessive work for the fireman on heavy freights. Frank A. Adams, an engineer of the Cleveland Division of the road, testified that on practically every trip he had to fire the engine about half the way because the fireman gave out. In June, 1912, he said, eighty-eight firemen were taken on. Thirty-six quit after three trial trips, and eight others lasted only thirty days.

Mr. Adams was also questioned about expense for meals away from home and disputed testimony that they could be had at restaurants maintained by the roads for 25 cents each.

"A twenty-five-cent lunch," he said, "may be all right for the society dames down stairs here, but not for a fireman shoveling sixteen or eighteen tons of coal a day."

He gave details of specific meals on certain days that had cost from 40 to 65 cents, including nothing more elaborate than ham sandwiches, griddle cakes, and coffee.

On his division, he said, there were only three firemen who made as much as $75 or $80 a month, and they were "the three huskiest men" in the service. The others were far below them in earnings.

One of the contentions of the railroads has been that the weight of engines on drivers was no proper measure of a fireman's work or basis for wages, and James T. Boone of Boone, Iowa, Chairman of the Firemen's Committee on the Northwestern Railroad, was called to tell of the negotiation of the Western wage schedule a couple of years ago. He put in evidence a letter from the Managers' Committee, saying that the weight on drivers was the simplest and best method of determining the tractive power of an engine, and supporting it as a basis for fixing wages.

Mr. Carter also introduced a number of pamphlets quoting expert opinion by mechanical engineers of the roads and others in support of the demand for two firemen on the big engines and of the alleged failure of all the various types of mechanical stokers.

The hearings will continue to-day.

COL. C. S. JONES'S WILL FILED

Wife and Grandchildren Beneficiaries of Publisher's Wealth.

The will of Col. Charles Henry Jones, one of the organizers of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, who died in Italy on Jan. 26, was filed yesterday for probate in the Surrogates' Court. During the last ten years Col. Jones had made his home at the Chateau Val de Pancee, La Hisse, France.

It appears from the papers filed yesterday that Col. Jones and his wife, Lily Emerson Jones, who lives at the Hotel Marie Antoinette, had made mutual wills. Mrs. Jones receives thereby eighty shares of stock in the Lockwood Trade Journal Company, a combination of three of the old Howard Lockwood publications. The bequest is subject to several legacies and annuities, including a legacy of $2,000 to Jane Greene Tallmadge, a niece; an annuity of $300 to Sidonia S. Jones, a sister; an annuity of $1,500 and a $500 legacy to Dorothy Martyn, a granddaughter. The stock passes eventually to four granddaughters, Dorothy Martyn, and Jocelyn, Katheryn, and Elizabeth Maley of Daytona, Fla.

The rest of Col. Jones's estate is disposed of by a codicil. Dora Eastwick Maley, a daughter, receives $5,000 and an annuity of $1,200; Mme. Paul Louis Francis Le Chair of Paris, France, gets $1,000 and an annuity of $2,000. The residue goes to the granddaughters.

NEW NOAH'S ARK HERE.

President Grant Comes Laden with Snakes and Monkeys.

The Hamburg-American liner President Grant arrived yesterday from Hamburg twenty-four hours late on account of bad weather, with an assortment of animals, snakes, and birds that made her look like a reproduction of Noah's Ark. The list included three baby elephants called Rammee, Sammee, and Jammee, a tall African zebra answering to the name of Nero; 200 monkeys of all species from the baby-faced baboon of the Irrawaddy, to the violet-eyed ring-tailed orang-utang of the Upper Congo; eight bounding kangaroos, four bears, three cages of variegated cats, 500 pheasants, one laughing hyena, whose smile was so weird in its effect that the ship's cook almost got nervous prostration; 500 partridges, two storks, and thirteen cases of snakes, including pythons twenty-five feet long and deadly vipers from Johore only six feet long, but the bite of which is fatal in six hours.

FREE PASSES TO ALL ON COLORADO ROADS

Commerce Board Charges They Were Illegally Issued Broadcast, Even Judges Using Them.

AN "ORGY OF PETTY GRAFT."

Says 7,000 Trips in One Month Were Made on Passes—Large Shippers and Railroads Indicted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—There has been an "orgy of petty graft" in the issuance of free railroad passes in Colorado, according to the Inter-State Commerce Commission in a report made to-day, through Commissioner Harlan.

"In one month over a single railroad," says the report, "7,000 trips were made on passes. Not only shippers who controlled routing of traffic in any appreciable quantity were favored at all times, but even public officials, careless alike of duty, morals and danger, accepted, even demanded these favors of the carriers. Even judges have not hesitated to pursue this course.

"Physicians and surgeons, with and without salary, had annual system passess. Attorneys with a nominal relation to a carrier were provided with free transportation. Watch inspectors and traveling experts demonstrating supplies used by carriers rode free. Employes of private car lines traveled without paying fare—even the wife and maid of such employee were provided with a pass.

"Judges, State officials, members of the Legislature, county and municipal officers, including Mayors and Aldermen all joined in the orgy of petty graft, at once sacrificing rightful revenues of the carriers, discriminating against all small shippers, and demoralizing all public officials, including the legislature and the bench."

As a result of its investigation the commission announced that it felt driven to ask for the indictment of several large shippers and the offending carriers, against whom indictments have already been reurned. Those indicted are the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company, the Victor American Fuel Company, the Colorado Portland Cement Company, the United States Portland Cement Company, and the Great Western Sugar Company for accepting free pass favors and the Colorado & Southern Railroad Company and the Denver & Rio Grande Railroad Company for granting the favors.

The report does not state just what further steps, if any, may be taken in disposing of other violations of the free pass law disclosed by the investigation, but the commission promises a final report that will make clear its views of this forbidden traffic in transportation.

The commission discovered that the Colorado lines had used their State passes as a means of building up the country, encouraging industrial enterprises in the State, cultivating the good will of the shippers, and creating among them a friendly feeling that would express itself in preferential use of railroad lines.

"That these results do follow the use of passes by carriers," says the report, "has been shown, in a large way, in the experience of the Santa Fe and the Burlington. For ten years the Santa Fe competed for traffic in Colorado without giving free passes; but the effect of this policy subsequently became so acute that the company felt it could no longer stand out against the conditions created by the practice of its competitors. It therefore deliberately resorted to the same means for stimulating the good will of shippers. The results are admitted to have been appreciable. The Burlington, after having distributed free passes for some years, discontinued the practice four or five years ago. A loss in traffic followed."

"Some impression of so extensive a distribution of such favors," says the commission, "may be had from the statement of record that out of thirty-six passengers on a train on a certain date—twenty-one were reported by the conductor as riding on passes."

The Inter-State Commerce Commission finds that the viciousness of the free pass practice manifests itself strikingly in its political aspect.

"Passes were freely extended to all classes of public officials, practically upon request," says the report. "As all know, these servants of the people, elected or otherwise chosen to make, administer, and enforce the State laws, in various ways come into official contact with carriers, and in various capacities have official duties to perform touching the interest of carriers. When asked to state the grounds upon which passes had been given to particular individuals, the railway witnesses frankly explain that it was because of 'political services.'

"In the absence of direct proof to the contrary, we must not, of course, indulge the presumption that any particular Federal or State official in Colorado has been corrupted by these means."

The Forty-second Street Subway Association will meet at noon to-day at the Manhattan Hotel to discuss the extension of the Steinway tunnel and its relation to business interests in Forty-second Street.

Among the special matters to be taken up are the importance of placing the express station of the B. R. T. GIANTS LIMBER UP IN SCRUB GAME

Knoxville Fans Get a View of Mathewson, Marquard, and Meyers in Action.

Special to The New York Times.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 2.—The Giants were not due to depart for Norfolk until 2 P. M. to-day and they had a whole morning which they did not waste. The hot weather was too good to miss and McGraw ordered his players out to the ball park at 10 A. M. Another reason for playing was the Knoxvillians, who turned out yesterday in large numbers to see the Giants, and wanted to have a peep at Maruqard, Mathewson and Meyers in action, these three not playing yesterday. The New York squad was split in two teams, the Finlays and the Sparrows, Messrs. Finlay and Sparrow being ardent New York rooters who are with the team. The Sparrows won by a score of 7 to 3. The score by innings:

		R.	H.	E.
Finlays	0 0 0 2 0 0 0 0 1	3	8	3

The teams were as follows:

Sparrows—Wiltse, left field; Shafer, short stop; Murray, right field; Merkle, first base; Jacobsen, centre field; McGraw, second base; Goulait, third base; Wilson, catcher; Mathewson, pitcher.

Before leaving town the players were the guests at a luncheon given by the Knoxville Board of Trade.

ATHLETICS WIN AGAIN.

Bush, One of Mack's Young Pitchers, Holds Phillies to Five Hits.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., April 2.—After tieing the score in the ninth inning on a single by Lobert, the Phillies lost to the Athletics this afternoon when "Mike" Doolan made a feeble effort to gather in McInnes's bounder in the Athletics' half. Collins was walked by Mayer, who then struck out Baker. Collins went to second, and on Killifer's heave to Paskert instead of Knabe, Collins raced to third. Then McInnes came through, and the Athletics for the second time in as many days triumphed, this time the score being 2 to 1.

Danny Murphy showed another pitching star this afternoon in Bush. He held the "heavy artillery" of the Phillies just as tightly as Wyckoff did yesterday, but was unfortunate in passing Dolan in the ninth, the latter batting for Marshall, and Dolan made the circuit on a sacrifice, an out, and a hit. New York University Gets No Runs and Few Hits in Game with Yale.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 2.—Yale won another record breaking game today, scoring 18 runs and blanking the New York University team, which registered a total of 19 errors, Jump, right fielder, alone failing to score a misplay. He didn't have a chance. Two of the visitors, who were weakened by the loss of several of their best players, recorded four errors each.

Excellent pitching marked the game. Gile let the New Yorkers down with three hits and fanned ten in six innings. Brown was touched for only eight hits, despite his ragged support. Cornish, with a home run and a three-bagger, scooped batting honors and he and Capt. Blossom showed splendid form on difficult fielding chances. The score:

Flag-Raising at Newark Opening.

The unfurling of a large American flag, in which will be inclosed hundreds of miniature flags, on the new flagpole in centre field by members of the Newark and Toronto teams will be the feature of the opening day ceremonies of the International League season at Wiedenmayer's Park, Newark, N. J., on Wednesday, April 16. This plan has been adopted by the officials of the club in lieu of a parade of the clubs through the city, which has been the rule in former years. An invitation has been extended to Mayor Jacob Haussling of Newark to toss the first ball into play.

Brooklyn-Washington Game Put Off

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The Brooklyn Club arrived here this afternoon at 1:15 to find rain falling and a cold wind blowing. All of the players got into their uniforms at once after a light luncheon and were at the park by 2 o'clock. At this time it was still raining and shortly after 3 o'clock the umpire announced that the game was off. The Superbas, however, managed to get an hour's practice, winding up with a run around the field. It is likely that Rucker will start the game to-morrow, with Ragan as a relief pitcher, against the great Walter Johnson.

Story of Game Is That Engineers Could Not Hit Pitcher Neyland.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 2.—The Cadets won again at baseball to-day. This time they swamped Stevens Institute by a 10 to 1 score. Neyland was the same puzzle that New York University found him to be on Saturday last and allowed only four scattered singles.

The two Stevens pitchers were pounded hard, but poor support in the field was responsible for most of the Cadets' runs.

Merrillat got a home run and Prichard a three-bagger in the third inning. The Cadets scored five runs in that inning and Van Benschoten retired. Sadtler played a star game around second base. The score:

Tigers Have Close Call, but Win.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., April 2.—A ninth-inning batting rally gave Princeton two runs and a 5 to 4 victory over Villanova this afternoon. The Tigers failed to connect safely at critical times, and were threatened with defeat in the eighth inning, when Villanova took two runs and the lead. Pitcher Wood showed signs of weakening at this time, but came back strong in the ninth frame, when he fanned the side. Wood struck out thirteen men and had good control, considering the cold weather. Reed, after making three hits, brought the game to a tie in the ninth inning with a three-bagger, which sent Worthington home, and Carter produced a single, which gave Reed the winning run. Princeton's base running was decidedly off color, and several times prevented scores. Summary:

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 2.—The Naval Academy won at baseball from Colgate this afternoon 3 to 2, in a fine pitchers' battle, in which honors were nearly even between Seibert of the Navy, and Crocker of Colgate. Crocker was hit safely seven times, including a triple, while Seibert allowed only five hits, all singles. Crocker struck out nine midshipmen and passed none, while Seibert retired eight of the Colgate men and gave one a free pass. Only fair work was done in the field, but both aggregations did good team playing at the bat, and on the bases.

St. Francis Beats C. C. N. Y.

The City College baseball team lost its first home game to St. Francis School yesterday by the score of 8 to 6. Bennett started the game for the home team, but was driven from the mound in the sixth inning. The team made several errors behind him, and with three hits the visitors sent across three runs. Donaldson stopped the scoring after another run had crossed the pan. The St. Francis boys showed good team work and hit well. Clarke, pitching for the visitors, accomplished sixteen strike-outs, but was hit safely eleven times. The score by innings:

SPOTTS HIGH GUN AT NEW YORK A. C. TRAPS

Home Club Man Captures First Honors in Preliminary Shoot at Travers Island.

Ralph L. Spotts, New York Athletic Club, a member of the American Olympic trapshooting team, won the invitation preliminary shoot over the Travers Island traps of the Winged Foot Club yesterday. In a gale of wind that played battledore and shuttlecock with the blue rocks, Mr. Spotts made the excellent total of 183 out of a possible 200 targets. D. F. McMahon, New York Athletic Club, who went to the Olympic games as an alternate, finished second with 179 "kills" to his credit.

The largest and best field that ever competed in a preliminary shoot of the National championship was on the firing line. In all there were 129 gunners. The number took the Winged Foot management by surprise, and it was very late when the last "bird" was trapped. Practically every gunner completed his eight strings. In the field were all the members of the Olympic team with the exception of Dr. Gleason of Boston, who is ill, and Jay Graham of Chicago. Several former champions all took part in the match. B. M. Higginson, the holder of the title, however, was not on the firing line.

The high wind made it exceedingly difficult for the nimrods to hit the targets and as a result only the winner did better than 90 per cent. Many of the best known marksmen fell down to exceedingly low scores. However, the match gave the gunners excellent practice for the eighth annual championship, which will be held at Travers Island to-day.

In addition to the individual shoot, there was an inter-city championship team match. The only towns to qualify were New York, Boston and Philadelphia. Ten men represented each city and New York won the title with a total of 1,708 out of a possible 2,000 targets. Boston finished second with 1,692 targets. The total of the Quaker gunners was 1,609.

The scores of the leading gunners follow:

HAUGHTON HAS NOT SIGNED.

But Harvard Football Coach Is Expected to Return to Crimson Eleven.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 2.—Counter announcements regarding the football coaching situation caused a stir in Harvard circles to-day. On the heels of a statement from Frederick W. Thayer, President of the Harvard 'Varsity Club of Boston, that Percy D. Haughton, '99, would coach the eleven for the next three years, there came a communication to the press from Chairman J. W. Farley of the Harvard Football Committee, declaring that nothing had been decided.

From an authoritative source it was learned that while Mr. Haughton has not signed a formal contract, he has made it known to friends that he intends to do so.

Two Harvard Athletes Crippled.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 2.—Strained tendons, the bane of college athletic trainers, have crippled the Harvard track squad. Charles Brickley, the football star, has been lost to the baseball and track teams this season by such an injury. Brickley has been a consistently good performer with the shot and at the broad jump. Ralph Chandler, a high jumper, to-day pulled a tendon, and he cannot compete for several weeks.

DE GRUCHY WINS RACE.

New York A. C. Athlete Best in 1,000-Yard Run at Dominican Games

O. de Gruchy of the New York A. C., running from scratch, finished first in the 1,000 yard run which was the feature of the athletic games of the Dominican Lyceum at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory last night. On the back mark with de Gruchy were Matt Geis, Dick Egan and Myles McHugh of the Pastimes.

The limit men had a handicap of 55 yards and four of them got away in front, while de Gruchy, Egan, Geis, and McHugh went after the leaders at a fast clip. Geis set the pace and carried the back mark men to the front, leaving the field behind, one by one. De Gruchy, when about 50 yards from the finish, caught J. B. Peeso and won by a few yards. McHugh finished third, but was disqualified for crowding on the corners.

The two-mile run brought out a big field of runners, and was won in impressive style by J. F. O'Connor of the New York A. C. in 9:28 4-5. The Winged Foot runner had a handicap of 135 yards, and went to the front early in the race. He held the advantage from start to finish, although Henry Kramer gave him a hard battle in a driving finish. On the last lap George Holden of Yonkers had a lively tilt with Eddie Jordon and beat him out for third place by a narrow margin.

The Military Athletic League relay was won by the Twenty-third Regiment team, composed of O'Neil, Baer, De Grouchy and Thompson, with the Second Battalion Naval Militia second, and the first team of the Seventy-second Regiment third. The latter team was made up of D. Shea, Myles McHugh, Homer Baker and T. Paten. The Twenty-third runners took the lead early and were never headed.

The 70-yard dash was run off in nine heats and was won by D. McVicker of the Knights of St. Anthony in 7 3-5 seconds. The summaries:

William A. Tilt of the New York Athletic Club aided in the surprises which have become manifest in the 1913 series for the amateur pocket-billiard championships when he defeated last night at the Amateur Billiard Club the present titleholder, Arthur B. Hyman, by a score of 125 to 75.

Billiards and Pool.

Perry, holder of the National amateur Class C championship at 18.2 balkline billiards, defeated Ledyard Blake last night in the second game of the Manhattan amateur handicap 18.2 balkline tournament at the Morningside Billiard Academy, 125th Street and Lenox Avenue, by the score of 190 to 239. Perry played a good up-hill game, and finished his string in forty-four innings. The winner made high runs of 17, 17, and 13, and had an average of 4 24-44. Blake's high runs were 41, 20, and 20, with an average of 5 24-43.

In the weekly rapid-fire pocket billiard tournament at Doyle's Academy last night Leo Marks defeated William Downs in the final by a score of 26 to 22. TO DECIDE TITLES IN TENNIS TOURNEY

Finals in Singles and Doubles to be Played on Armory Courts To-day.

The Women's Indoor Tennis Championship of the United States will be decided to-day on the floor courts of the Seventh Regiment Armory, Sixty-sixth Street and Park Avenue. In the singles Miss Marie Wagner, the titleholder, will play Mrs. Charles N. Beardsley, while in the final round for the doubles championship Miss F. May Fish and Miss Alice Fish will face Miss Wagner and Miss Clara Kuttroff. All four matches in the semi-final round yesterday were productive of stirring play. Two of the four contests required three sets to reach a decision, while in the other matches the sets went to deuce.

In the singles competition, Miss Wagner and Miss Clara Kuttroff held the gallery through an interesting contest. The title-holder sent her drives stinging to the base line and at no time permitted her opponent to secure the upper hand. In the first set Miss Kuttroff put up a magnificent game, and held the title-holder with a persistent resistence and steady attack that promised to secure for her the match. Miss Wagner did not warm up to her work until Miss Kuttroff had obtained a long lead in the first set. Miss Wagner then played close up to the net and brought off several clever shots. The set went to deuce three times before the champion captured the set 9 to 7. The second set was a one-sided affair. The effort in the early stages of the contest told on Miss Kuttroff, who was powerless before Miss Wagner's well-planned and neatly-executed attack and the champion won 6-1.

Mrs. Charles N. Beard met Mrs. Spencer T. Weaver's smashing game with a steadiness that won out in the end in the best contest of the tournament. Mrs. Weaver played a dashing game and did not permit her opponent to lag during the match. It was a nip-and-tuck affair, first one player, then the other leading. Mrs. Weaver had several opportunities to win, but failed at the crucial moments, and in the end fell before the careful, methodical racquet work of Mrs. Beard. The first match was carried to 8 to 6 before Mrs. Beard won, the players, having deuce called several times during the set. Mrs. Weaver tried to carry the second set by storms, but Mrs. Beard met the attack with a steadiness that wore her opponent down and although it was another deuce set, the result did not greatly surprise the onlookers.

The victory of Miss Wagner and Miss Kuttroff was one of the most spectacular of the day. The pair defeated Miss Elizabeth C. Bunce and Mrs. Charles N. Beard at 6—1, 4—6, 6—3. The first set was a comparatively easy one for Miss Wagner and her partner. Backed by the swift driving and admirable support of Mrs. Beard in the second set, Miss Bunce was able to make the match one set all by a 6—4 score. There was a lot of shifty playing in the third set, and it was any one's match during the early stages. The singles champion then steadied herself and by excellent support from Miss Kuttroff secured the third and deciding set by the score of 6—3.

The matches for the titles will be started this morning promptly at 10 o'clock, as Miss Wagner and Mrs. Weaver are survivors in both the singles and doubles, and will require a rest between the two championships. The summary:

Women's National Championship Singles.—Semi-final Round—Miss Marie Wagner defeated Miss Clara Kuttroff, 9—7, 6—1; Mrs. Charles N. Beard defeated Mrs. Spencer F. Weaver, 8—6, 7—5.

Women's National Championship Doubles.—Semi-final Round—Miss F. May Fish and Miss Alice Fish defeated Miss Polly Sheldon and Miss Frances Wright, 6—2, 3—6, 6—2; Miss Marie Wagner and Miss C. Kuttroff defeated Miss E. C. Bunce and Mrs. Charles N. Beard, 6—1, 4—6, 6—3.

Consolation Singles.—First Round—Mrs. G. F. Touchard defeated Miss Pagenstecker by default; Mrs. Beardsley defeated Miss Pannett, 6—0, 6—0; Miss Polly Sheldon defeated Miss E. G. Holden, 8—6, 6—4, 6—0. Second Round—Mrs. Arthur Lehman defeated Miss Frances Wright, 6—8, 7—5, 6—4; Mrs. Beardsley defeated Mrs. C. H. Voorhees by default; Miss Polly Sheldon defeated Mrs. G. F. Touchard, 6—4, 4—6, 6—3.

Canada's Davis Cup Tennis Team.

TORONTO, Ontario, April 2.—The committee of the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association has selected as its team to represent Canada in the preliminary competition for the Davis Cup R. E. Howell, Bishop Schwengers, R. G. Maes, and Capt. J. F. Foulker. The team will start for England early in May so as to get about a month's practice and become acclimated before it tackles South Africa, its opponent in the preliminary matches.

Two Boxing Shows To-night.

Abe Attell's second effort to prove himself a comeback in his ten-round bout with Jimmy Walsh of Boston heads the card arranged for to-night at the Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club. Attell and Walsh came together in Boston about six months ago, and after twelve rounds the referee called the bout a draw. Both are veterans at the boxing game, with records extending back more than a dozen years. Attell has been working out with Joe Rivers at Dal Hawkins's roadhouse in Westchester. Besides the Attell-Walsh bout two other ten-round bouts will be put on. The first will bring together Johnny Daly of this city and Louisiana, the Philadelphia bantamweight, and in the ten-round semi-final the contestants will be Battling Larry Ryan and George Fox.

Four ten-round bouts, featuring boxers of four different classes, will be put on at to-night's show of the Atlantic Garden A. C. The main event will throw Jack McCarron, the Philadelphia middleweight, against Tommy Maloney of New York. The semi-final will bring together Sam Citron and Jewey Smith, east side heavyweight. Young O'Leary and Jimmy Murray, bantamweights, will figure in another ten-round bout, while the fourth will show Young Gradwell of Newark against Terry Brooks.

Challenge from Peter Maher.

Peter Maher, "champion of Ireland" for years and years, refuses to stay retired. From his home in Yonkers Peter takes up his pen to announce that he is as good as any of the white hopes, and would like to give Jim Jeffries a battle if the big fellow wants to return to the ring. Peter's letter is as follows:

"Having read that Jim Jeffries desires another opportunity to try and win back for the white race the heavyweight title, I would suggest that he begin his 'come-back stunt' by boxing me a limited number of rounds for the benefit of the poor flood sufferers in the Middle West. I think I am as good as any of these so-called white hopes, and will take any of them on if I cannot get Jeffries. Here's an opportunity to show whether I am game or not for the homeless and starving people in the flooded districts. Yours in earnest,

"PETER MAHER."

TO GRILL THE FORDONS.

Their Connection with New Boxing Club to be Aired Before Commission.

Complaints involving the Atlantic Garden A. C., the club recently opened on the lower east side, occupied the attention of the State Athletic Commission during the greater part of its meeting yesterday. As a result of the complaints the officers of the club, as they were named to the commission when the license was granted, as well as the Fordon brothers, who were alleged to have no connection with the club, but who have been specifically named in the complaints, will be subpoenaed to appear at next week's meeting.

The first complaint was made by Dan McKetrick, manager of Frank Moran, who boxed Al McCloskey at the Atlantic Garden A. C. last Saturday night. McKetrick signed a contract with Jimmy Johnston, then matchmaker for the club, under a percentage arrangement. After the bout he was offered $100 by the Fordon brothers, who had been announced as Johnston's successors. This was about half of the amount due under the percentage agreement. McKetrick declined the money, and has put the case in the hands of the commission to force the club to abide by its agreement.

Mike McGowan, manager of Joe Mooney, had arranged for a bout between Mooney and Joe Rosen for next Saturday night at the same club while Johnston was matchmaker. One of the Fordon brothers has repudiated the agreement made by Johnston, and McGowan wants satisfaction. He was notified to bring Mooney to the club Saturday night prepared to box, and if the club refused to live up to the agreement to make complaint at next week's meeting.

The complaints yesterday developed the fact that the Fordon brothers were very active in the management of the club, although in the preliminary hearing, when the club applied for its license, it was stated by the applicants that they were in no way identified with the club. The commission was not entirely satisfied with the way things were conducted at the old Fordon A. C. on Grand Street, and the first application from the Atlantic Garden A. C. was rejected by the commission. It was rumored at the time that the refusal was due to the Fordons's connection with the club. Some interesting testimony is expected to develop at next week's meeting when the case comes up for hearing.

The officers of the Forty-fourth Street Sporting Club have failed to observe the regulation of the Frawley law in regard to filing a statement within a certified period after each show, together with the State's percentage of the receipts, and the officers will be called before next week's meeting.

DO NOT WANT JOHNSON.

Champion Gets Unofficial Invitation to Box at Flood Benefit.

The ban on Jack Johnson, issued by the State Athletic Commission some months ago in the form of an order that the big negro could not box in New York, will not be lifted, even for the big benefit to be held for the flood sufferers at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory to-morrow night. An unauthorized invitation was sent to Johnson yesterday to come here and box four rounds with Joe Jeannette of Hoboken, but the committee in charge of the affair decided before waiting to get a reply from Johnson that such a contest would not be desirable.

The committee in charge of the affair spent a busy day yesterday perfecting details for the benefit. Practically all the leading boxers of New York who had not previously announced their willingness have volunteered to take part. Billy Muldoon, Tom Jenkins and other former stars of the wrestling game will also be on hand, and the Barnum & Bailey Circus management has promised to send one of its big acts for the benefit.

Boxing managers, offering the services of their boxers gratis, were in continuous communication with Manager Gibson yesterday and the principal difficulty now facing the committee is in choosing the boxers. Mike McGowan, manager of Joe Mooney, offered to let the west side bantamweight box ten full rounds with Kid Williams of Baltimore, but it was impossible to put the match through. Mooney will probably figure in a four or six-round bout with Young Leroy.

Warren Barbour, New York's amateur heavyweight boxer, notified Manager Gibson yesterday that he would gladly box Tony Biddle, the Philadelphia society leader and boxing devotee. The committee is still awaiting an answer from Philadelphia.

The auction sale of box seats for the benefit will be held this afternoon at the Astor Theatre, commencing at 3:30 o'clock. William Collier will act as the auctioneer. The reserved seats will be on sale at the Armory all day to-morrow, but the general admission tickets will not be put on sale until the doors are opened at 7 o'clock. The committee decided yesterday to begin the programme of bouts at 8 o'clock sharp, as it will be unusually long. The band concert by Prof. Matt's Twenty-second Regiment band will begin at 7:30 o'clock.

AMERICAN BOXER WINS.

Jeff Smith Knocks Out Adrian Hogan in Paris in Eleventh Round.

PARIS, April 2.—Jeff Smith, the American middleweight pugilist, to-night practically knocked out the Frenchman, Adrian Hogan, at the Cirque de Paris. The end came in the eleventh round. When Hogan was helpless on the ropes his seconds sprang into the ring and carried him out. The bout was scheduled for twenty rounds.

Smith outclassed Hogan and dropped him to the floor several times with heavy swings. In the eleventh Smith landed a terrific right, which literally stunned the Frenchman, who stood swaying, with his arms hanging at his sides, unable to offer any defense to the rain of blows. Then his seconds came to his rescue while the spectators hooted the referee for not stopping the fight.

Rhode Island Pool Selling Bill.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., April 2.—A resolution to legalize pool-selling at horse races was introduced in the Legislature to-day by Representative Arthur J. Sutton of Woonsocket. Should the proposed legislation be enacted it is understood that the Grand Circuit racing would be resumed here.

Kilbane-Dundee Fight April 29.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 2.—The night of April 29 has been chosen for the featherweight championship contest between Johnny Kilbane of Cleveland, the title-holder, and Johnny Dundee of New York. The boys will box twenty rounds at Vernon Arena.

MOTOR SPEEDWAY PLAN IS DROPPED

Association That Was to Build at Garden City Ready to Quit —Flood Damage Slight.

Unless all signs fail, the Motor Speedway Association of New York, which was incorporated a few months ago to hold automobile races on a motordrome to be built on the old aviation field near Garden City, L. I., is likely to "fold its tents and silently steal away," so far as holding races in this vicinity and building a motordrome is concerned. The association was incorporated to finance the project at the cost of $1,000,000. The idea was considered an excellent one among Automobile Row and it was believed that New York was at last to have a real motor race track on the pattern of that at Indianapolis, but as matters stand now the Motor Dealers' Contest Association, from whom all entries [illegible] abouts were to be expected, grew cool toward the project, not because of its plans or its location, but because it felt skeptical of [illegible] under the guidance of the personnel of the Speedway Association, and so urged [illegible] come to a satisfactory arrangement for a change.

The Contest Association, therefore, began to lay plans for having a speedway of its own, and at the present time, it was admitted yesterday at the offices of the Motor Speedway Association that nothing further could be done there if the Contest Association went ahead with its project. A payment of $25,000, which was to have been made April 1, on the speedway site, has not been met, although it was said that it would be arranged, provided the plans were carried out.

Thus the curtain appears to have fallen for the second time on the Motor Speedway Association of New York. Its earlier project, that of building a speedway on the Newark meadows, had to be abandoned because it was found, after stock had been sold and some 250 acres of land acquired, that it would cost about $4,000 an acre or, roughly, $1,000,000, to drain the property. What is chiefly interesting, however, to those who desire to see the racing game revived in this vicinity is the present prospect of a speedway which will be able to secure the entries, near the city.

Many of the automobile makers and dealers are rejoicing nowadays over the fact that the flood and tornado in the Middle West left their factories practically uninjured. The [illegible] Company received the following message to the effect that the Colt plant at Indianapolis did not suffer. The floods did not seriously affect the Remy Electric Company at Anderson, Ind., although it was forced to use a stationary automobile engine to generate its electrical power. The Maxwell Motor Company has notified C. R. Redden, its Eastern distributor, that the big plant at Dayton, Ohio, was under water, and that the New Castle, Ind., plant was untouched. The [illegible] schedules at Pathfinder, Marmon, Marion, and Motor Car Manufacturing Company's plants at Indianapolis were slightly delayed, but are now in good shape once more and the Empire plant at Connersville, Ind., was said to be unharmed.

McKAY OUT IN SECOND.

Gunboat Smith Makes Short Work of Canadian White Hope.

Gunboat Smith of California jolted the championship aspirations of another heavyweight white hope yesterday at the Fairmont Athletic Club in the Bronx by knocking out Fred McKay, the giant Canadian, in the second round. A left hook to the side of McKay's head, which turned his jaw, followed by a terrific right [illegible] engagement, knocked the Canadian completely out. It took McKay a minute to pull himself together when Referee [illegible] Smith helped him to his chair, and he had a busy time bringing him to his senses.

McKay, who towered over Smith in the ring, towered over the Californian like a middleweight. The ringside weights were 210 pounds for McKay and 183 pounds for Smith. Added to his advantage of 27 pounds in weight, McKay was several inches taller than the Californian, with his reach in proportion.

McKay got over the first punch, and he followed with several more blows in the first round, but there was no great inclination to mix with his bigger opponent. [illegible] his fortune to get inside the Canadian. TRUTH AS MR. LA FOLLETTE SEES IT.

"Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free," is the motto of La Follette's Weekly. This is Senator La Follette's publication. The Senator contributes to the issue of March 29 a signed article, from which we take the liberty of making a few extracts:

> The first important act of the Department of State under Secretary Bryan is the rejection of the dollar diplomacy policy of Taft and Knox.

The "rejection" came from the White House, not from the Department of State. President Wilson prepared and issued the statement announcing the withdrawal of this Government from the six-Power group, by which arrangements had been made for a loan to China. Mr. Bryan at the time was necessarily absent from the Capital, making speeches to his Western constituents. The first association of Secretary Bryan's name with the proclamation occurred after it had been issued from the White House, when Mr. Bryan made known his approval of its contents.

To call the Chinese loan announcement "an important act of the Department of State under Secretary Bryan" is hardly to make known a truth that will make anybody free. Again, President Wilson's two statements concerning our relations with Latin America and with China > are virtually notices to the Wall Street bankers that our State Department is no longer to be used as the agent of high finance.

>
> The petulant resignation of Assistant Secretary Huntington Wilson, who was Knox's right-hand man in developing the Department of State into a business agent for a certain powerful group of speculative bankers in New York, only serves to emphasize the need of a complete reversal of policy.

But the President wrote in his statement:

> We are informed that at the request of the last Administration a certain group of American bankers undertook to participate in the loan now desired by the Government of China, (approximately $125,000,000.)

So these "speculative bankers in New York" were the agents of the State Department instead of the department being their agent—and they were glad to be relieved of their responsibility. They took up the Chinese loan matter at the request of the department. Everybody knew that, for the statement has been repeatedly made. Yet Mr. La Follette's Weekly is not the only publication which has perversely put it the other way, the false way. Is it really necessary to lie about the Wall Street bankers in order to get a crack at them? If it is only by falsification that they can be put in a bad light the public will by and by find out the truth, and there is grave danger it may conclude that the Wall Street bankers are less black than they are painted. Again we quote from Mr. La Follette's article:

> Dollar diplomacy demanded bluntly of China that a substantial share of the huge loan she was preparing to get from European bankers be given to the American group of bankers, and that this loan be the means of fastening Wall Street control upon the affairs of China.
>
> Dollar diplomacy cared naught for the integrity of China, if only her railroads, natural wealth, and trade were opened to the exploitation of American speculators.

Does Mr. La Follette believe these things? President Wilson's information was that > our Government wished American bankers to participate along with the bankers of other nations because it desired that the good will of the United States toward China should be exhibited in this practical way, that American capital should have access to that great country, and that the United States should be in a position to share with the other Powers any political responsibilities that might be associated with the development of the foreign relations of China in connection with her industrial and commercial enterprises.

Candid men, men who really desire to know the truth, have believed that President Taft and Secretary Knox cared very much "for the integrity of China," that our participation in the loan was sought in order that we might be in a position to know what was going on and to use our influence effectively in carrying out Secretary Hay's policy of assuring the integrity of Chinese territory. Intelligent men also believe that the department was not wrong, but right, in seeking to keep open the opportunity for the investment of American capital in Chinese industrial and commercial enterprises. That was the way chosen to secure for ourselves the benefits of the open-door policy. The fear has been expressed, and it is a well-grounded apprehension, that our trade with China will suffer seriously if some other way, some substitute for the "dollar diplomacy" policy be not promptly found. And in this country it is nowhere believed among intelligent men untainted by demagogy that the exercise of the influence of our department to promote our foreign trade is either sordid or debasing. That is the way, in fact, in which a diplomatic establishment best serves the interests and promotes the prosperity of the Nation by which it is maintained. Not only are these statements of Mr. La Follette specifically untrue and misleading, but a most careful reading of his article produces the painful impression that he wrote either in shocking ignorance of facts or else with some other intention than that of making known the truth.

President Wilson's withdrawal of our Government from the six-Power group was a wise act. It has been almost universally commended. The reason he gave, that the conditions of the loan implied responsibilities which might involve us in forcible interference in the financial and even the political affairs of China, was convincing. But the fact that a former Administration entered upon a policy which conceivably might have taken us too far and beyond the lines of our traditional conduct as a Nation cannot at all justify the attribution of base and sordid motives to Mr. Taft and Mr. Knox.

THE NEW LINE.

A writer in Le Temps becomes lyric in discussing the heroism of women in the cause of beauty, or what they believe to be beauty and know to be fashion. He trembles to think of what would happen should a dressmaker with a sense of humor come into power, one possessed of Olympian irony. It would be a reincarnation of Mephistopheles or Nero. As it is, the dressmakers are all in the mood of Henri Bergson. A thing no sooner is than it is not. The open mind of the designer harmonizes with the open pocket of the ladies of fashion, and these relentless artists are constantly destroying only to reconstruct the mode.

Their chief concern is with line, that desperate little matter of the feminine silhouette. To this they have consecrated their spirit of invention and for an unusually long period the epidemic of emaciation has raged. The brave women of Paris have even consented to lie prone in boxes of a hideous narrowness in order to achieve the proportions of the "svelte" sardine.

Now it is over. A feminine Sancho Panza is the new idol. "L'embonpoint" is the mode in Paris, and if the professional masseuse be forced to retire upon the earnings of the past season the vendor of cod liver oil and flesh-producing medicaments will restore the commercial rhythm by his increased activity. There is much to be said for the change. A fat world is a merry world. And now, as always, our French philosopher reflects, a woman of perfect proportions will be beautiful in the prevailing mode.

THE NATIONAL FULL CREW LAW.

The full crew law rivals the blue sky law in its all-conquering march from State to State. New Jersey now has followed the lead of New York. Of course Congress cannot afford to lag behind any State in ordering that wage costs shall be increased unnecessarily at the expense of the railways. The estimate that the New York railways must pay two million dollars under the New York law signed on Monday is additional to the cost under the proposed Federal law, and the same is true of all other State laws. State laws now affect 678,661 trains at least, the returns being incomplete. The proposed Federal law affects 3,211,056 trains. The cost of compliance with existing State laws is $1,797,590, and the cost of the Federal law is put at $10,255,791. There are other items in the same bill which raise the cost of compliance to 5 per cent. on $267,912,355.

Naturally the Federal law is the better for the employés whose pay is to be increased, for it orders the railways to equip all their freight trains with a minimum crew, whereas the State laws only require full crews on freight trains of a specified number of cars. Therefore Representative Sabath, the proposer of the Federal law, is a stronger candidate than Gov. Sulzer for President, or "something equally as good." It looks that way. How can the fact of his reelection better be explained?

The people who will pay the bills eventually will decide whether they want such bills presented to them, by the operation of such statutes. Hitherto they have seemed to like it. President Roosevelt won applause by the intervention in the anthracite strike which caused the first of the recent jumps in the cost of fuel. There was a similar wage agreement in 1912, and a similar result. Wages were raised $4,000,000, and prices were raised $13,500,000, according to the recently published report to Congress of Secretary Nagel. There were 855 bills before the last Congress designed to make railroading more costly. Railway taxes are increasing at the rate of $6,000,000 annually. The people must supply the railways the cash to meet these costs, and to make the matter sure the railways will collect more than the cost of the full crew laws, or the tax bills. If the railways are unable to do this, the people will forego the railway accommodations they must have. The railways do not "make" money. They collect and distribute money, and comparatively small indeed is the amount which sticks to the fingers of the owners.

There are signs that the railways are weary of fighting the laws, and are preparing to let the people who support the lawmakers do their fighting, or abide the results of the railways doing as they are bid. If the railways paid the taxes, or the full crew expenses, or the firemen's wages, there would be unanimous joy over their payments being made as high as possible, and even higher. But the commerce of the country pays this "tax," which differs from other taxes in not being paid for value received. Already rates have ceased to fall because profits fell. Already the campaign for greater and cheaper railway accommodations by edict is reflected in the smallest construction for fifteen years. Already there is that discrimination against railway investments which was foretold by prophets who spoke to deaf ears. Never were the railways so sound and strong or they could not have withstood the burdens laid upon them. No great harm has been done, and the recuperative power is strong still. The railways are right in putting this question to those whom it most concerns—the travelers, the shippers, and the customers of the shippers, the people who elect the lawmakers. If they want railroading made costly they should support the legislators and Executives who are supplying their want.

PROF. TAFT AT YALE.

> One of the opportunities that I cherish here is to bring what little help I can to the young men now going out into life to become the leaders of thought in the Nation; what little help I can bring to them to preserve to the Nation and to our people that part of our present Government which is worth preserving, and without which the Government cannot remain permanent.—Mr. Taft to the Yale undergraduates.

Prof. Taft begins by planting his feet upon the Constitution. As interpreted by the Federal Supreme Court, that document represents the sum of progressive development on which the American Republic rests. It is worth preserving, it is the bridge to future progress. In traversing it the men of Yale are fortunate in their guide.

THE PIORKOWSKI TREATMENT.

Why should the officials of the Public Health and Marine Hospital Service at Washington refuse to admit Dr. Friedmann's vaccine into inter-State commerce, before a test of its efficacy has been made, when a very similar treatment, that of Piorkowski of Berlin, is being freely marketed throughout the country by Dr. Piorkowski's agent in Pittsburgh?

The Friedmann treatment has at least the distinction of the high approval of many leading German clinicians. Prof. Johannes Orth, who succeeded to the chair of Virchow in the University of Berlin, and is Director of its Pathological Institute and Museum, reported that Friedmann succeeded in immunizing for a considerable time guinea pigs, animals that are especially susceptible to invasions of virulent tuberculosis germs. Such authorities as Schleich, Erich Mueller, Heymann, Kuester, and Goldberg reported hundreds of cases of pulmonary and surgical tuberculosis cured or greatly benefited. There are no such testimonials of approval of Dr. Piorkowski's treatment, which is composed, according to his testimony before the Berlin Medical Society, of living human cultures weakened by passage through the tissues of the sea turtle. This is a method rejected by Dr. Friedmann as dangerous, for the reason pointed out by Dr. J. Citron, to wit, that living and virulent germs deprived artificially of their poisonous quality may again become virulent. Dr. Friedmann testified before the society that his perfected treatment is not derived from human bacilli, but from germs that were originally non-poisonous, and this statement was corroborated by Dr. Erich Mueller.

Nevertheless, it is right that the Friedmann treatment should be subjected to the severest tests before the physicians of this country are permitted to use it. By so much the more, then, the Piorkowski treatment requires official examination.

CONDITIONS IN THE TOMBS.

Is the fact that a personal friend of Mayor Gaynor benefited by the gross favoritism in the Tombs Prison, as reported in successive presentments of the Grand Jury to Justice Goff and laid before the Mayor and the Governor, to prevent justice being done to the men and women confined in that prison? Another Grand Jury presentment has just been made, showing that officials in the Tombs connived at secret and unauthorized visits by an ex-Inspector to Patrolman John J. Hartigan, convicted of perjury. This is the latest of a series of derelictions from duty which prompted the Grand Jury to recommend the dismissal of Commissioner of Correction Wright and the retirement of Warden Fallon.

The cases of favoritism in the prison are merely symptoms of a general lack of discipline and moral and physical neglect of the welfare of its occupants. The place is overcrowded, not fit for the confinement of men and women, three-quarters of whom are held for trial and are presumably innocent. They are exposed to foul epidemic diseases. Yet more than three months have passed since the first presentment of the Grand Jury upon conditions in the Tombs. Will not the common impulses of humanity and his official sense of duty prompt the Mayor to act in this matter?

SALOONS AND CHURCH HOURS.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your article on the closing of saloons during church hours, you assume, as others have assumed, that a law for that purpose would be as efficacious as the present law is the opposite. I wish you would inform your readers on just what ground you base this idea. Would not the side door, during the prohibited hours, be as hospitable as it now is on Sundays, and is it not within the bounds of possibility that the police would wink at this infraction of the law as they now do—for a consideration, most likely? What does the average Sunday visitor to the saloon, and also the obliging "barkeep," care about "the hours of public worship"?

FRANCIS GREY.

New York, April 1, 1913.

Perhaps, in the words of Mayor Gaynor, the people would feel that they might "drink or guzzle wine or liquor enough" after church hours on Sunday—especially since those who are fond of guzzling are not known to be very early risers. At any rate, there are two excellent reasons why a closing law during church hours would be better enforced than the present full-day prohibitory law on Sundays. Saloon keepers would not find it profitable to bribe the police if permitted to have their places open on Sunday afternoons and evenings, and public sentiment, which is strongly in favor of closing the saloons during the hours of public worship, would be concentrated upon this restriction. Of course, no law is passed but is violated in some degree, but enactments that are not too far in advance of public opinion are the more effective.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Profited by His Grievance.

All of us rather enjoy having a real good grievance, for not only does it supply a topic of conversation of deep interest to ourselves, but other people have to listen to it with at least seeming patience under penalty, if they don't, of risking conviction as lacking sympathy with the victims of wrong, oppression, cruelty, or whatever may be the basis of complaint. Very rarely, however, has a man with a grievance been able to make so much out of it as has Herr Sohst, the tenant whom the Kaiser advertised all over the world as one who had to be "thrown out" because of worthlessness and incompetence.

Such a condemnation, coming from such a lofty height upon a humble rustic without even a nominative particle with which to bless himself, might have been expected utterly to crush him upon whom it fell. It did nothing of the sort, however, and Herr Sohst, who would have remained unknown and gone on paying rent till the end of his life had he not been unjustly assailed and inaccurately characterized, has been raised by his grievance to wealth and glory and has received such recognition of worth and competency as not another tenant farmer in any country can boast.

For the Kaiser was speedily informed that he had make a mistake—that somebody had deceived him in regard to Herr Sohst's abilities—that something would have to be done in reparation of wrong inflicted. Thereupon the Kaiser, who is shrewd as well as conscientious, promptly reversed his judgment and made acknowledgment of error by giving Herr Sohst a pretty decoration and an indemnity of $30,000—which is a good deal of money in Germany, or anywhere else, for that matter.

This was a truly royal method of remedying a blunder, and it is not every monarch with the Kaiser's power that would have done the thing as wisely or as well. A smaller man would have thought his dignity lost in such a termination of a painful and embarrassing episode and would have used his authority to hush up both the wrong done and the reparation made. The Kaiser saw and took the shortest path to peace, and he comes out of the really dangerous affair more popular as well as more respected than before.

There will be eager curiosity to learn what happens to the man or men who got him into the scrape from which he has so neatly extricated himself.

Making a Secret of Theft.

An ancient mystery is presented anew for solution. Eight floors of a loft building in West Thirtieth Street were robbed a week ago, in spite of the fact that the building is just across the road from a police station, and of its numerous tenants only four escaped visitation and loss. The victims at once reported what had happened, and the detectives set to work. The first thing they did—and as yet the most successful—was earnestly to exhort those whose goods had been stolen to say nothing to anybody else about their experience, and especially to keep it from the reporters, and not till yesterday did the facts come out.

As usual, the police request for concealment was based on the assertion or pretension that thus the hunt for the criminals would be facilitated, but, again as usual, no convincing or even plausible reasons in support of this theory were offered. Perhaps there are some, and good ones. The police here and everywhere else have said so often enough, but what the reasons may be remains a dark professional secret.

We are apparently expected to believe that if nothing about a burglary or other such crime gets into print, the perpetrators of it will think that they are unpursued, and therefore be so incautious that their capture will be easy. Criminals are a stupid lot, but they are not so stupid as to be unaware that any indifference or ignorance as to what they have done is only seeming. They must know perfectly well that the hunt is on, and that it would be as little hindered as directly helped by prompt publication of the original facts. That the police shouldn't want their plan of campaign divulged is comprehensible enough, but that, of course, they can prevent without any assistance.

The natural and almost inevitable interpretation by laymen of this police policy of concealment is that it has for object, not the easier apprehension of criminals, but the protection of the police themselves from criticism due to public knowledge of the relation between the number of crimes committed and that of the cases in which the criminals are caught. In other words, the silence regarding burglaries so often demanded and almost ordered has no known, or to us common people imaginable, effect except to keep police failures dark and to make police successes conspicuous. Until a better explanation is given, common sense teaches that the more said about a theft the stronger will be the police motive for finding out who did it and for getting back the stolen property.

A Difficulty Far from Insuperable.

In discussing—and denying—the present possibility of crossing the Atlantic by aeroplane, the experts seem to make too much of the difficulty which the aerial navigator would have in finding in mid-ocean a particular ship from which to replenish his supply of fuel.

That would indeed be a hard task for a craft moving so rapidly and quite unable to supplement astronomical observation by any device of dead reckoning even remotely approximating in accuracy the information which the ordinary sailor gets from his log and on steamers from counting the revolutions of his propeller. Most vessels carry some gasoline nowadays, however, and all could easily do so that were to traverse the part of the sea over which an aviator intended to fly. He wouldn't really need, therefore, to have a particular supply ship stationed at a particular place—wouldn't have to hunt for one, and be in a hopeless situation if he failed to find and identify it.

Any he did find would serve his purpose—would, that is, if he had an aeroplane that was also truly hydroplane enough to endure the strains incidental to riding for a while the ocean surges and rise into the air again from them. The lack of that capacity is apparently the one as yet insuperable obstacle to winning The Daily Mail's $50,000 prize. The overcoming of that lack would seem to be no hopeless problem for skilled designers and mechanics, and hence the confident prophecy of all the experts that the great flight will be made in time is fully justified.

PIORKOWSKI'S CULTURES.

Germs Rejected by Friedmann Being Used in Inter-State Trade.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Why does our Public Health Service prevent Dr. Friedmann from giving his treatment to those who are willing to try it upon the record he has made in the cases treated in Germany during the past two years, and upon the results of the treatment attested by some of Germany's foremost physicians, and at the same time permit the administration of a live bug serum purporting to be the same as Friedmann's, by a doctor in Pennsylvania, who is also supplying same to the physicians in several other States? This doctor does not claim to have obtained his serum from Friedmann, but from a Dr. Piorkowski, a German bacteriologist, who is supposed to have grown the first cultures for Friedmann, and who admits that he returned all of the original germs to Friedmann, but later succeeded in producing what he thought to be the same from turtles and frogs fed upon human tubercular germs.

Friedmann, as I understand, asserted in Germany before leaving there that these (Piorkowski) germs were the ones he had originally experimented with, but finally discarded as being unsuitable to man; yet we read accounts daily of cases being treated with them.

It appears to me that Friedmann is either not getting a square deal, or our Government is very inconsistent in its policy of protecting the public health.

JUDGE HENRY BISCHOFF.

Tribute Paid to His Kindness and Legal Ability.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It seems to me that something more than a passing tribute should be paid to the memory of the late Henry Bischoff. To those who were so fortunate as to be in intimate personal contact with Judge Bischoff he gave a breadth of friendship and depth of human interest which stamped him as the kindliest of men, while as a Judge he was ever ready to grant to the members of the bar the assistance which all lawyers need from time to time from the bench. To his decisions he brought a wealth of erudition, which was the result of consistent study and a life at all times devoted to his profession.

Judge Bischoff had an original method of dealing with the cases submitted to him. During the years of investigation into the law he had compiled and card indexed under proper headings the cases on different subjects, and when a difficult problem was presented he would first make an original investigation of the law with the aid of his own cases, and in the light of that knowledge consider the briefs of counsel. With the endowment of a legal mind of the highest order he was able to read the briefs with exact knowledge of the law, and thus write decisions which have almost the weight of those of our Appellate tribunals. On several occasions he had the opportunity to become a member of the Appellate Division, but was so devoted to nisi prius work that he declined the honor.

S. STANWOOD MENKEN.

An Old Restaurateur.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few days ago there passed away in this city in his 81st year a man whom few knew personally, but who was a vital factor in New York hotel and restaurant life twenty-five or more years ago. Back in the late 60's and the early 70's, William Taylor opened and conducted a very popular ladies' restaurant at 555 Broadway, almost opposite the old Metropolitan Hotel and Niblo's Garden, which was then near the shopping centre of the city. It was about that time that the famous "Black Crook" was having its phenomenal run at Niblo's Garden, and was the talk of the town.

After conducting his restaurant several years at this place, William Taylor found the retail trade drifting uptown toward Fourteenth Street, and closed up his business. A few years later he leased the old St. Denis Hotel, Broadway and Eleventh Street, [illegible] after transforming it into a more mo[illegible] structure—in which it is run to-day—[illegible] opened it in July, 1876, under the name [illegible] the St. Denis Hotel and Taylor's [illegible]

SHE HAS NO "SERVANTS."

And Mrs. Thomas's Skilled Helpers Are Treated with Respect.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have been much struck by the attitude of most of your correspondents on the so-called "servant problem" toward this important class of working women. With one consent they stigmatize them as belonging to an inferior class, whereas in reality the domestic worker is fully equal and often superior to workers in other lines, and to call her a "servant" and regard her as inferior to her sisters in shops and offices is the greatest injustice.

The advancement of women has gone on in the kitchen as well as in the parlor, and I find that the women I employ in my home are refined, well educated, and self-respecting workers, who enjoy books and music and all the other good things of life as well as I do. I have kept house for forty years, sometimes having a large family and many employes and at others a small family and only one, but I have never at any time had the least trouble in getting and keeping the best domestic helpers, simply because I treat them like responsible human beings and not like brainless slaves.

I demand that they shall do their work faithfully and well, but in return I make them feel that my house is their home, and give them the same liberty, show them the same confidence, and guard their interests with the same care that their own mothers would. Nor will I live in a house or flat which has not a comfortable room and a pleasant kitchen for my girls. If I keep but one, she is never lonely, because she is at liberty to entertain her own friends whenever she likes, and is not limited to her "day out" for out-of-door exercise, but may run out also any other time when her work permits. In Winter I give her occasional concert or theatre tickets, and in Summer I often take her out in the automobile. Many of my girls have married well, and all have given me cheerful, faithful, and long-continued service. Far from looking down upon them, I regard them with respect and confidence, for I know full well that only women with brains, judgment, and unselfish natures can do the work of my house as I require it to be done. There are many other ladies of my acquaintance, some rich and others poor, who treat their domestic employes in this same way, and for them as for me there is no "servant problem," because we have no "servants."

"TURNED SERVANT," TOO.

But the Strenuous Experience Was Valuable to This Woman.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The letter to THE TIMES headed "She Turned Servant" "riled" me. No person, man or woman, of intelligence and grit need go backward, and the fact that a person does is proof that she has been, accidentally, placed above her level.

Having lost my mother and consequently my home when 12 years old, I was thrown on my own resources, and the only way I could support myself was to take a situation as a servant to any one who wanted me badly enough to teach me. As I was unskilled it was impossible to get a nice, easy place, so I cast my lot with a family where there were eight small children. The place I was to fill in the household was that of nurse, seamstress, waitress, chambermaid, and mother's helper, and, when the cook left, to make myself useful in the kitchen, cooking as best I could. I hankered after the freedom other girls of my age had and rebelled in my inexperienced soul against being a servant, but the heritage I received from my honest, sensible, high-minded parents placed me above whining. Instead, my energies were bent on fitting myself for something better, by giving as good service as I was capable of and at the same time improving my mind.

The mending and darning (for twelve) I did, while I saw that the smaller children prepared their lessons at night. In this way I kept up with them to graduation. After about eight years of this I learned shorthand, between the hours of 10 P. M. and 2 A. M., taking lessons from a private teacher once a week. Having mastered the system thoroughly, I applied for a position, which I had no difficulty in holding, as I had long since acquired the habit of giving good service. The fact that I had been a servant took neither the courage nor the ambition out of me. It was always easier to give the best service I could than to worry myself for fear I was giving too much. To use a vulgarism, I was "holding down" a twenty-five-dollar-a-week job when I married, and now that I have a servant I realize how good the training I have had is for myself and those around me and I'm a better woman for having had it.

FLOODS AND FELLED FORESTS.

Were Deluges Fewer When Woods Were of First Growth?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The tide of flood nonsense is rising faster than the waters did in the recent midwest disaster. May I suggest to Mr. Schwab of Cambridge and Mr. Ingham of New York brief consideration of the following questions? Why is it that some of the most remarkable floods occur in West Virginia and Kentucky, in regions which are barely one-fourth denuded of the "trees and underbrush"?

Did they ever hear of the Ohio flood of 1832, when Ohio was 95 per cent. first-growth forest?

Do they expect farmers to give up cultivating lands which are worth from $50 to $150 an acre in to-day's market and plant trees to secure an imaginary guard against floods which hit them about once in a lifetime?

That's a large order of Mr. Schwab's—"the protection of the Mississippi Valley." That sounds very like the hydrography of a man nurtured on the banks of the turbulent Charles River and accustomed to the wild floods that assail "the water side of Beacon Street"! Some few points may be gained, but against such a visitation as that of last week no human power can guard, any more than they can guard against a tidal wave or an earthquake.

Ohio's Orphaned Children.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Several times I have been asked where one should go to find a child to adopt. It has occurred to me that just now, after these disasters in Ohio, there must be a number of children of respectable parents left orphaned.

Possibly by addressing the Red Cross Relief Committee or the Young Men's Christian Association, or even the Mayor of Dayton, such children could be found and their antecedents ascertained before their former neighbors are too much scattered.

Paper Soda Fountain Cups.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Would it not be possible to enforce the use of paper destructible drinking cups at the soda fountains around the city in place of the glass tumblers now used? Much disease must of necessity be spread through the filthy water in which soda fountain glasses are usually washed.

Neglected Riverside Park.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Riverside Park, not alluding to the roadway, is a disgrace, full of washouts, and given over to ball playing, &c. To my [illegible], not a stroke of work has been done on this park besides grass-cutting for [illegible] years.

THE QUAKERS' NAME.

Too Reverend for Use in Trade, Their Attorney Pleads.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The report in THE TIMES of the presentation at Albany of the bill to prevent the use of the names of religious organizations in trade, and urged by the religious Society of Friends, more generally known as Quakers, suggests an interest in the history of this religious sect, which has always stood uncompromisingly for the principles which it has conceived to be right.

The Society of Friends was founded by George Fox, who was born in Leicestershire, England, at the little village of Fenny Drayton, in July, 1624. He has been described by writers on theological and religious subjects as a religious genius; he was certainly a man of most remarkable characteristics, physically, mentally, and spiritually. Out of the religious unrest of the times thousands flocked to Fox and his followers, and in the message of responsibility for following the dictates of individual conscience, which he told them was guided by the Divine Spirit, they found an answer to many of their troubled questions.

The new sect was first called Quakers by Gervase Bennett, and the epithet was quickly adopted and appears in print in a tract published in London early in 1652.

Among the young men who came into the Quaker group was William Penn, son of an Admiral in the English Navy, afterward the founder of Pennsylvania, which he designed as a haven of refuge for all religious sects, and where he planned that Indian and Swede and all comers should be treated with that nicety of justice and fair dealing which has made Quaker a synonym for these qualities.

Early in the history of the movement the quickening of the individual conscience brought remarkable results in the trade which was carried on by the Quakers. They were the first to establish the idea of a fixed price for goods, and at first suffered loss of trade on this account because the people could not beat them down on the price. Soon, however, when it was found that a child could be sent to deal with Quakers and receive the same just treatment which was rendered to the head of the house, people turned to the Quaker tradesmen; thereafter the inquiry was all for a Quaker with whom to deal, so that the other trades people cried out that all their trade was going to the Quakers, with the result that they, too, had to conform in some measure to the Quaker standard of justice.

Temperance in food, drink, and apparel has always been one of their great principles, and in the standards of our American life the Quakers have been given place and influence out of all proportion to the numbers of the sect. Many a man or woman has in his or her mind a memory of Quaker grandfather or grandmother to whose virtues there is always ready tribute.

In the competitive struggle of the day manufacturers and tradesmen have not been slow to recognize the value of the Quaker name. Following the example of the unfortunate horse trader who came to the old Quaker gentleman with the request that he should lend him his hat and coat so that he might be able to dispose of the animal which, in an unwary moment, he had been induced to purchase, they have exploited their wares—in some instances meritorious in themselves—under the name so favorably known in our history.

The Society of Friends or Quakers has always taken its stand on matters from the value of the principle involved, and at the present time as its members have gathered in better organized groups and with a renewal of the impulse to restate the great message of their forefathers they have presented bills to the Legislatures in Indiana, Nebraska, California and New York with a view to preventing not only the use of the name, which has gained so fair a reputation in the 250-odd years in which they have endeavored to follow their conscience, but also to prevent the use of the name of any religious organization or society for the purpose of trade. They feel that in the quickening public conscience of to-day names which are sacred in some degree at least to various groups of individuals should be protected from the hard hand of trade, and should receive in this respect the exemption which we have accorded to our country's flag.

Her Handsomer Brother.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Does "Nonplused" realize that it takes less to make a man good looking than it does a woman? I have a brother who is the image of me, about a year older. Our features are exactly alike in mold and contour. We have the same beautiful teeth, the same coloring, black hair, blue eyes, fair complexion. He is six feet tall and weighs 198 pounds, and I am five feet seven inches and weigh 125, so you see we are not by any means undersized. But what gets me is that he is considered a very handsome man while I am only called a good-looking woman.

Can "Nonplused" explain this? H. M. P.

A BALLAD OF REGRET.

Where are they now, the dear dead women,
Whose good deeds kindled the poet's fire?
They whose beauty was sung by minstrels,
They whose fame tuned the singer's lyre?
Where are they now, those gentle ladies,
Whose love like a beacon showed the way
Where men might go to high adventure?
Ah! where is the rose of yesterday?

Does there grow a rose in our later Summer
Whose fragrance the after years will shrine?
Would men draw swords for General Drummond,
Would the tourney be won by Emmeline?
And Christabel, with her sister Sylvia,
Will fame of them tune the minstrel's lay?
Oh! where are the sweet and gentle ladies?
Where is the rose of yesterday?

The bard of to-day has a hard road to travel—
No kisses and roses and sweet love lay;
He can sing but of brawls, sedition, and arson,
Plotting by night and tumult by day,
Gone is romance and glamour and rapture,
Gone is the sweetness that men hold dear.
Where, oh! where are the gentle ladies?
Gone with the snows of yesteryear.

Ah! ask me not where they are gone
Nor if their passing is for aye—
Except with this for an overword,
But where is the rose of yesterday?

OCEAN FLIGHT IN DAY POSSIBLE, SAYS BELL

Airships Could Triple Their Speeds, Driving Aloft in Rarified Atmosphere.

AIR DRIFT ALSO AN AID

Machine's Rush, He Argues, Would Condense the Air, Creating a Normal Density for Aviator.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Dr. A. Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone and a pioneer in the use of heavier-than-air flying machines, enthusistically discussed to-night Lord Northcliffe's offer of $50,000 for the first flight across the Atlantic in a hydro-aeroplane within seventy-two consecutive hours. While certain modifications in existing machines ought to be effected, Dr. Bell repeatedly said that as aerial science stood to-day the English publisher's offer is a good sporting chance for airmen.

"There are machines existing to-day," said Dr. Bell, "which, if they can continue doing for twenty hours what they have done already for shorter periods, will make the flight possible in a single day. The seventy-two hours is a much longer time than will be needed. If the ocean is to be traversed in an airship at all, it will be in far less time than Lord Northcliffe allows.

"If I were to make the flight," went on the veteran inventor with boyish enthusiasm, "I wouldn't make any allowances for alighting at sea and replenishing my fuel. To make the trip at all, it ought to be done in a single spurt. While hydro-aeroplanes can take to the water and arise again into the air, their chances are against their doing anything of the sort. There is also very little likelihood of their finding the supply ship from which to replenish their tanks. Even if the wings of the airship are not injured by the descent, the chances are that once on the water, it would remain there until picked up, or until, under the buffetings of the sea, it went lower still and disappeared."

Dr. Bell reviewed the possibilities as if he were himself about to compete for the prize. The obstacles to be overcome and the extraordinary possibilities opened out by the offer he explained as eagerly as if he were recounting adventures through which he had already passed. This much Dr. Bell said before the idea seemed to strike him that he needed to justify his enthusiasm. Then he referred to his laboratory notes and stenographic reports of conversations with the Canadian inventor, F. W. Baldwin, in 1909, looking to long flights by aeroplanes through high altitudes.

The conclusion which they reached had never been published, said Dr. Bell, as all his efforts to induce Mr. Baldwin to put his ideas in writing failed.

Mr. Baldwin is a grandson of a Premier of Upper Canada, who held office before the federation of the northern provinces. He studied under Dr. Bell in the latter's early airship experiments at Hammondsport, N. Y., and there made the first public flight in a heavier-than-air machine in what was then called the Aerodome, Red Wing.

Dr. Bell's idea, based on his investigations then made with Mr. Baldwin, is that the greatest service will be got from the aeroplanes flying at great heights. Mr. Baldwin advanced the idea, which Dr. Bell at once accepted, that the resistance to the forward rush of an airship diminished in exact ratio with the density of the air. He found that life could be sustained at a height of five miles, and that at that height the density of the air was one-third the normal density at sea level.

High Speed in High Altitudes.

"Therefore at that height a machine capable, with sufficient propeller revolutions, of driving forty miles an hour at sea level—and much greater speeds had actually been attained—would go at a rate of 120 miles an hour.

Mr. Baldwin saw in his plan, said Dr. Bell, the objection that the suffering of the aviator for want of air would be too great at this altitude for any prolonged effort. But Dr. Bell at once met the objection by saying that obviously, even if the atmosphere were thinned to one-third its normal density, a speed of three times the normal rate would project the aviator against exactly the same number of particles of oxygen as if he went forty miles an hour on sea level. In other words, the onward rush of the machine, increasing in precise ratio with the diminishing density of the air, would automatically condense the air and preserve a normal atmosphere. At the same time the higher speed would give the lighter air precisely the supporting power of heavier air at sea level with the lower speed that would be the best attainable in that density.

"Go up as high as you like," said Dr. Bell, "and your speed will go up with you. We used to think a balloon or dirigible the best for high flying. But now we know that is not true. A balloon in the rare atmosphere of the high skies would need to be expanded to triple its size to carry the weight with which it started. And, once aloft, it could not descend without letting off gas. The airship, however, adjusts all this automatically by variations in its speed. It is precisely as if by seeking the rarer airs it reefed its sails for a gale and then scudded along."

Dr. Bell said that the chief improvement needed in modern motors, aside from certainty of endurance, was an engine with adjustable gearing, so that as the air grew rarer the same amount of fuel would produce an increasing number of revolutions. This device was already in use on automobiles. The passengers would be enclosed in a car, into the forward end of which air would be introduced through a funnel and held there under compression by the forward rush. This air could be heated without the use of additional fuel by encircling the car with the exhaust pipe, so that the passengers at any altitude, which theoretically might be increased indefinitely with a corresponding indefinite increase in speed, would sit in a normal atmosphere at a normal temperature, and devote their energies to picking out their way to whatever goal they might have in view.

"Starting at Halifax," said one passage in Dr. Bell's note book, "in the early morning by daylight, we should reach the Coast of Ireland in time for a late dinner. This is assuming that the distance is 2,000 miles."

Dr. Bell's calculations were based on an airship capable of 40 miles an hour at normal elevations. He proposed for it to fly actually five miles high in one-third the atmosphere with a triple speed. That would make 120 miles an hour. But to that must be added 25 miles an hour, which is the normal drift across the ocean, west to east, of the air at an elevation of over 1,000 feet. This drift is at all seasons and is always in the same direction. That makes it certain that the successful flight when made will begin on this side of the Atlantic."

A Ranchman's Trouble.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Referring to your article headed "Nation Needs More Cattle," may I say, as a ranchman, that until the present policy of conservation—the taking of land by the Forestry Department—is corrected the cattle industry will suffer? Many acres of valuable land are claimed by the Forestry Service which are not needed for that purpose and could be more profitably employed for the raising of hay to feed stock.

I speak from experience, owning a ranch in this State. The lower end of what ought to be my meadow, consisting of about forty acres, without trees, is reserved by the Forestry Service. No reason exists why it should be within the forest domain. We cannot, of course, raise as much feed as we should and are so prevented from keeping a greater number of cattle. The Western sentiment is strongly against the way in which the conservation policy is used. You see, we live in the conditions which those who make the laws read about.

MISS WEMPLE WEDS FRANCIS E. BARNARD

Ceremony at St. George's Church for the Daughter of Mrs. Alonzo Earle Wemple.

MISS VAN WYCK A BRIDE

Married to Howell James Lomox of Hereford, England, at Church of St. Mary the Virgin.

The wedding of Francis E. Barnard, a son of Mrs. Horace Barnard, and Miss Madelaine Earle Wemple, a daughter of Mrs. Alonzo Earle Wemple, was celebrated yesterday afternoon in the Chapel of St. George's Church, Stuyvesant Square. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Hugh Birckhead, formerly rector of St. George's, but now of Baltimore, in the presence of the two families and a few intimate friends. The chapel was decorated with palms and Easter lilies. The bride, who walked up the aisle with her brother-in-law, Howard King Coolige, was given in marriage by her mother.

The bride's gown was of white satin meteor draped with point lace and having a court train from the shoulders. The gown was cut on Directoire lines, and the point lace was draped over the corsage in a bertha, and the skirt was also draped with it. The chiffon sleeves and the gown were embroidered in seed pearls. The veil was held with orange blossoms, and the shower bouquet was of lilies of the valley and white orchids.

Mrs. Howard King Coolige was her sister's matron of honor. She wore a pink satin gown having a Directoire coat of cream lace. A shower bouquet of pink roses was suspended from her arm. Her large black hat was trimmed with black plumes and pink roses.

The other attendants were the Misses Gladys McAlpin, Helen Blagden Rich, Adelaide Gardiner, and Mrs. Henry F. Alker.

They were in pink frocks flounced with white lace. The bodices were of pink taffeta and lace, and pink taffeta panniers, held with garlands of small pink roses, finished the skirts. Their pink taffeta hats were trimmed with wreaths of tiny pink, yellow and blue and lavender flowers. Large bows of black velvet ribbon from which long ends fell down the back completed their decorations. They carried oldtime nosegays in different colored small flowers encircled with lace paper frills and tied with ribbons.

Mrs. Wemple, who gave her daughter in marriage, wore a black and white lace gown over flesh colored satin and a black hat with black plumes.

Mr. Barnard had William B. Brady as his best man, and the ushers were Lyall Dean, David Goodenow, Walter Eaton, a cousin of the bride, and Guy Steeves.

A large reception followed the church ceremony and was held at the residence of the bride's mother, 1 West Seventy-second Street. The decorations were pink and green. After their bridal trip Mr. and Mrs. Barnard will return to New York to make their home here.

OKLAHOMA LADY LACKS FRESH THEME

Elizabeth Jordan's play, "The Lady from Oklahoma," which has apparently endured many vicissitudes since it was first written, finally reached the New York stage at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre last evening. Viewed as popular entertainment it would have seemed more interesting if, in the interim, its principal motives had not been revealed in other plays. The little brown sparrow, suddenly turned into a bird of brilliant plumage and fighting bravely not only for her husband's love but for his honor—here the husband is a Senator with his interest enlisted in a dishonest land deal—is somewhat too familiar in the theatre. So at the very outset one gets a suggestion of "The Governor's Lady" and "Years of Discretion," not to speak of "The Rejuvenation of Aunt Mary," which chronologically antedated both. Miss Jordan's play may or may not have been written before either of these plays. But the cold, hard, practical fact is there. At the present time it seems a little stale.

Viewed as a play, apart from these facts, it has the interest which comes from cleverness of observation and a sense of humor on the part of its author, together with the weakness of a story which is not launched persistently toward a definite end. There is, to begin with, in the first act the well-defined sense of a struggle between the two women for the possession of the same man, together with a hint of what might be called the political line on which their warfare is to be waged. But both here and in the second act—which skirts the main motives for the sake of such amusement as may come from an intimate view of a "beauty parlor" in full operation—too much time is wasted on non-essentials. And, finally, the third act, veering back to what are the real elements in the story, brings a series of factitiously devised incidents leading to the husband's disillusionment, the wife's victory, and the adventuress's downfall. Here the play becomes sheer melodrama and of a rather unconvincing kind at that.

It has been urged frequently that woman is the keenest critic of her sex. And in respect to her exposé of feminine foibles and vanities Miss Jordan has been unsparing. The result is a scene which, though mostly in the nature of an interlude, provides plenty of opportunity for laughter. Other playwrights, from Clyde Fitch down, have made good capital of this or that feature of the artifice through which woman improves and adorns herself, but Miss Jordan's play presents practically the "whole bag of tricks." So, while Mrs. Joel Dixon, the Lady from Oklahoma, is being coiffed and manicured, other disciples are on view undergoing the reducing process and otherwise improving themselves through the various processes of "cleaning, dyeing and repairing" by which modern woman makes herself the loveliest of her sex. Incidentally, there are lessons in deportment and grammar and speech, all conducted for the benefit of the Western woman, who wants culture and has got to get it all in seven months in order to "catch up."

Some of Miss Jordan's comedy types seem more interesting and veracious than the more important figures, partly, indeed, because they are better drawn, but partly, also, because there is less insistence and exaggeration in the acting of them. The latter fault was most in evidence in the case of Miss Jessie Bonstelle, who, according to the programme, "produced and acted the play," and who must be prepared, therefore, to carry a full share of the burden. Miss Bonstelle's method is hard, overwrought, and unsympathetic.

And the miracle is not wrought in her speech which the lines suggest. Though she has a considerable understanding of the "tricks" of acting, these are too frequently in evidence to create any great sense of illusion. Her method is that of popular stock where it is deemed necessary to "pound home" all the points. And the sort of insistent over-emphasis and underlining in which she indulges are frequently apparent in the acting of the others.

Something of the fault of the direction may have accounted for the obvious villainy of Miss Katherine Brown Decker's playing of the lady lobbyist, but it would be unfair to attribute this actress's absurb affectations in speech and manner to any stage director. Mr. Harcourt, too, though generally sincere and always vigorous and manly, became overflorid in the later passages. Maud Gilbert, however, played the Beauty Parlor Lady caiptally, and with far less exaggeration than is usual in these roles, and Helen Orr Daly and Isabel Madigan also pleased by simple directness and naturalness. The others were competent enough.

A BENEFIT FOR EUGEN HAILE.

Concert of Chamber Music Given by Ludwig Hess in Aeolian Hall.

Eugen Haile, whose name appeared on the programme of the concert in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon as the composer of a group of songs sung by Mr. Ludwig Hess, was the beneficiary of the concert. He is a young German song composer who has for some years been resident in New York, and is now grievously ill. His songs have been sung in New York by himself and his wife, and by other singers; and they have denoted an individual and far from commonplace talent for such music. The group of six that Mrs. Hess sang showed this talent in a favorable light.

Mr. Hess was responsible for the concert in his desire to assist the suffering composer. It did credit not only to his heart, but to his musical instincts and activities. Miss Sara Gurowitsch, 'cello, and Miss Cécile Behrens played sonatas for piano and 'cello by Beethoven and Rubinstein; Mr. Hess sang Beethoven's song cycle "An die Ferne Geliebte," and two by Schubert, besides the group of Mr. Haile's songs; and the Hess Soloists Ensemble, who were heard in a concert of their own not long ago, sang two part songs by Brahms and a hymn "To-night," of which the music is by Beethoven. There was an audience of very considerable numbers.

"FRAULEIN JOSETTE" SEEN.

New German Play Adapted from French Uses Large Cast.

The German Stock Company at the Irving Place Theatre presented last night for the first time "Fraulein Josette—Meine Frau," ("Miss Josette—My Wife,") a comedy in four acts, by Max Scheenau, from the French of Paul Gavault and Robert Charvay. It proved to be a play of very light mood, based on the familiar situation of a marriage of convenience entered into to comply with the terms of a will, which turned out after all to be a love match. The audience was as large a one as has been seen at the theatre this season and the piece was well received.

Rudolf Christians and Mathilde Brandt added two more good impersonations to their lists in the leading roles last night, and Heinrich Marlow was just as much in evidence in a strong comedy part. The cast of the piece was large enough to enlist the services of practically the entire company, not to mention a Pomeranian pup which was a big hit in the first act. The play continues for the remainder of the week.

DR. LULEK IN RECITAL.

Austrian Baritone Heard in a Number of German Songs.

Dr. Fery Lulek, an Austrian baritone, who is not known to local concert-goers, made an appearance in song recital last evening in Aeolian Hall before a small audience, which nevertheless, received the singer's efforts with some enthusiasm. Dr. Lulek's voice is not of very great range, or power, or sonority, but he manages to get some good effects out of his songs. Above all there is charm in his performance, and his readings are not monotonous.

The programme included Schubert's "Der Wanderer" and "Der Doppelgänger," Schumann's "Frühlingsnacht," and "Die Beiden Grenadiere," Brahms's "Auf dem Kirchhofe," and "Der Salamander," Strauss's "Heimkehr," and "Zueignung," Rubinstein's "Der Asra," Keinzl's "Der Steinklopfer," R. Trunk's "An Mein Weib," and "Pan," H. Hermann's "Salomo," Lange-Muller's "Wohin," and two songs by Charles Gilbert Spross, who played the accompaniments.

"Katie" waited on tables and was a general favorite with the men in the leather district and newspaper men, and when the Stenders gave up business she continued it and successfully conducted it until ten years ago yesterday when she married John Schlegel, a Brooklyn business man. After their marriage they went to Germany, intending to remain there, but they returned to this city. Mr. Schlegel died two years ago.

William McCarroll, former Public Service Commissioner, is President of the company.

Texas Club to Return Benefit.

The Texas Club of New York is to give an auction bridge at the Plaza on Friday afternoon, April 11, in aid of the flood sufferers. Tickets are $1.25 each, and may be obtained from the Chairman, Mrs. Clara Driscoll Sevier, 312 Manhattan Avenue.

A. W. Hoyt Left $3,336,197.

He did not defend the suit. Mrs. Hobart obtained custody of their three children.

Large Audience Hears "Aïda."

"Aïda" was sung at the Metropolitan Opera House last evening before a very large audience. Pasquale Amato sang the rôle of Amonasro for the first time this season, and Mr. Polacco conducted, although Mr. Toscanini usually conducts this opera. The cast included Miss Destinn, Mrs. Homer, Mme. Sparkes, and Messrs. Caruso, Didur, and Rossi.

MUNICIPAL OPERA FOUNDERS CHOSEN

Four to Subscribe $10,000 a Year, Ten to Subscribe $5,000, and Twenty for $1,000 Each.

TO BE ANNOUNCED APRIL 12

Subscriptions to Run Over Three Years—Generous Response to Appeal, City Club Committee Says.

The Committee of the City Club which has been discussing the question of giving popular opera at the Century Theatre had a meeting yesterday, after which this statement was issued:

On Saturday, April 12, 1913, at 1 o'clock, the City Club will give its second luncheon, devoted to the opera.

The guests of honor will include Messrs. Otto H. Kahn, R. L. Cottenet, Henry R. Winthrop and Edmund L. Baylies, Directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Mr. G. Gatti-Casazza, general manager; Messrs. Herbert Witherspoon, Pasquale Amato, Riccardo Martin and Alfred Hertz of the Metropolitan Opera Company; Messrs. Gardner Lamson and Victor Herbert.

The luncheon will be the occasion of an important announcement by the Committee on Popular Opera of plans for the production of opera at popular prices.

In addition to the names previously announced Mr. Thomas W. Lamont has accepted an invitation to serve on the committee.

The names of four persons have been selected to be founders of opera for the people, and to subscribe $10,000 per year for a period of three years. Ten persons have been selected to subscribe $5,000 per year, and twenty persons have been selected to subscribe $1,000 per year. The committee is now working to obtain subscriptions, and is meeting with generous responses.

In commenting on the budget prepared by the committee and submitted to Mr. Lee Shubert's critical analysis, he says:

"After a thorough examination of the prospectus, I am inclined to believe the estimated cost to be liberal, even relying on a two-thirds capacity, but I am of the opinion if we give the public the right kind of opera in a dignified and impressive manner, you can count that business will soon tax the capacity of the theatre."

Otto H. Kahn, who is both a member of the club and one of the Directors of the Metropolitan Opera House, said that it looked as if something interesting would evolve itself out of the scheme.

MRS. F. A. HEINZE DEAD.

Divorced Wife of Copper Man Seriously Ill for Three Weeks.

Mrs. Bernice Golden Heinze, the divorced wife of F. Augustus Heinze, who received an absolute decree of divorce at Newburg, N. Y., on Dec. 16 last, died last night in the Dorilton Apartments, 171 West Seventy-first Street. Mrs. Heinze, at the time of her marriage to Mr. Heinze, was Mrs. Charles A. Henderson, the divorced wife of Charles A. Henderson, who is still living. She was married to Mr. Heinze on Aug. 31, 1910, by the Rev. Dr. Handel, at the residence of the clergyman, 34 Jefferson Avenue, Brooklyn.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Heinze, under the name Bernice Golden Henderson, had made a reputation as an actress. Her last rôle was the part of the Vampire in "A Fool There Was." They were married after a brief courtship, and the wedding took place privately. They lived together eighteen months, in which time a son, F. Augustus Heinze, Jr., was born to them. Mrs. Heinze also had a daughter by her first marriage, Kathryn Henderson.

When Mrs. Heinze brought suit for divorce against her husband the latter decided not to contest the action, but was forced to testify by order of the court. When Justice A. S. Tompkins granted the decree to Mrs. Heinze he gave her the custody of her young son and ordered the defendant to pay his wife $1,000 a month alimony. The court also directed that Mr. Heinze should pay the rent of the apartments which his wife, with her two children, occupied at the Dorilton, amounting to $233 a month.

Mrs. Heinze had been in poor health since the birth of her son two years ago. For several months after that event she was a patient at a sanitarium at Mount Clemens, Mich., where she was under the treatment of nerve specialists. During the past three weeks her condition became much worse, and she was compelled to place herself under the constant care of a trained nurse.

MORGAN.—New York Central resolution on J. P. Morgan's death:

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company, held at the Grand Central Terminal Wednesday morning, April 2, 1913, the death of J. Pierpont Morgan at Rome, Italy, on March 31 was announced, whereupon the following was presented and adopted:

"J. Pierpont Morgan was for thirty-four years a Director of this company. During that period it passed through great and perilous financial, economic, and industrial crises. It expanded from a State corporation into one of the largest and most important of the international transportation systems of the country. In the conception and wisely building up of so vast and important an enterprise his advice in our councils was most valuable, and in the financial support which was required from time to time his services were invaluable.

"In the intimacy of this long association we came to know and appreciate the simplicity of his character, the purity of his motives, and the great qualities which made him supreme in this generation as a leader in so many departments of human endeavor. The greatest problems of finance or industry or combinations of corporations or capital were so simple to him that the rapidity and accuracy with which he arrived at conclusions were marvelous. He had the rare combination of an instantaneous grasp of all the factors in a difficult situation involving the welfare of multitudes of stockholders and employes, as well as of the general public, a quick judgment most invariably correct, and the courage to support his opinions with his name, his fortune, and his credit. This made him recognized as a leader of unquestioned authority, not only in his own country, but all over the world.

"The period of his activity was one of greater changes in industrial and economic conditions than have ever occurred. The situation was not of his creation, but the inevitable evolution from conditions growing out of forces of developments and production brought into action by steam, electricity, and invention. A guiding mind was required to prevent either chaos or revolution, and to bring about beneficent activity and order, and his was the guiding mind.

"In a financial crisis which endangered the National credit he was a statesman as well as a financier. In a recent financial crisis which threatened the stability of the banks, trust companies, and industrial corporations and the foundations of all credit, he interposed and saved the situation.

"Our country owes to him a debt for his contributions to the work of the Church, in accumulations of priceless works of art and their free exhibition to the public, and in wise assistance to charity and educational institutions. He possessed a certain modesty and shyness which revealed a tenderness and all-embracing sympathy which made those who knew him best love him best.

"His statement in his last public appearance—that commercial credits are based before money or anything else upon character, and that money cannot buy—is the key to his career. It inspired the trust which became universal in his simple word and a credit unequaled in our times.

"In loving memory of one whose loss we deeply deplore we place this minute upon our records.

"Resolved, That a copy be engrossed, attested by our officers, and sent to the family."

Died.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, April 2.—The Western disturbance was central Wednesday night over Kansas and Iowa and moving eastward. Its influence was widespread, causing rains in the Upper Ohio and Upper Mississippi Valleys and the lake regions and rains and snows in the Northern Plains States and the Rocky Mountain region.

It will also cause strong southerly winds and decidedly warmer weather throughout the South and the Middle West.

Colder weather has overspread the Northwest and the Rocky Mountain and Southern Plateau regions.

Indications are that the Western disturbance will move slowly east and be attended by rains in Northern sections east of the Rocky Mountains Thursday and Friday, snow and rain Thursday in the Middle Rocky Mountain region, and showers and thunderstorms in the Gulf States and Middle Mississippi and Ohio Valleys.

In the South Atlantic States the weather will be fair Thursday, followed by showers Friday.

Temperatures will rise Thursday and Friday in the Middle Atlantic States and New England, and will fall decidedly Thursday in the plains States and Friday in the Mississippi Valley.

Winds along the New England Coast will be moderate variable, becoming easterly and increasing; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate easterly to southerly and probably increasing; South Atlantic Coast, moderate southeasterly and southerly.

Steamships departing Thursday for European ports will have moderate to brisk variable winds and overcast, rainy weather to the Grand Banks.

FORECASTS FOR TO-DAY AND FRIDAY.

Eastern New York, New Jersey, and Eastern Pennsylvania—Showers Thursday and probably Friday, rising temperature; increasing south and southeast winds.

Southern New England—Cloudy and probably rain Thursday and Friday; rising temperature; moderate, variable winds, becoming east and increasing.

Western New York—showers and warmer Thursday; Friday showers; brisk and high southeast and south winds.

Northern New England—Rain and somewhat warmer Thursday; Friday rain; moderate, variable winds, becoming east.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

City.

The Municipal Civil Service Commission at its meeting yesterday adopted the proposed amendment of the classification of positions in the exempt class under the heading "Department of Finance" by reducing the number of auditors of accounts from twenty-four to twenty-one; also by reducing the number of expert accountants from sixteen to fifteen. It also adopted the proposed amendment of the classification by striking from the "Labor Class, Part II," the title "Cement Worker" and substituting, in lieu thereof, the title "Cement Mason." It took no action on the proposed amendment of the classification by including in the competitive class, Part I., (ungraded positions,) Group 2, (hospital and asylum positions, lay,) the title "Nurse, Social Service."

The commission has approved the following reports of Assistant Chief Examiner Murray:

Recommending that the request of the Superintendent of Buildings, the Bronx, that an examination be held by which Miss Charlotte H. Fischer may qualify for promotion from typewriter copyist and dictaphone operator to stenographer and typewriter, be denied, in accordance with the commission's resolution of Dec. 4, 1912.

Recommending that the request of the Department of Water Supply, Gas, and Electricity for an examination for promotion from second to third grade stenographer and typewriter in the central office for Miss Gertrude N. Dyett be denied, pursuant to the commission's resolution of Dec. 4, 1912.

Recommending that the request of the President of Richmond for an examination in which Manfred G. D'Agnese may qualify for promotion from typewriting copyist, second grade, to clerk, second grade, be denied, pursuant to the commission's resolution of Dec. 4, 1912.

Recommending that the commission grant the request of the Board of Estimate that the increase in the salary of James J. Hogan to $1,350 be approved pending the result of the examination for promotion to third-grade stenographer and typewriter, in which he was a candidate.

Recommending that the commission grant the request of the Superintendent of Buildings, the Bronx, for an examination for promotion to third-grade clerk for Frank S. Parker, and, pending the result of the examination, approve his increase in salary to $1,200.

Recommending that the applications for promotion to second-grade clerk transmitted by A. L. Brassfield of the Board of Education for Francis J. Canning and Rudolph F. Novak, first-grade clerks, be returned, as the commission has not ordered an examination for promotion to second-grade clerk.

M'ANENY MAKES SHONTS THE ANGEL

And the Mayor Thinks City's Bargainers Clipped Interborough Man's Wings.

A LOVING CUP FOR WILLCOX

Jollification Dinner Over in Brooklyn for City Officials Who Made the Subway Contracts.

At a dinner given by a citizens' committee to the public officials who made the subway contracts at the Brooklyn Academy of Music last night the Interborough Rapid Transit Company was represented as a party that had been fairly outdone if not fleeced by the city's bargain-makers.

Mayor Gaynor told how three lawyers of the Corporation Counsel's staff weighed every word in the bulky contracts to see that no chance to gain a point for the city escaped their eyes. Borough President McAneny was introduced as "the gray hawk who had never ceased to watch the city's interests."

Mr. McAneny remarked that he didn't know he had ever possessed such angel-like appendages as wings, but he promt lpypt Gueneral Manager Theodore P. Shonts of the Interborough in the angel class. Mayor Gaynor had already spoken when the reference to angels was made in connection with Mr. Shonts. He laughed heartily and interposed a remark as an interruption to Mr. McAneny.

"If Shonts had any wings when we started to figuring on the contracts," he said, "you can be sure we clipped them. We would have clipped them even if they had been made of steel."

The dinner throughout was a jollification meeting. Mayor Gaynor spoke for thirty minutes and twenty-nine minutes of that time was given up to praising his associates and his predecessors in office for working out the Subway routes and preparing the contracts for signature. The minute not given up to the praise of past and present city officials was devoted to the Mayor's customary denunciation of "rag bag newspapers."

About 400 citizens of Brooklyn were present. The invited guests included the Presidents of all the boroughs, members of the Board of Estimate, officials of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company, and the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, and members and former members of the Public Service Commission.

Former Chairman Willcox got the ovation of the evening, and was praised in all of the speeches for his work in bringing the subway situation to a practical basis. Before the dinner was over a silver loving cup from all the others was handed to him.

Chairman McCall of the Public Service Commission extolled Mr. Willcox, and Controller Prendergast lauded Chairman McCall as a patriotic public official.

Mayor Gaynor headed the list of speakers. "I see some people before me," said the Mayor, "who favored the old Tri-borough route. Some rag-bag newspapers also favored it. I learned from Mr. Willcox that route was urged by some hysterical people to rival our present Subway system. But we decided it was better to spend the city's money to expand the present system rather than to compete with it and rival it. In my judgment, our decision saved the city from a calamity.

"When the B. R. T. wanted to come into Manhattan it first wanted only to come by way of the Williamsburg Bridge and through the loop to the City Hall, but gradually it aspired to go up town. I don't know how Shonts liked that. It didn't suit him very well I suppose."

Col. T. S. Williams of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, got a royal greeting when he arose to speak. He told what the new subways meant for Brooklyn.

"Two weeks ago yesterday," said he, "when the Board of Estimate put its final approval on the contracts I congratulated President McAneny upon the result, and in the course of our conversation ventured to remind him of those days during the negotiations when it seemed as if he would not have the health to conclude them. He had the presumption to laugh and say: 'Why, I have gained fourteen pounds during this contest!' 'I have lost ten,' said I. 'Well,' he replied, 'that accounts for all except four of them. I must have taken the rest out of Shonts!'

"But notwithstanding these harsh assaults we have some breath left in our corporate bodies, and I want to say, seriously and with the intensity which rough experience stimulates, that never have municipal officers anywhere or at any time shown greater devotion to public interest, greater personal sacrifice of time and comfort, and greater skill and thoroughness in handling a difficult and important problem than have these representatives of the Board of Estimate and the Public Service Commission whom you are honoring to-night.

"The material results which will follow this stupendous undertaking properly appeal to our imagination and excite our gratitude, but greater, from the good citizen's point of view, than the benefit of better and quicker transit, greater than the increased valuations of property, greater than the broad expansion of our city, ought to be the consciousness of civic pride that in the final settlement of this public question, involved as it was with the conflict of corporate interests, of political ambitions, and of sectional rivalries, contemplating as it did the largest expenditure of money in municipal history, not a suspicion of scandal or bad faith can justly be raised against those who have honored themselves and their city by accomplishing this achievement."

Speaking of the advantages to Brooklyn, Col. Williams said:

"Four wards alone in Brooklyn comprise over one-half the area of the entire borough, but to-day have only one-eighth of the population! There are in those wards only nine persons to the acre, as against seventy-nine in the remaining wards. These wards are to have sixteen rapid transit tracks, all leading through the business centres of Brooklyn into Manhattan, and the average distance to the City Hall is no greater than that part of the Thirtieth Assembly District in Manhattan just south of the Harlem River, where the density of population is now over 400 to the acre.

"Before our company gets a dollar of profit out of its share in this enterprise it has got to add 1,000,000 inhabitants to the population of this borough—a stupendous task in these days of race suicide. And to make that profit within a reasonable period we can't wait for them to grow up. We have to get them ready made. We need your help in that. For our part if we can't in ten years add a million to your population we must, to get a profit, make our transportation so attractive that you will ride more frequently. There is no axiom so true as that of transportation history in New York—that if you give the facilities you will get the business. Upon that fundamental principle our faith and hopes are founded. The facilities will soon be forthcoming—the returns, we trust, will not be lagging. But when they come remember that you, the people, will long have enjoyed your dividend, and that for every $2 we eventually make we must put $1 into your City Treasury. And then don't try to take it all away from us."

"All our arrangements with the Interborough and the B. R. T.," said Mr. McAneny, "were of the bargain counter order. The subway question was solved and solved right, not only for now but for future generations."

President Shonts pledged the Brooklyn people that the Interborough would [illegible] to work diligently on all of its Brooklyn obligations.

WEEP AT SUFFRAGE DEFEAT.

Connecticut Women Grieve in House Gallery as Amended Bill Is Rejected.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., April 2.—Weeping without any effort to conceal their disappointment, Connecticut suffragists were huddled in the gallery of the House of Representatives this afternoon when the lower legislative body rejected by a vote of 150 to 74, a proposed amendment to the Constitution which, if it survived a popular referendum, would in 1915 confer full suffrage upon all women in the State.

The proposed amendment merely struck out the word "male" from the franchise article of the Constitution, and had the House to-day passed the resolution, it would have gone over, like all amendments, to both branches of the 1915 Legislature and, if approved by them, would have been submitted for popular ratification in the Fall of 1915.

During the debate, in the course of which some of the Democrats frankly repudiated their platform, which declared for woman suffrage, Speaker Morris C. Webster warned the excited occupants of the gallery that he would have them ejected if they continued their demonstrative banner waving.

The women noted the votes of individual legislators on the roll call and purpose to have every candidate for the 1915 Legislature pledged for or against "the cause" in the next State campaign.

TO MISS SUFFRAGE PARADE.

Gov. Sulzer Too Busy to Review It; So Is President Wilson.

Gov. Sulzer has replied to a reproachful letters sent to him by Mrs. Harriot Stanton Blatch of the Woman's Political Union upon his refusal to promise definitely to review the Woman Suffrage parade on May 3. After commenting on the fact that the Governor found time to review the St. Patrick's Day parade, Mrs. Blatch wrote:

> As our most distinguished citizens come out to review even the cart horses of the city, we felt that it was not too much to ask that the State and city officials should review the woman suffrage parade.

This is the response of the Governor:

> Thanks for your very kind letter. I certainly appreciate all you say. You have no idea how busy I am. In fact, I am working eighteen hours out of the twenty-four, and the work keeps piling up mountain high every day. With best wishes to you and all our friends, and hoping to see you whenever you come this way, believe me as ever, very sincerely your friend, WILLIAM SULZER.

A response has been received from President Wilson saying that other engagements will prevent his being present.

OLD PLANTS IN NEW GROUND

Anti-Suffragist Flower Plot at Suffragists' New Home.

An anti-suffrage flower plot is to be a feature of the rear garden of the new home of the Woman Suffrage Party, 48 East Thirty-fourth Street. The house itself is an old-time structure with all modern conveniences, and the women hope to have a garden along the same lines—an old-time affair, treated with modern skill.

To this end the first invitation party in the new place will be Garden Day, to be held on Friday, and every one interested in suffrage is invited to come and bring a plant, shrub, or seeds to plant in the sunny backyard. Mrs. James Lees Laidlaw will give a hydrangea for the centre of the yard, and other friends have promised the vines for the fence. Flowers and plants can be given in the names of distinguished suffragists and also in the names of the followers of the Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

All the necessary agricultural implements for the gardening will be furnished on Friday, and when the work is completed will be sold at auction, Miss Mary Garret Hay, the party President, acting as auctioneer, it is said.

A SUFFRAGE MATINEE.

It Is to be Given at the Belasco for The Woman Voter.

A couple of plays and a cabaret will be given at the Belasco Theatre on Friday, April 11, at 2:15 P. M., for the benefit of The Woman Voter and Newsletter, and the Woman Suffrage Party in the Twenty-fifth Assembly District.

Margaret Wycherly will have charge of "The Faraway Princess," a Sudermann comedy which is to be presented for the first time in this country, and will take part in it with Elaine Foster, Felix Krebs, and Margaret Howe.

Jane Cowl will present one act of a play, the name not yet announced, and in the cabaret will be Dorothy and Vernon Castle, James Montgomery Flagg, Tom Dobson, Lucine Finch, Eddie Ward, Marjorie Benton Cooke, Katharine Burritt, and others. Doris Keane will make the opening address.

FEARED TO PROSECUTE.

Furrier's Desire to Shield Union Men Angers Magistrate.

One hundred and ten witnesses appeared in one case in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday morning. They represented labor organizations in the fur trade and the Fur Manufacturers' Association. Abraham Altman, a member of the firm of Altman & Weinberg, furriers, of 114 West Twenty-sixth Street, brought to court on summonses four officers of the Fur Makers' Union of New York, whom he charged with intimidation and conspiracy in that they attempted, he alleged, to force his employes to join the union.

In court yesterday Mr. Altman withdrew his complaint, asserting that he was afraid to press it, as he believed it would endanger his life. After Mr. Altman had made this explanation Magistrate Appleton half rose from his chair.

"If that is your attitude, you are a coward," he exclaimed, pointing at the complainant.

Alderman Max Levine, counsel to the Furriers' Union, interrupted to say:

"Your Honor, I hope you will not let this man's talk prejudice you."

At this remark Magistrate Appleton turned to Alderman Levine.

"Alderman Levine," he said, "I am capable of controlling my own mind, and I want you to distinctly understand that I will permit no man in this community to charge me with prejudice. The mighty and the weak will receive the same measure of justice in this court.

"I want you to understand, Sir, that if you ever insinuate again that I am prejudiced, I will take summary steps to punish you, even if you are a friend of mine."

Alderman Levine explained that he had no intention of insinuating that the court was prejudiced, and Magistrate Appleton thereupon discharged the four union officials without further comment.

The union officials summoned were Isidore Cohen, A. Solkin, A. Shamroth, and Harry Korman. It was said that the trouble grew out of the settlement of a strike in the fur trade last January.

ST. LOUIS IS REPUBLICAN.

Democrats, However, Elected a Majority in the Lower Chamber.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 2.—Complete returns from the Mayoralty election here yesterday give Henry W. Kiel, Republican, a plurality of 2,139 over Dr. John H. Simon, Democrat. Frank H. Gerhart, Progressive, whose candidacy has been indorsed by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, received 4,611 votes in a total of about 125,000, the largest ever cast at a St. Louis municipal election. The Socialist candidate received more than 6,000 votes.

The Democrats elected a majority of the House of Delegates and most of their candidates for Council. The Republican strength among the holdover Councilmen, however, assures that party control of the upper House, which must pass on the Mayor's appointments.

CLARK PAYS $24,000 FOR TWO PAINTINGS

SALE'S TOTAL IS $209,135

Low's Studies for Waldorf Mural Decorations Sold Together for $5,800 to Capt. De Lamar.

The sale of William T. Evans's collection of paintings of American artists under the auspices of the American Art Galleries, Thomas E. Kirby, auctioneer, was concluded last evening at the Hotel Plaza, bringing a grand total for the 218 pictures of $209,135. The evening's sale brought $91,595. There was a good audience present and the bidding was spirited. Mr. Evans disposed of the pictures because, having sold his country home, he no longer had a place for them. The collection is said to have been the largest single one in existence made up of the work of American artists.

Ex-Senator William A. Clark, who was present, occupying a prominent seat in the front row, paid the two highest prices for the evening. "Moonlight," by Ralph Albert Blakelock, went to him for $13,900. This showed a hazy moon shining upon an irregular body of water running through the flatlands, a little herbage and brush in soft brown and green tones, and a few slender trees at the left. It was purchased from the artist and was exhibited in Berlin and Munich in 1910. There was applause when the picture was shown and more applause when it was knocked down to Mr. Clark.

"Morning at Neversink," by Alexander H. Wyant, shows a broad sunlit view of country, water, and plains covered with low trees and brush, a skeleton tree in the foreground at one side of the picture, and a suggestion of life in a rising thread of smoke and the figure of a young girl. There was applause for this picture also, and there was spirited bidding from every corner. It went to Mr. Clark for $10,100.

Another Wyant which went to Senator Clark was "The Lonely Farmhouse," a similar desolate landscape with a single small tree at one side, a heavy shadow darkening the foreground.

"Gray Hills," long sloping fields, a straggling path, a barn, a haystack, and a few trees, everything in Autumn tones, by J. Francis Murphy, went to F. A. Vanderlip for $1,400, and Frederick Ballard Williams's "The Golden Hour" went to the same buyer for $1,550.

A good picture which brought a low price was the masterpiece of the late Benjamin Rutherford Fitz, "The Reflection," a wonderfully graceful nude figure of a young woman gazing at her reflection in the water as she stands among the rushes with a background of dark grass and trees. It went to George S. Palmer for $2,600.

The last twenty pictures were by Will H. Low, the original studies for the artist's mural decorations in the ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. They were in charming color tones, lunettes and oval, and comparatively small in size. They went as a lot to Capt. J. R. De Lamar for $5,800. Previous to the sale a letter from Mr. Low to Mr. Evans was read, in which the former said that the pictures could be used to best advantage built into a room with appropriate moldings and color scheme. If sold as a whole he offered his services gratuitously to make a proper decorative scheme, or to consult with an architect on their setting.

FIGHT FOR HIGGINS ESTATE.

Grandchildren Renew Battle to Shut Out Widow.

The second trial of an action brought by Miss Mary H. Cook and her sister Edith of Binghamton, N. Y., to have set aside the transfer of $200,000 worth of real estate by their grandfather, the late Thomas C. Higgins, who made a fortune in the soap business, to his young wife, Mrs. Gertrude S. Higgins, was begun yesterday before Justice Kelly in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn.

At the first trial before Justice Marean in the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, in April, 1911, the court decided in favor of the grandchildren. Justice Marean held that Mr. Higgins, who was 85 years old when he died in May, 1909, was in failing health when he made the transfer of his property, and was subject to the influence of his young wife. The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court reversed the lower court and ordered a retrial.

Israel P. Lawton, a lawyer of Ridgewood, N. J., with offices at 2 Rector Street, New York, testified yesterday that Mr. Higgins came to his office in 1905 with Mrs. Higgins and transferred to her 135 shares of stock. The witness said he remarked to Mr. Higgins that the transfer was a nice gift to make to his wife, whereupon Higgins replied, according to the witness, that Mrs. Higgins had been a good wife to him and that she deserved the present.

GRADUATES 165 FOR TRADES

New York School Had Warm Support from Morgan.

The New York Trade School held its fifty-third annual commencement exercises last night in its assembly hall at Sixty-seventh Street and First Avenue. Secretary of Commerce W. C. Redfield was the chief speaker. F. Augustus Schermerhorn of the Board of Trustees introduced Mr. Redfield. A class of 165 young men was graduated this year, eighteen members of which were honor students. J. Pierpont Morgan was a trustee of the trade school, as is his son, J. Pierpont, Jr. Robert Fulton Cutting is President of the board and other members are J. Roosevelt and Francis C. Huntington.

Mr. Schermerhorn expressed his sorrow at the death of Mr. Morgan, and recalled that it was through the generosity of that financier that the school had become so strong. Mr. Redfield gave the graduates this advice:

"You are doubly to be congratulated, first upon entering into active life with trained hands and minds filled for commercial work, and secondly, upon entering that struggle at a time when the Nation's commerce is more vigorous and its power more widely felt than ever before."

STAGE COACH PRIVILEGES.

Opposition by Local Railroad Men to New Transit Plans.

President Shonts of the Interborough and representatives of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company and the B. R. T. appeared yesterday at a hearing in the Mayor's office on the proposed legislation with regard to the stage coach situation in the city. This would place the Fifth Avenue Coach Company on the same level as any other corporation with regard to the acquisition of new routes. Fear as to the congestion of street traffic if the number of motor buses was increased was the point which Mr. Shonts urged.

"The New York Railways Company and the Third Avenue Railway Company carry together 387,000,000 passengers a year," he said. "You can imagine how many buses would clutter up the streets to look after so many passengers as that. Then we have been spending large sums to enlarge our cars in order to carry more passengers.

"Now, if the traffic becomes condensed through the running of 'buses our money will be wasted. If the speed at which we can operate cars is reduced their efficiency is also reduced. We have an investment which even the commission acknowledges is $85,000,000. Is it fair that it should be jeopardized for possible stage coach companies?"

William H. Page, counsel of the Fifth Avenue Coach Company, denied that the rumored 5-cent coach line could ever pay in this city. C. L. Woody, counsel for the B. R. T., also opposed the plan. If the city gets the present law amended as it wishes competition with the Fifth Avenue Coach Company is likely to be started as soon as possible by the Electro-Coach Corporation of 66 Broadway, in which George W. Loft, the candy manufacturer, with six other men of capital, is interested.

INSURANCE ADJUSTERS HELD

And One Prisoner Sent Away on Izzy the Painter's Confession.

Jacob I. LeBroski and Joseph Deutsch, fire insurance adjusters at 92 William Street, were arraigned before Judge Malone in General Sessions yesterday on an indictment charging them with submitting false claims of loss. They were held in $2,500 bail each for pleading on Friday.

Both men were indicted yesterday on the confession of Isidor Stein, better known as "Izzy the Painter." Stein says that he was hired by Jacob Schipper of 307 East 102d Street to set fire to his flat on Feb. 29, 1912, and that he did so in order that Schipper might obtain $260 on an insurance policy. Schipper corroborated Stein's testimony and said that all the furniture lost in the fire was obtained for that purpose from a second-hand dealer. He says that after the fire he visited the defendants and they obtained $260 insurance from the British-American Assurance Association. Schipper says the defendants knew that the goods were not worth half the amount obtained on his insurance policy.

Shortly after the arraignment of the two adjusters Max Kleinberg, a tailor, at 174th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, was sentenced to not less than three or more than fifteen years in State prison on his plea of guilty to arson in the second degree. He was also indicted as a result of Stein's confession. He set fire to his shop in order to obtain insurance.

NEW DOCK RAILWAY STOCK.

Public Service Commission Authorizes an Issue of $500,000.

The Public Service Commission yesterday authorized the New York Dock Railway to issue $500,000 of stock, $450,000 in common and $50,000 in preferred. This line is the property of the New York Dock Company, and runs for the most part through private property, but as it uses certain Brooklyn property it has to be incorporated. The commission refused to permit it to pay out of its capital stock $6,250 which the city has exacted for the use of its streets for a number of years without proper authority. The $500,000 will be used for these purposes:

For the purchase of property of the New York Dock Company, $383,100; for barges and lighters, $33,300; for new construction, $22,000; for corporate stock deposited with the city, $5,031.25; payment for local franchise, $5,000; organization expenses, $3,917.54; legal expenses, $26,904.82, and working capital, $20,746.39.

COURT ASKS HOW HYDE BENEFITED

Calls on Prosecutor to Show That the Defendant Profited by Dealings with Robin.

AFTER FAVORS, SAYS CLARK

Prosecutor Asserts Ex-Chamberlain Desired to Aid Friends in Carnegie Trust Co.

Counsel completed their arguments yesterday before the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court in the appeal brought by ex-City Chamberlain Charles H. Hyde to overturn the conviction of bribery on which he was sentenced to at least two years in State Prison. From the outset of the case Mr. Hyde's lawyers have asked how bribery could be proved unless it was established that Hyde obtained something of value to him as an individual from the transaction with Joseph G. Robin. Robin testified that Hyde forced him to lend $130,000 from the funds of the Northern Bank to the Carnegie Trust Company on the threat, Robin said, that if he did not do so the City Chamberlain would withdraw the city's funds from the Northern Bank. This point interested the Justices of the Appellate Division, to judge from the questions they asked yesterday.

"What constitutes a bribe?" asked Justice Laughlin.

"A matter of value to him; a matter of personal favor," said Assistant District Attorney Clark. "If, for instance, I make an agreement with you that if you'll do a favor for a third party, a friend of mine, and I will return the favor by depositing $130,000 more with you or increase the amount already deposited, that's a bribe."

"What personal advantage was it to the Chamberlain?" asked Justice Scott.

"Hyde was continually receiving favors from the Carnegie Trust Company," was the answer.

"What favors?" asked Justice McLaughlin.

"Cummins," replied Assistant District Attorney Clarke, referring to the former Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Trust company, "was a banker trying to keep the Carnegie Trust Company going. Hyde had never met him until March, 1910, and Cummins favored him by giving his brother-in-law a position in a Southern company."

"But this was long before the alleged bribery," said Justice McLaughlin.

"True," responded Mr. Clark, "but other favors of value might come from the Carnegie Trust Company. Hyde sent man after man to Cummins and asked him to help them out."

"If Hyde had told Robin that he wanted him to lend the money to the Carnegie Trust Company because the city had $800,000 on deposit and that he was liable, it would not have been a crime, would it?" Justice Scott asked.

"It would have been laudable."

"It would not have been a crime," responded the lawyer, "it would have been laudable. If Hyde had told Robin that if he did not lend the money he would have to withdraw the $130,000 he had on deposit with the Northern Bank in order to conserve the larger amount he had on deposit with the trust company, that would have been laudable. But he did not do that. He asked him to help his friends out," was the answer.

"You mean, then, if Hyde had made the arrangement with Robin in the hope of saving the city's money that would have been laudable on his part, but when he did it for friends, that was a crime?" asked Justice Scott.

"Yes, sir," was the reply, "that is the contention of the District Attorney."

"Don't you think that you should be able to lay your finger on some particular favor?" asked Justice Scott.

"Yes, sir, and I think we have. Hyde was paying for past favors and for favors to come from the Carnegie Trust Company. When he wanted financial favors for himself or his friends he knew he could get them from the Carnegie Trust Company, and he did get them."

COMMODITIES MARKETS

Cotton closed steady, net unchanged to 5 points higher after new high prices had been reached. Grains were steady while Chicago prices advanced to a parity with New York's closing prices of Tuesday. Cottonseed Oil prices were narrow and irregular.

WHEAT.

There was a very steady undertone to the wheat market during yesterday's operations, but while the Western markets which had closed on Tuesday advanced to a parity with the markets which were open, price changes as a rule were within narrow bounds and there was an absence of aggressive operations. Sentiment appeared to lean a little toward the bull side owing to repeated rumors of export sales. Exporters were not disposed to disclose the amount of business being accomplished, but it was generally understood that a fairly good trade is being done in Manitoba wheat, and sales were reported of about 10 loads. Furthermore, most of the large stocks now on the Lakes is believed to have been sold for export, and this week will doubtless move out with the opening of navigation. Hedging operations have doubtless been made against practically all of this wheat, and the nature of undoing hedges when the wheat finally changes hands is expected to have an important bearing on values. The foreign markets were somewhat lower than expected, sentiment abroad being influenced by the more peaceful developments in connection with the Balkan war, as well as on more favorable reports regarding the European crop situation. India was said to be offering wheat more freely for early shipment, and harvesting operations were said to be progressing more favorably. The weather in the West was generally satisfactory and crop advices were favorable. The United States visible supply showed a decrease for the week of 1,490,000 bushels, compared with a decrease last year of 3,011,000, while Bradstreet's world's visible decreased 3,514,000, compared with a decrease a year ago of 535,000. The local cash market was firm. No. 2 red Winter wheat was quoted at $1.11½, elevator, and $1.13, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern Spring, $1.00⅝, free on board, afloat.

CORN.

The corn market was moderately active and firmer, Chicago closing at an advance of ⅝ to ¾c from the final of Monday. Commission houses were good buyers and offerings were small owing to a show of firmness in the spot position and reports that country commission houses were trying to cancel contracts in Chicago owing to the fact that other points were bidding higher prices. The United States visible supply decreased 1,191,000 bushels, compared with a decrease last year of 287,000, and Bradstreet's visible decreased 1,411,000, compared with an increase of 15,000 last year. Export corn in the local market was quoted at 57⅝ to 58c, free on board, afloat. Export sales for the day were five loads.

COTTON.

The cotton market showed continued strength during yesterday's early trading, and prices made new high ground for the movement, but a good deal of realizing was encountered, and reactions occurred, with the close steady, net unchanged to 5 points higher. The news seemed conflicting. Disappointing cables, financial troubles in Europe, naval demonstrations against Montenegro emphasizing the existence of questions still unsettled in the Balkans, and reports of renewed farm work following the last few days of favorable weather in the South, undoubtedly served to inspire more or less selling. On the other hand, the Mississippi Valley situation seemed as serious, or even more serious than ever, owing to the fact that official estimates of high water were increased, and because of indications of rains in the flooded districts. Moreover, the official forecasts were for unsettled or showery weather in the South, and the eastward progress of the low barometer west of the belt was viewed with some anxiety.

The market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 3 points, and after some little irregularity became firm on the unsettled weather outlook and flood predictions. Prices advanced rather sharply, old crop positions selling 12 points above the closing figures of Tuesday, while the new crop worked about 7 to 9 points net higher. There was a lot of cotton for sale on this advance, particularly after a few stop orders had been uncovered, and while there was no change in the general character of the news, it was rumored that leading long lines were being reduced. With local traders little disposed to regard any possible flood as an ultimately bullish factor on the new crop outlook, the easier turn probably inspired some bear pressure as well as increased realizing, and the market reacted to practically the closing figures of Tuesday night. Foreign houses were buyers here again during the morning, and many believed that Liverpool would have been much better had not some scattering Continental liquidation been caused by unsettled financial conditions in Germany. Southern spot markets officially reported were unchanged to ⅛c higher; generally unchanged.

PROVISIONS.

The provision market was easier early in the day under increased selling, part of which was credited to packers, but prices were said to be below a parity with hogs, and late in the session the market rallied and closed near the top. Receipts of hogs at Chicago were 32,000, estimated for Thursday 26,000; Kansas City received 10,000, and Omaha 11,000.

COTTONSEED OIL.

Price changes in the cottonseed oil market were comparatively narrow and somewhat irregular. The near positions were relatively firmer than the late months owing to firmness in the spot position, and a disposition on the part of longs to take profits in the more distant positions. There was more or less profit taking, but offerings were not as heavy as experienced at the close on Tuesday, and there were evidences of further covering, as well as buying for outside account. The firmness in lard and continued light offerings of crude were again stimulating factors, and sentiment was more or less influenced by the fact that the market experienced a sharp advance about this time last year. COFFEE.

Unsettled conditions in Europe, including numerous failures in Berlin, had their influence abroad, Havre declining 1¼ franc, while Hamburg was 1 to 1¼ pfennig lower. The New York market opened 12 to 15 points lower. Price changes were narrow, the close being 12 points net lower on total sales of 87,500 bags. The world's visible supply showed a decrease during March of 340,118 bags, bringing the total to 11,664,077 bags, compared with 12,240,215 bags last year, when the decrease during March was 340,032 bags. Total deliveries for the last nine months decreased about 400,000 bags from last year. Total receipts of Brazilian coffee this season are about 650,000 bags less than last year.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Trading in Stocks Smaller—Prices React in Narrow Movement.

A lull in the forward movement in prices accompanied by a curtailment of business left the stock market at the close yesterday a small fraction on the average under Tuesday's final prices. In a measure this was a normal slowing down of trading after the unusually brisk advance of the previous day, but there were elements in the day's news which offered at least partial explanation of a specific kind for the reaction. For one thing the political news from abroad was somewhat mixed, including as it did the continued refusal of Montenegro to accede to the demand which the powers have made that the attack on Scutari be suspended. Some concern was felt lest independence of action by that and other Balkan States might lead to complications delaying the happy settlement which seemed to have been brought very near by recent events, including the fall of Adrianople. Generally speaking, monetary conditions moved in favorable channels yesterday, but at least two of the great markets were somewhat disturbed by the political news. Paris was one of the two, and Berlin the other, but in the latter market a further decline in the discount rate and a statement from the Imperial Bank, which showed less strain than the German money market had been subjected to at the close of the March quarter last year, finally prevailed over political hesitation and the market there closed strong. The situation which has developed over the stand taken by Montenegro is illustrative of course, of the fact that the settlement of the Balkan War is a complex matter calling for delicate adjustments, but there is no reason for abandoning the hope which the markets have lately expressed in practical manner that the much-wished-for settlement will be arrived at before long. The check which this phase of the situation put upon a further advance in prices did not extend to the elimination of foreign buying in this market but this was continued on a much smaller scale. Our own money market situation developed favorably. Call loans were renewed at 4½ per cent. compared with 6 per cent. on Tuesday showing that the money market was rapidly passing from under the influence of the special demands which had to be met on April 1. The tendency of time money was also distinctly easy.

What Wall Street heard yesterday regarding the conference held on Tuesday between the Attorney General and the Chairman of the Union Pacific, found reflection in a somewhat larger reaction in Union Pacific than that which marked the movement of prices as a whole. This in part was due to nothing more than the fact that any understanding between the Union Pacific and the Government in respect to the new plan has been postponed because of the desire of the Attorney General to take time for more extended consideration of the suggestions made to him by the railroad. But beyond this it was also due in part to suggestions heard yesterday that the Union Pacific's intention not to include in its new plan any arrangement in respect to the Central Pacific, a course which is acceptable to the Southern Pacific Committee, may not entirely meet the views of the Government. Were it not for the obstacles presented the Union Pacific would gladly take over the Central Pacific surrendering for the stock of that subsidiary of the Southern Pacific the bulk of the Union Pacific's holdings of Southern Pacific Company stock.

An arrangement in that simple form would practically call for no financing and would be regarded as an easy solution were it not for the many and serious practical difficulties which stand in the way. Not the least of these is the attitude which the California Railroad Commission has already taken regarding a sale of the Central Pacific by the Southern Pacific. On the other hand that provision of the old plan was inserted to meet the strongly expressed views of Mr. McReynolds's predecessor regarding the right of the Southern Pacific to continue in control of the Central Pacific. That relationship was not directly affected by the decree which the Supreme Court has rendered, but a transfer of the Central to the Union Pacific was included in the old plan to put it in a form which Mr. Wickersham would approve. It was said yesterday to be now an open question whether Mr. McReynolds will feel that the new Union Pacific plan should also include an arrangement for some change in the present relationship between Central Pacific and Southern Pacific. If that were to be insisted upon the formulation of a new plan would be much more difficult than it will be if it is confined to the mere disposal by the Union Pacific of its holdings of Southern Pacific stock. It was believed that it would take another week for the Union Pacific to know on just what lines it must proceed to draw a plan which can be presented to the Court with the approval of the Attorney General. To go to the Court without that approval would course greatly lessen the chances of the plan being accepted by the Court.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

An Unpopular Institution.

One of the most prominent members of the Stock Exchange returned to his office yesterday from a little trip into a neighboring State and hastened to lock himself in. He had heard so many uncomplimentary opinions of the Exchange that he thought he might be arrested for being a broker. The Pujo inquiry, the decline in security values, the hostile attitude taken by some of the influential legislators at Albany, and the campaign of misinformation carried on by one or two prominent newspapers were, in his opinion, responsible for what he called the creation of false ideas regarding the Exchange's functions. At the outset the broker tried to do a little missionary work, by setting people right, but he relinquished the task as beyond his power. One successful business man based his animosity to the Exchange on the fact that he had lost $30,000 some years ago in a disreputable bucket-shop.

A Changed Policy.

The Stock Exchange used to be a shining mark for politicians, notoriety seeking lawyers, and newspapers wishing to become known as champions of "the common people." If a man lost his money in any kind of a gamble he chose to pose as a martyr who had speculated in stocks, and it was a rare and hard hearted jury that did not sympathize with an embezzler who charged Wall Street with having led him astray. The Exchange as an institution ignored all of these insidious attacks, and it is now paying its penalty. In recent months the Governors have opened the Exchange's affairs to public view, and the glamour of mystery, which had hung so long over its dealings, has been largely blown away. Though the standard of morality on the Stock Exchange may be as high as that of any institution in this country, it is going to be a long and patience-trying job to convince the majority of people that this is so.

The Kendall Charges.

When an Albany correspondent began sending down stories alleging the use of Stock Exchange money to influence legislation President Mabon issued a categorical denial. When President Kendall of the New York Bank Note Company offered Gov. Sulzer "undocumentary and hearsay evidence" of Stock Exchange bribery, and the Exchange authorities were asked for a statement, they called attention to this denial, a week or ten days old. Having disposed of the charge once they considered the subject closed. The trouble with the newspaper reading public is that it wants a fresh denial or proof with every fresh charge. It cares little about what has been said on the subject in times past.

Demand for Bonds Improves.

Each succeeding day of the week has shown a distinct improvement in the sale of bonds on the Stock Exchange over the day before, although the records of corresponding sessions of last year have not been approached, and the aggregate of transactions in 1913 to date is about $122,000,000 behind the total of the same period in 1912. Local traction securities were in particular prominence yesterday, especially Brooklyn Rapid Transit convertible 4s, which matched the activity and strength of the common stock of the company by advancing a full point from low to high prices under sales of nearly $335,000 in par value. New York Railway adjustment 5s sold to the extent of more than $300,000 par value and Interborough-Metropolitan 4½s displayed firmness. The demand for bonds appeared to those who kept close watch on the ticker to be best at times in the afternoon when business in stocks eased off temporarily.

The German Settlement.

The statement of condition of the Imperial Bank of Germany after supplying the major part of the needs of the April settlement showed yesterday that there was by no means as great a foundation for fear of serious trouble in Berlin as was thought in some quarters of Wall Street a fortnight ago. The bank's return was better in the more important items than a year ago at the corresponding date. The increase of loans and discounts was $133,000,000 this year and $151,000,000 twelve months ago. The cash loss was reported as $15,900,000 this week and $24,000,000 in the first week of April, 1912. The increase in circulation of notes was $4,000,000 greater in the former statement than in the report for the present week. The several failures of banking institutions in a German town, which were reported yesterday, proved to be of no great significance, and dispatches from Berlin were mostly to the effect that no material difficulty is expected by the banks in meeting all requirements of the settlement.

Lull in Commercial Paper.

Commercial paper dealers said yesterday that they looked for a livelier market within a few days than has existed in several months. The return to the banks of funds paid out for interest and dividends at the first of the month, they said, ought to stimulate the buying of paper by the banks which will mature next August, September and October, when the West calls for money from this centre for crop needs. Sales of mercantile notes on a 5¾ per cent. basis were reported, although the prevailing quotation for the six-months period remained at 6 per cent., and very little business was done outside of the rediscounting of notes for customers out of the city. The representative of a large Chicago commercial paper house said that the floods of the Middle West had placed a check on transactions in commercial paper in that city, which was more serious in its effect than was realized by the banks of the East. Several merchants who had been large borrowers in time past were completely out of business, with practically all their assets destroyed. It was more than likely that a full report of the disaster would show, he said, that the aggregate of business men who would have to make a new start would be startling.

BOURSES OF EUROPE

London Market Depressed on Montenegrin Situation—Weakness in Paris.

By Marconi Transatlantic Wireless Telegraph to The New York Times.

LONDON, Thursday, April 3.—The Times in its City article to-day will say:

"Most houses were anxious to have plenty of cash yesterday morning, in view of the big total indebtedness at the Bank. On the whole, the market rather overprovided itself. After the Bank had been paid all that was due, day-to-day advances, which had been in some demand, were offered, and the market was in an easy position all the afternoon. The inquiry for bills slackened a little. Discount rates, after presenting a weak appearance, became steady at about Tuesday's level.

"The Stock Exchange passed another disappointing day. The markets, under the influence of the foreign political uncertainty of business, continued to dwindle. Except for the demand for scrips of recent issues, the investing public appeared to take no interest in the markets. The dullness of most leading departments was due more to the absence of business than to pressure to sell. Canadian Pacific Railway shares, after being alternately firm and weak, finally showed little change on the balance, while American shares closed rather dull, most of the life having gone out of the market. Foreign stocks showed moderate strength, in spite of the fact that there was a certain amount of selling for the French account."

PARIS, April 2.—The Bourse was depressed to-day and prices ruled irregular.

Three per cent. rentes, 86 francs 95 centimes for the account.

BERLIN, April 2.—The Boerse opened rather weak under realizing to-day, but the market later reacted, and closed strong.

Canadian Pacific, shipping shares, and German Government bonds were active leaders in the advance.

The return of the Imperial Bank was considerably better than had been expected. Although it had had to issue $136,000,000 of notes in order to tide over the final week of March, the aggregate depreciation in its status was $20,750,000 less than at the same period in 1912.

Anxiety in regard to the financial situation in Germany is subsiding rapidly. Rates for money are falling steadily, and outsiders are beginning to purchase stocks.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

While the standard stocks were reflecting heaviness in the market on the Consolidated Stock Exchange, a number of the specialties had much attention accorded to them at rising prices. A feature of this group was United States Rubber, which touched a high price at the close of the day, a small fraction above the high on the New York Stock Exchange. American Can and Brooklyn Rapid Transit were also strong and active, but their high prices were slightly under the other exchange. The reaction in the general list, it was noted, did not bring out much stock, with the undertone reflecting firmness.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Stock Exchange has admitted to trading $10,000,000 5 per cent. debenture bonds of the General Electric Company, due 1952, and has stricken from the list the temporary receipts of J. P. Morgan & Co. for this issue.

M. E. de Aguero, President of the Consolidated Stock Exchange, and the Exchange's Legislative Committee will go to Albany on April 9 to appear in favor of the Senate bill for repeal of the transfer tax on stocks.

C. Q. Whitten was elected a Director of the Isle Royale Copper Mining Company yesterday to succeed T. N. Perkins. Other Directors were re-elected.

Sternberger, Sinn & Co. announce the opening of a new branch office at Sunset Avenue and Boardwalk, Asbury Park, N. J., in place of their old office at 629 Madison Avenue.

Charles Henry Mattlage has been elected a Director of the Fidelity Trust Company to succeed his father, the late Charles F. Mattlage.

PACIFICS STILL UNSETTLED.

Judge Lovett Weary of Thinking How Dissolution May Be Effected.

Following his return from a conference with Attorney General McReynolds over the Union Pacific dissolution problem, Judge R. S. Lovett, Chairman, said yesterday that he had not submitted even a provisional plan to the Department of Justice, although he had left a number of documents with the Attorney General for his attention.

"All that we have done is to put the entire subject so far as we are able before the Attorney General, so that he may indicate to us what his attitude will be on various positions," said Judge Lovett. "The principal feature is, of course, the question as to how we can dispose of our $126,650,000 of Southern Pacific stock without needless sacrifice. I do not know whether the court would allow us to retain any part of this stock."

The Union Pacific has until May 10 to arrange a separation from Southern Pacific that will satisfy the court. Asked if he thought a working plan would be ready before that time, Judge Lovett said he did.

"What I was trying to get at," said his questioner, "was whether or not you think there is a possibility of a receivership under which the court itself will devise a way of ridding the Union Pacific treasury of the Southern Pacific stock."

"I don't know what to expect," said Judge Lovett, a little wearily. "I don't much care."

EXCHANGE BILL UP TO-DAY.

Untermyer and Milburn Are to Clash Over Incorporation.

A spirited clash is looked for to-day when Samuel Untermyer, summoned to Albany by Gov. Sulzer, meets John G. Milburn, counsel for the New York Stock Exchange, in the hearing on the proposed bill to compel the incorporation of the Exchange. Mr. Untermyer believes so strongly in the incorporation measure that he recommended in his report on the work of the Pujo Committee that the use of the mails be denied any unincorporated Exchange.

Mr. Milburn will be accompanied by J. B. Mabon, President, and Charles M. Newcombe, Vice President of the Stock Exchange, and by William C. Van Antwerp, H. K. Pomroy and H. S. Martin, the latter the Assistant Secretary of the Exchange. The Merchants Association, the Chamber of Commerce and the Fifth Avenue Association will also be represented by delegations opposed to the passage of the Stilwell measure.

The President and Legislative Committee of the Consolidated Stock Exchange will go to Albany on April 9 to appear at the Senate hearing on the bill to repeal the $2 tax on stock transfers.

BOARD OF TRADE CAMPAIGN.

Organization Seeks to Obtain 1,500 More Members.

The New York Board of Trade and Transportation, which was organized in 1873 by Mayor Havemyer, H. B. Claflin and other merchants has started a campaign to increase the membership by 1,500. In inaugurating this campaign, John Winfield Scott sends out this leter:

Dear Mr. New Yorker:

Here is a thing to which you should belong. The New York Board of Trade and Transportation. It is forty years and more old. Has always been at work for New York. Has a long list of good things done, good men at work. More than 1,500 such men from all lines of trade. More should add their help. The new questions of the time need plain speech from men wise by practice. This would make public opinion wise. If all the brains of all New Yorkers were at work to make New York a true metropolitan leader of the Western Hemisphere it would not be too much for her; it would help America. Help New York to see what is best to do and how to do it, and she will do her part. It is thought that 1,500 new members would help.

Write for application blank and facts about the work the board has done for you freely, and come along.

This board, like the London Chamber of Commerce, is a central body, with trade sections. It has several such and would welcome others of the right kind. New York's chief assets are her geographical relation to the American Hemisphere and the resulting commerce. If this city of merchants and manufacturers cannot insure wisdom in civic affairs, how can they hope for confidence in their business? Think what they might do with the metropolitan district. "The Nickel Area" a twenty-five-mile radius from City Hall.

Those who know how things are done at New York City Hall, in the Legislature, and Congress say that this board is in a class by itself—does not pose as a rival to any—it does its own work.

GOULD STILL IN WABASH.

George J. Says He Sold His Personal Stock Long Ago, but Holds Bonds.

George J. Gould, who was at his office at 165 Broadway yesterday after a several weeks' vacation, denied that he had sold all of his personal holdings of Wabash Railroad bonds. It was said in the Pollitz trial that Mr. Gould had sold nearly all his Wabash securities.

"Some five or six years ago I sold for the estate some Wabash preferred and common stock and some bonds," said Mr. Gould. "I also sold my personal holdings of stock, but am still the holder of bonds. The estate is still the largest single holder of Wabash securities. I did not sell Wabash securities either for the estate or for my personal account just prior to the receivership, or in anticipation of the receivership. Since the property went into the hands of the courts I have not sold any Wabash securities."

ADD TO SMELTERS BOARDS.

Simon Guggenheim Elected in One Company and Samuel in Another.

The Board of Directors of the American Smelting and Refining Company was increased from twenty-five to twenty-six members at the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday, and the by-laws were amended so as to increase the Executive Committee by the addition of a new member.

Simon Guggenheim was elected to the board and the Executive Committee as the additional member. Samuel Guggenheim was elected to the same offices in the American Smelters Securities Company after the stockholders had ratified increases similar to those of the Smelting and Refining Company.

CHICAGO'S TRACTION MELON.

City to Have a Slice of Profits Amounting to $2,500,992.

CHICAGO, April 2.—As a partner in the operation of the surface traction lines, the city of Chicago will receive within the next ten days $2,500,992 as its 55 per cent. of the net receipts for the last year, it was made known to-day. The city's share this year is $695,048 more than that paid a year ago, and far in excess of any other year's profits since the passage of the traction ordinance in 1907.

The total amount which the city has received under the ordinances, including the amount to be turned over next week, is $10,334,200. The accrued interest to date is $400,000, making the special traction fund approximately $11,000,000.

Since the passage of the ordinances six years ago the companies have expended $80,000,000 in rebuilding lines, purchasing new equipment and in making extensions.

IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

Veils Will Be Worn.

Little apprehension is felt among wholesalers of veilings in this city over the opinion expressed by Sir John Cockburn, M. D., is a wireless dispatch from London, in yesterday's TIMES, that the continued use of veils causes the deterioration of the features.

"While Dr. Cockburn's contention may be justified from a medical point of view," said one of them, "there is little reason to believe that it will carry much weight with the women of this or any other country. Most of them are willing to risk ultimate deterioration to follow the mandates of fashion and to experience the comfort that arises from the knowledge that their hats are on straight on windy days, and that their hair does not look a 'fright.'"

⁂

Produce Men Give Thanks.

The Publicity Committee of the Fruit and Produce Association and the National League of Commission Merchants has issued a bulletin commending the Cole bill recently introduced at Albany and thanking those who were responsible for its drafting. In part, the bulletin says:

"The enactment into law of the new Cole bill should be assured. It is workable and helpful to both farmer and seller. Let farmer and commission merchant now unite in urging its passage; its provisions would restore confidence.

"We are grateful to the officers of the State Grange and Assemblyman Cole for the spirit of fairness shown. We are also grateful to ex-State Senator E. M. Travis for his assistance in bringing together the farmer and the commission merchant."

⁂

Exports of Cottons Light.

Business continues light in the export end of the local cotton goods market. The markets of lesser importance are furnishing a fair amount of business only, and the financial condition of China is hindering business from that country. Orders are running small generally.

Exports of domestics and cotton duck from New York in the week ended March 29 totaled 7,768 packages, and were valued at $610,024. Shipments to the Philippines led, with a value of $319,885, while exports to British possessions in Africa came second, with $44,401. The total value for the year to date is $11,806,257.

Imported Canned Goods.

The demand for foreign canned goods in this market is uneven. Imported sardines are in good call, but stocks are light. Holland and Scotch herrings are dull, and mackerel is little wanted. There has been no change in the price or demand for olive oil. Good edible qualities are being firmly held. Spanish pimentos, in both half-pound and pound cans, are hard to get, and supplies of the former are practically exhausted. Present stocks of Italian garlic are practically worthless, according to the Strohmeyer & Arpex Company. The week's shipments of Irish mackerel are given as 306 barrels.

⁂

Silk Trade Better.

Encouraging reports concerning the strike situation in Paterson have caused a visible brightening in the local silk market. Stocks were getting down to levels that caused some of the trade to worry over the future, but it was believed yesterday that a serious shortage would be averted. Aside from an improved demand for plaids and checked silks, there is little new in current business. The floods in the Middle West have already caused some canceling by the cutters there.

Fall business is progressing favorably, with a somewhat improved call noted for warp-printed silks. The price tendency is distinctly upward.

Sashes Coming Back.

Local ribbon merchants are pleased over the growth of the vogue for sashes throughout the country. This was predicted by leading members of the trade some months ago, but there was little indication of justification until a week or two ago. The present movement of all kinds of ribbons will assure the trade of one of the best general seasons in years. Stocks are dwindling rapidly under the demand and hampered production, but price advances are not keeping up with the depletion. This fact is causing some concern among the leading houses. Some of the largest producers, however, are holding off for higher figures on Fall orders.

⁂

Printcloths Again Dull.

The local printcloth market suffered a relapse yesterday. Some spot sales of 38½-inch, 64-60s, were made at 5 1-16 cents, and a few odd lots of 39-inch, 68-72s, moved at 5 9-16 cents for quick delivery. A fair business was reported in sateens and twills. The price tendency was weak. The mills were looking for business, and may buyers believed that bottom had not yet been reached. The day's quotations follow:

27-inch,	56-52s....3c	38½-inch,	64-60s	...5c
27-inch,	56-56s..3 3-16c	38½-inch,	64-64s	...5⅛c
27-inch,	64-60s....3½c	39-inch,	68-72s	....5½c
28-inch,	64-60s....3⅝c	39-inch,	72-76s	....6⅛c
28-inch,	64-64s....4c	39-inch,	80-80s	....7⅛c

Brown sheetings, Southern standard, 8@8¼c; brown sheetings, 4-yard, 56-60s, 6¼c; denims, 9-ounce, 14@17c; tickings, 8-ounce, 13¾c; standard prints, 5½c, and standard staple ginghams, 6¾c.

⁂

Cotton Market Is Quiet.

Quiet prevails in the primary cotton goods market. Prices are firm, and desirable numbers scarce. Jobbers report advance blanket business ahead of last year, and at higher levels. Wide sheetings and pillow cases are 2 1-2 per cent. higher. There is good demand for bed spreads, cotton damask table coverings and cotton flannels for Fall deliveries. Dress goods most in demand now are ratines, shepherd plaids, plain and bordered cotton voiles, outing flannels and ginghams. Cotton Bedford cords are shown for Fall.

Most buyers are sparring for time on account of tariff uncertainty, and covering only current needs. There is some booking, however, for Spring, 1914.

⁂

Straw Hats Favor Sennits.

Principal straw hats shown are high-crowned, narrow-brimmed sennits, Panamas and Kangkoks. Some pencil-brimmed Mackinaws are seen. For Fall a high-crowned narrow-brimmed stiff Alpine effect in green is featured. Velour and cloth hats will also be strong. Bows will be in the back. A novelty is a brown Alpine with a green silk band. Derbies will have higher crowns and narrower roll brims. Caps will be large and flat, of rough vivid materials.

Knitted and light silk neckwear, in light shades and fancy stripes, are selling well. Darker colors will be in vogue for Fall. English printed square and black and red combinations are gaining popularity.

⁂

Summer Furniture Moving Now.

Good selling is noted in imported rattan and Chinese grass furniture. Porch swings are especially in demand. Manufacturers do not expect a large Fall increase, as conditions are thought too unsettled. Good sales movement is anticipated for novelty effects, such as tea and magazine wagons and work tables. Chamber effects and library work of the Louis XVI., Sheraton and Colonial periods will probably sell freely. Loose leather cushions will be especially featured. A demand is also expected for tapestry effects in cushions and other upholstery.

CONSULAR TRADE NOTES.

The Madrid (Spain) city authorities have accepted the proposals of the Sociedad Fomento de Obras y Construcciones of Barcelona for building the new sewer system of Madrid. At the letting of April 28, 1911, but three proposals were received, and as no proposal was satisfactory a new competition was held in February, at which but one bid, that mentioned above, was received.

The Manitoba (Canada) Government will erect a new Land Titles Building at Manitou some time during next year at a cost of $20,000. For particulars address the Minister of Public Works, Winnipeg.

There has been set aside $1,553,500 (United States currency) for construction work during 1913 on twelve branch railroads belonging to the Chilean Government. The 785 bridges in Chile, with a total length of 110,289 feet, are estimated to have cost $5,605,670, of which $286,633 was expended during 1912.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Saddles, Other Leather Goods, and Gelatin Admitted at Lower Duty.

The Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday sustained a contention by Bartley Brothers & Hall of New York, that saddles in chief value of cowhide were dutiable under the tariff act of 1909, at 20 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 450. Collector Loeb assessed duty at 35 per cent. under paragraph 461 on finished saddles.

It was decided that pig skins and leather belt bellies imported by Charles B. Schultheis were entitled under the present law to enter as rough leather at 7½ per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 451. The Collector levied 15 per cent. ad valorem under the same paragraph on finished leather.

The Board overruled a protest by Gravenhorst & Co. against the classification under the act of 1909, of dog skins, dressed natural goat skins, and furs dressed on the skin assessed at 35 per cent. ad valorem as manufacturers of fur.

Stanley, Jordan & Co. won on gelatin which had been taxed 35 per cent. ad valorem under paragraph 23, act of 1909, as gelatin in sheets, getting a rate of 25 per cent. under the same paragraph on gelatin.

FEWER FAILURES RECORDED.

But Liabilities Were Larger for the Comparative Quarter.

The number of commercial failures in the first quarter of the year, says Bradstreet's, were fewer than in the corresponding period of 1912, but the liabilities were larger than in any first quarter since 1908. Suspensions reported amounted to 3,913, against 4,010, while liabilities aggregated $63,129,956, in contrast with $52,997,305 in the opening quarter of 1912. The acute state of the money market in February and March was the cause assigned for the actual failure of a number of large enterprises, and, additionally, for the embarrassment of some other solvent concerns whose creditors have granted extensions.

Failures reported to Dun's Review numbered 4,458, with a defaulted indebtedness of $76,832,458, against 4,828 with a defaulted indebtedness of $63,012,323 in the opening quarter of the past year.

FLOOD STOPS STEEL RECORD

Things Moving at Fastest Pace When It Came—Work Resumed.

Discussing current developments in the iron and steel trade, The Iron Age says in its issue of to-day:

> But for the flood March would have been a record month in output of pig iron and steel. The pig iron statistics are not yet available, but they promise to exceed the total for the twenty-eight days of February. First and last the loss in blast furnace output may be 250,000 tons or more.
>
> As many as fifty-five furnaces were banked when the floods were at their worst. About forty of these are now in blast, and probably ten more will be going by the end of the week.
>
> Property loss to iron and steel works by the floods is not yet heavy when compared with the loss of business. At Sharon, Penn., and Youngstown, Ohio, a number of open-hearth furnaces which were hot when the water reached them are seriously damaged. A heavy loss, which will be accumulating for many days, is in the dislocation of railroad operations over a wide area.

The Iron Trade Review says:

> The iron trade is emerging cheerfully from the chatoic condition into which it was plunged by floods of the past week. Although fifty blast furnaces and many large steel plants were compelled to suspend temporarily, only two furnaces in the valleys and two in Cleveland have found it necessary to blow out. Nearly all other furnaces are already at work, and steel plants and finishing mills are rapidly being placed in condition to resume. Property loss to these industries will not be very large, but some foundries and machine shops in the flooded districts will suffer severely.
>
> The indications are that the melt of pig iron by the foundries has not decreased to any appreciable extent, and the resumption of steel plants will not be far behind that of the furnaces. It seems probable that the effect of the catastrophe will be to strengthen the pig iron market. During the past week the principal buying has been in Eastern territory.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Deal Near Fourth Avenue for Business Building—Club Buys in 56th Street—West Side Transactions—Good Brooklyn Market—Big Apartment Leased From W. K. Vanderbilt.

Building in the Fourth Avenue district continues with considerable activity, and as the result of a sale yesterday another new commercial structure is about to be erected on a plot adjoining the southwest corner of Fourth Avenue and Thirtieth Street. The property sold includes the three old dwellings at 40, 42 and 44 East Thirtieth Street, 50.3 by 98.9 feet, purchased by Mrs. Maria S. Simpson from Mrs. Franklin S. Henry. Plans are being prepared for the new structure, but the height has not yet been determined. Adjoining the plot on the Fourth Avenue corner is the recently completed Passavant Building. A few doors to the west is the Martha Washington Hotel, and the old dwellings next to this, including the southeast corner of Madison Avenue, were purchased some time ago by Charles Kaye for improvement, with a twenty-story building, for which plans were lately filed in the Building Department.

The recent deal was closed through the office of Horace S. Ely & Co.

St. Anthony Clubhouse in Trade.

The five-story American basement dwelling at 17 West Fifty-sixth Street has been purchased by St. Anthony Association from the estate of Edith S. Logan. It covers a plot 23.4 by 100.5 and will be remodeled for the new clubhouse of the St. Anthony Association. In part payment the present clubhouse at 29 East Twenty-eighth Street was given, a plot 25 by 98.9, held at $85,000, while the value of the Fifty-sixth Street property figured in the trade at $135,000. E. de Forest Simmons negotiated the deal.

Brixton Co. Increases Holdings.

Edwin S. Brickner, President of the Brixton Construction Company, has increased his holdings on West Seventy-ninth Street by the purchase of 144, a three-story dwelling on a lot 20 by 102.2 feet, from Elizabeth J. Heuel.

Mr. Brickner recently purchased the three adjoining dwellings, 138 to 142 West Seventy-ninth Street, and now controls a plot 78 by 102.2 feet.

This will either be sold to a builder or improved by the owner with a twelve-story apartment house.

Builders Buy Washington Heights Plots.

A large vacant plot, 100 by 100, on the north side of 141st Street, 250 feet west of Broadway, has been sold by Newmark & Davis to the B. V. Construction Company for improvement with a nine-story apartment house. It is part of the Riverside Drive block front acquired by the seller some time ago from the Hoquet estate, the Riverside Drive portion of which is being improved with twelve-story apartments.

Further north Robert B. Dula purchased from the Pullman Holding Company a plot 100 by 240 feet on the east side of Northern Avenue, 349 feet north of 181st Street. This is the buyer's second investment in that vicinity. Last July he bought from Henry G. Autenrieth a plot 201.8 by 224.2 by irregular on Northern Avenue, 106 feet north of his present purchase. The property is opposite the Dr. Charles V. Paterno residence. The Loton H. Slawson Company negotiated the transaction.

Tenement Property in Demand.

Two deals in the tenement house district on the lower west side were reported yesterday involving about $130,000. In this transaction the two five-story tenements 113 and 115 Mercer Street, on a plot 50 by 100 feet, were sold by the Lewis Realty Company to the Improvers Land Company. In exchange the buyer gave a large tract of land on Richmond Avenue, Port Richmond, S. I.

An investor has purchased from Amelia K. Smith and Emma L. King 414 West Broadway, running through to 90 and 92 Thompson Street, old buildings, on plot fronting 25 feet on West Broadway and 50 feet on Thompson Street, with a southerly line of 163.5 feet and being irregular on the northerly line. The property is located 100 feet north of Spring Street.

In East Harlem the Basonio Construction Company purchased from Margaret T. Johnston the five-story tenement, with stores, 251 East 125th Street, on plot 28 by 99.11. Peter A. H. Jackson's Sons were the brokers.

Recent Buyers.

Franklin Pettit is the buyer of the block front on the south side of 167th Street, between St. Nicholas and Audubon Avenues, reported sold yesterday by the Huggins estate.

The plot has frontages of 84.10 feet on St. Nicholas Avenue, 80 feet on Audubon Avenue and 179.4 feet on 167th Street.

Samuel W. Bridgham is the buyer of the lot on Fifth Avenue between Seventy-sixth and Seventy-seventh Streets sold by Mrs. Cora Dillon Wyckoff.

Bronx Borough.

Ernst & Cahn have sold for Mrs. Rachel Butt the two and one-half story frame dwelling 2768 Decatur Avenue, on lot 37.6 by 100.

A. J. Madden resold for the Dwyer & Cary Construction Company the northwest corner of Prospect Avenue and 150th Street, a vacant lot 25 by 100 feet.

The Polak Realty Company and David Kraus have sold to Henry C. Kraft, the lot 112 by 100, situated on the west side of Findlay Avenue, between 169th and 170th Streets. The buyer will improve the property with apartment houses.

Brooklyn.

Negotiations are pending between the Berry estate and Leo C. Teller for the purchase of a plot of land on Broadway, between Grove and Linden Streets, running back to Bushwick Avenue, as a theatre site. The price named is $180,000.

The Weinboro Realty Company has filed plans for the erection of a twelve-story office building at the corner of Court and Joralemon Streets on the site of the old four-story business building recently demolished. The building will cost about $400,000.

Twelve five-story brick and stone single flats, known as 466, 468, and 486 Prospect Place, and 495 to 513 Park Place, have been sold by Marck & May to various clients.

The buildings are on the old Adelphia Athletic Field, on which thirty-four similar structures were recently erected.

Siris & Maltzman have purchased from William Brunce for investment, on the southwest corner of Third and Rodney Streets, a plot, 40 by 47.8 feet. Joseph Wetzger was the broker.

Suburban.

Frank B. Goodliffe has sold for Mrs. Anna F. Finch, the Finch estate of fifty-three acres on the Albany Post Road at Crugers to Charles S. Cosgrove of New York City. This property was the last remaining parcel of its size for sale near the river on the Post Road.

The William M. Benjamin Company, in conjunction with C. R. Duffie, have sold for Louis A. Ripley, a tract of over 200 acres at Litchfield, Conn., with residence and numerous outbuildings, including one of the largest apple orchards in the State of Connecticut. The purchaser is a well-known New Yorker.

Staten Island.

Mrs. John Pendleton has sold, through Cornelius G. Kolff, to Clarence J. Primm, a plot on Pendleton Avenue, between Prospect Avenue and Franklin Avenue, New Brighton. It is 50 by 217 feet. Mr. Primm contemplates the erection of a house.

W. K. Vanderbilt Leases $20,000 Apartment.

Pease & Elliman have leased for William K. Vanderbilt, a duplex apartment of twenty-seven rooms, at 49 East Fifty-second Street, to Mrs. A. J. Cordier of Brooklyn. The building is a seven-story structure, containing three apartments, the one just leased having been held at $20,000 a year.

Leases.

Douglas L. Elliman & Co. have leased a store, at 1,204 Third Avenue, for I. Randolph Jacobs, to Feibel & Haas.

Carstein & Linnekin have leased for a term of years for Robert Goelet and the Duchess of Roxburghe, the twelve-story building, at 450 to 454 Fourth Avenue, 60.3 by 80. The lessee is Shepherd Knapp De Forest of Lakewood, N. J., who owns the adjoining property at the corner of Thirty-first Street. The first-named property was recently foreclosed by the Goelets.

Daniel Birdsall & Co. have leased the building at 20 and 22 Worth Street to Austin Nichols & Co.; the first floor and basement at 81 Warren Street to the Travers's Twine & Cordage Company, and the first floor and basement at 62 Reade Street to the Union Twist Drill Company.

William H. Whiting & Co. have rented the store and basement at 65 Fulton Street to Victor I. Altschul, and the store and basement at 68 Dey Street to Louis Knell.

Newport Lease.

De Blois & Eldridge have leased for Alonzo Potter his cottage in Rhode Island Avenue, Newport, R. I., known as the Gables, to Mrs. S. E. Raynor of New York for the season.

Certified Income Realty at Auction.

The first investors' certified income sale of properties at auction will be held by Joseph P. Day to-day at noon, in the Exchange Salesroom, 14 Vesey Street. The sale of properties at auction under this plan is a new one in the auction market. The result of this sale is being watched with deep interest. All possible steps have been taken to reasonably safeguard the purchaser in looking up the properties as to mortgages, rents, carrying charges, and other essentials to determine the value of the property.

Park Avenue Hearing To-day.

There will be a hearing before the Board of Estimate to-day on the plan to regrade Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, which includes the removal of the mouth of the trolley tunnel to a point just north of Thirty-fourth Street.

Queens Building Record.

The monthly report of the Building Department of the Borough of Queens shows that during March plans for 648 buildings of a valuation of $2,310,180 were filed.

The corresponding period for 1912 gives 571 buildings erected and the value at $2,041,365. This gives an increase of buildings for March, 1913, over March, 1912, of 77, and the increase of values for March, 1913, of $268,715.

From Jan. 1 to March 31 there was an increase of 214 buildings in Queens in excess of those constructed in 1912 in the same months.

Realty Notes.

Upon the protest of George A. Hearn, Capt. B. J. Greenhut, Simpson-Crawford Company, and other business interests in the old Sixth Avenue shopping centre, the Public Service Commission has reconsidered its tentative stations for the Seventh Avenue subway, and will provide a station at Eighteenth Street, which was omitted, stops having been decided for Twenty-third and Fourteenth Streets.

Smith & Phelps have secured for the Kingsley Contracting Company a building loan of $44,000 for the erection of a five-story apartment, 55 by 100, at the southeast corner of Sherman Avenue and 163d Street.

The firm of S. J. Taylor & Co., composed of S. J. Taylor and David Mintz, real estate brokers, have dissolved by mutual consent. David Mintz will continue business at 882 Prospect Avenue, being associated with the office of Alexander Selkin.

George W. Bard will sell at auction a handsome residence and plot on Chester Hill, Mount Vernon, on Saturday on the premises. There is a garage on the property.

PLAN AND MONEY FOR WATER FRONT

Boston Engineer Comes with $85,000,000 Banking Capital for River Terminals.

MARGINAL WAY RAILROAD

Physical Connection with New York Central—Seventeen Warehouses to Do Away with Truck Hauls.

A plan for the construction of a complete rail and water freight terminal system on the west side of the city is to be laid before the Board of Estimate this morning by D. C. Willoughby of Boston. He has the backing of the banking firms of Ladenburg, Thalman & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co., and proposes in return for a franchise of twenty-five years, with one twenty-five-year renewal period, to erect along the marginal way from Thirtieth to Cortlandt Street a freight subway with warehouses above it at intervals.

All the capital is to be provided from private sources, but the city is from the first to have title to the subway, the warehouses, and the terminal facilities. The company would obtain title only to the equipment. Much the same provisions are in the offer as to the right of the city to recapture as are included in the Subway contracts with the Interborough and the Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and the city is to receive 25 per cent. of all profits after operating expenses, amortization charges, and 6 per cent. on the actual capital invested have been paid.

The Willoughby plan was published exclusively in THE NEW YORK TIMES last Autumn, but it has since been somewhat modified, mainly through the substitution of a subway for an elevated line connecting the warehouses. Its main idea lies in the great advantage of cutting to the lowest possible amount the trucking expenses of firms engaged in manufacture or commerce. It is designed, moreover, to do away with the intolerable delays, which occur at the present time through the necessity of sending wagons to the docks, and the long hours that are wasted while the teams stand in line outside the piers.

Speed and Dispatch Assured.

There would be a warehouse for each four blocks, so that for factories and merchants south of Thirtieth Street trucking to the north or south would be almost abolished. All that they would have to do would be to send their goods to the warehouse nearest to them.

To and from these warehouses the freight would be brought by this subway. At present all freight intended for Manhattan, except that carried by the New York Central, is brought either to the steamship piers by ships or to the railroad piers in cars floated across the Hudson River. Outgoing cars are loaded from the goods brought to the piers by wagon. Mr. Willoughby's idea is to do away altogether with the use of the piers for any such purpose as this.

Directly a shipment of goods for a firm is landed from a vessel it would be conveyed by mechanical means to the warehouse in which the firm had retained space, and all the necessary handling of the freight would be done within. In the same way the freight cars of the New Jersey lines would be whisked away by his method to the proper warehouse on this side. There they would be carried by an elevator to a higher floor, where whatever assorting or division was necessary could be done at leisure.

Mr. Willoughby also has a plan, which has not yet been set forth in detail, for the construction of a tunnel for freight under the North River from about Twenty-third Street, with two yards for assorting the trains, one to the east of the marginal way in Manhattan and the other for the general classification of freight trains in the Hackensack Meadows or thereabout.

In the first place, Mr. Willoughby and his associates would construct a six-track subway under the marginal way from Twenty-third Street to Cortland Street, which would be connected by a crossover with a two-track subway under Eleventh Avenue, extending to Thirtieth Street, where it would form a physical connection with the New York Central, which is coming down, according to its new plan, under cover or overhead, from Spuyten Duyvil and through Riverside.

Means for Handling Vehicles.

Mr. Willoughby would erect seventeen warehouses of nine stories each, 750 feet long by 100 feet broad. They would stand immediately over the freight subway, in the middle of the Marginal Way.

The street levels of these warehouses would be so constructed that they could serve as yards for the receipt and discharge of freight, each yard being large enough and sufficiently equipped to handle, without congestion, 300 or 400 vehicles an hour.

In the subway, in addition to the six tracks of the main line, there is to be provided a subsidiary double track standard gauge carrier railway equipped with sidings. It is designed to serve warehouses, loft buildings, and local yards, and from it may be run spurs to the piers of the North River and such warehouses and factories as may be constructed along the east side of West Street.

While two of the six tracks of the main subway would be continued above Twenty-third Street to Thirtieth Street, the other four would connect with a freight tunnel to be constructed under the North River at about Twenty-third Street, and would run out to the freight classification yard in New Jersey. On this side of the river a modern classification freight yard is to be set up where carload shipments for Western points may be made up from the consignments of freight of less than carload lots, and where carloads from the West, consigned to many different firms, may be broken up and distributed.

The use of the main subway line would be to convey from the New Jersey classification yard the cars consigned to one particular firm. These would be run through the tunnel under the Hudson and brought right under the warehouse, in which the firm had retained space. There it would be taken by an elevator to the first floor. Its freight would be unloaded and a new load, if possible, placed in it. This outgoing load would have been brought by wagon to the warehouse from the factories of the city, and in its turn would have been hoisted to the loading floor by another elevator. The loaded car would then be lowered again to the main subway by the elevator, and would be coupled up to a train to be run out to the classification yard in New Jersey.

Details of the System.

In the case of lots of less than a carload size, when they reached the main classification yard in New Jersey in a large car containing several other small lots, they are to be brought by way of the North River tunnel to the small classification yard in Manhattan. There the big car is to be unloaded and each of the small lots placed in one of the special cars designed for the subsidiary carrier system, which is to run alongside the main subway. These smaller cars would carry only 10 tons instead of the 20 tons which would be the capacity of the cars of the main subway. They would then be run to the special warehouse for which they were destined and there hoisted by elevator to the floor above that devoted to the unloading of the big cars.

In the same way outgoing freight of less than a carload would be hoisted from the street level to this upper floor for packing in the smaller cars.

The plans sbmitted by Mr. Willoughby show such matters as the handling of freight and the switching of cars worked out with the most modern and labor-saving devices. It is also provided that from the subsidiary carrier system it will be possible, if necessary, to construct switches to the piers along the river or to any warehouses or factories which may be erected along West Street.

With the street level of the warehouses occupied by arches for the passage of the ordinary street traffic to and from the river piers; with the first floor above devoted to the handling of carload lots and the second floor to the broken lots, the third floor would be given up to free storage for the railroads of goods in transit or freight held over. It is to be noted that this freight in storage would be in its original carriers, so that the expense of handling it would be reduced to the minimum.

The floors still higher up are to be let out for warehouse purposes, and the two uppermost Mr. Willoughby suggests should be used as lofts for light manufacturing or other commercial purposes.

Another suggestion made is that the ground between the warehouses should be utilized for two-story market buildings. The first story of these would be on the street level, and would be set aside for the regular market purposes, while the floor above could be devoted to the keeping of goods under refrigeration. Connectins could be made between these markets and the subway, so that standard cars could be elevated to the refrigerating floors and subsidiary cars to the street level on which the public stalls would be.

With this system in operation it is estimated that 2,642 cars could be loaded or unloaded simultaneously.

The cost of this plan has been set down at about $85,000,000. Of this amount, the Manhattan Subway would cost $16,486,000 and the warehouses, local yards and their developments would take another $25,000,000. Consequently in Manhattan there would be expended $41,486,000 and the other $43,514,000 would be needed for the North River tunnel and the New Jersey classification yard, the details of which are not set forth in the proposal submitted to the Board of Estimate.

To carry out this scheme, Mr. Willoughby informs the Board of Estimate a company will be formed which will be financed by private capital. The terms on which it would undertake the financing, construction, maintenance, equipment, and operation of such a freight terminal are that the city should grant a franchise for the construction and operation of the terminal, with its subway and warehouses, for twenty-five years, with a renewal at the option of the company for another twenty-five years.

This franchise, however, is to be subject to the right of the city to recapture the subway at any time after ten years from the completion of the terminal facilities on specified terms. The investment of the company in the terminal is to be amortized in fifty years, the amount to be paid off annually, being calculated on the basis of 4 per cent. interest on the instalments set aside, and the postponement of the first payment to the sinking fund till five years after the completion of the terminal.

On recapture the city is to pay to the company the unamortized portion of its investment, plus an additional percentage for contractor's profit. This in the tenth year of operation, that is, the first year in which recapture is possible, it should be 15 per cent., but it would diminish each year till at the fiftieth year it would have vanished altogether. In the same way the city should have the right to recapture the warehouses after twenty-five years, the same conditions with regard to amortization, and the calculation of contractor's profit being applied to the warehouses as to the subway recapture.

However, it is provided that in case the terminal system does not earn its amortization charges, in the event of recapture, the city shall deduct from the cost of the system only that amount that has been actually earned for amortization purposes.

Payment for the Franchise.

It is also agreed by Mr. Willoughby that all railroads shall have access to and use of the terminal facilities on equal terms, and that the jurisdiction over rates of such bodies as the Public Service Commission and the Inter-State Commerce Commission shall be recognized.

The compensation to be paid to the city for the franchise is thus set forth:

After deducting from the gross earnings of the subway and warehouses the operating expenses thereof, the amount of amortization upon its actual cash investment in the Manhattan subway and warehouses, provided for above, the actual interest paid upon the actual cash investment in the Manhattan terminal facilities, which rate of interest shall not exceed 6 per cent., the resultant net profits are to be divided between the company and the city in the following proportions:

The city shall receive thereof 25 per cent and the company 75 per cent.

In case the deductions shall in any year exceed the gross earnings of subway and warehouses, such deficit or deficits is or are to be cumulative and reimbursed from the surplus earnings of future years in advance of the division of profits.

The title to the subway, warehouses, and all the terminal facilities to be created by the company shall be and remain in the City of New York, except the equipment thereof, which shall be and remain in the company.

Accompanying the proposals of Mr. Willoughby was a letter addressed to John Purroy Mitchel, as Chairman of the Terminal Committee of the Board of Estimate, in which the backing of the banking firms of Ladenberg, Thalmann & Co. and Kissel, Kinnicutt & Co. is presented on these conditions:

"If the plan as outlined should be found practicable from an engineering and operating point of view, or if objections should be raised by engineers, which can be met and obviated by the adoption of a modified plan, either to be satisfactory to us and our associates, and if the financial plan is satsifactory to us and our associates, we would be willing to undertake with our associates the formation of a syndicate to provide the money necessary to construct such terminal facilities on the basis of the plans submitted by Mr. Willoughby with his proposal, or on the basis of such modifications to said plans as may be agreed upon from time to time.

"The above undertaking is subject to the proviso that the contract between the City of New York and the proposed operating company shall have the approval of our counsel, and that all financial questions, which have arsen or which may arise between the City of New York and the proposed operating company, shall be adjusted in a manner satisfactory to us."

ASK WHITMAN'S AID TO CURB ICE PRICES

Mayor Also Will Be Called Upon to Investigate Dock Conditions.

DEALERS TELL OF COMBINE

Will Present Copies of Purported Agreements to Control Scale of Summer Prices.

Because of the increase in the price of ice to the store trade, announced on April 1, an appeal will be made to District Attorney Whitman to-day to investigate a series of meetings said to have been held by ice dealers in the past month.

An appeal also will be made to Mayor Gaynor to inquire why the Dock Commissioner has been unable to find dock accommodations for wholesale ice dealers willing to undersell the organized dealers.

A part of the evidence to be presented to District Attorney Whitman will be a purported copy of the minutes of ice dealers' meetings in which a regular series of price increases were agreed upon, a rise to be announced every fifteen days or thirty days until a price of $8 a ton had been reached for "store trade" ice and 80 cents per 100 pounds for family trade.

There was much complaint against ice dealers supplying the family trade yesterday. In many parts of the city customers protested that the ice delivered was being cut far short of its declared weight and that the "five-cent piece" for east side flat dwellers had practically disappeared.

One resident of Washington Heights complained that he purchased on Monday what was said to be a fifty-pound piece of ice only to find that it weighed thirty-five pounds. He protested to the dealer, and as a result no ice at all was delivered to him Tuesday or yesterday.

Say Dock Control Is the Key.

The movement to demand an investigation by the District Attorney is in charge of Joseph A. Sheridan, an independent dealer who was forced out of business last Summer, and it is participated in by ice dealers who say that the control of the docks by the larger companies is shutting them out of the market. Some of the ice dealers in the movement, it was said yesterday, were willing to tell of price-fixing meetings that had been held at the Grand Union Hotel in March.

"Not only are we going to the District Attorney and the Mayor," said Mr. Sheridan, yesterday, "but we hope to be able to rent Cooper Union and hold a mass meeting to let all the people know what is planned for them in the way of Summer ice prices.

"They talk of waste in apartment houses. How can ice waste be retarded in the ordinary ice-box, or its melting accelerated except by leaving the door open—which no one does?

"Now, the people have got to face the facts in the case. They let one company buy up all the Maine fields and gain control of the docks and the market here. They have let it get a strangle hold. It has been waiting for an excuse. It has tried to establish an excuse every year, and this year at last it has got ideal conditions.

"Before this Summer is over it may be necessary for the people to meet this situation by having the Government seize the Hudson River ice houses and go into the importing business by barge from the New England States. They have let the little fellows, who were willing to fight, be strangled season after season, until the life has gone out of them.

"I was a 'little fellow,' and I know, and all I want now is to get the facts out from under cover. Just now the people can move if they get the Mayor to go after the Dock Commissioner.

"I am informed that part of the plan to jockey up the price so that it will be 'right' before the hot weather comes is for certain docks to remain idle through April, May, and June. I could give you the list of the docks selected for this purpose, and I will do so if the Mayor will ask for the list.

"The holders of these docks are all paying license fees. They are perfectly willing, with the big prizes to be reaped, to hold their docks and not use them. So the price charged by the city is no obstacle.

"Last year I personally had a chance to make $50,000 profit by selling ice in New York at 50 cents a ton under the organization's price. That is, I wanted to sell at $1.50 a ton. The ice I had was harvested up the Hudson and had been shut out of the New York market. I wrote to Mayor Gaynor telling him what I could do if he would only provide dock accommodations. Mayor Gaynor wrote back that he would refer the matter to Commissioner Tomkins. The next I knew I got an order late one night to appear at a public hearing next morning on the dock question.

No Time to Get Publicity.

"There was no time for me to sound an alarm, to call in the reporters, and explain how I was going to meet $2 ice with $1.50 ice and yet clear $50,000 on the ice on which I then held an option. Commissioner Tomkins said he had lots of demands for dock space, and I saw my plea was useless at that tribunal.

"But Tomkins made one significant statement. A report of it was carried to some of the papers at the time. It was that if any dealer presumed to raise the price over $2 per ton he (Tomkins) would revoke his license and drive him off the docks. That was hopeful. He also said that as fast as every license expired it would be renewed only with a license carrying a revocation clause.

"Now, there you are. There must be clauses in the licenses of the men now holding the unused docks permitting them to be recalled. The Dock Commissioner said contractors handling building material were desperately in need of docking space. Well, let him give these people the alternative of making use at once of their docks or giving up their licenses to people who are anxious and ready to use them.

"Is it right that the city's docking space shall be held idle to let a terrific profit be reaped in the hot months for $8 ice? That is what is going on.

"I know the people who would cut ice if there was a market here. They have been saying to me for several years, 'What's the use?' That has been their attitude. You saw the other side of the problem on the surface on March 15, when raise No. 1 went into effect and $2 ice became $3 ice. You saw raise No. 2 in the accelerated schedule go into effect on April 1, when $3 ice became $6 ice. Watch for April 15, and you will see raise No. 3, which will give us $7 ice. After that they will rest and wait for the pinch of warm weather to give us $8 ice and $9 ice, provided the public protest isn't overwhelming.

"The rise in the past two weeks has been 100 per cent. We intend to show the public officials that it has been a little too raw as well as a little too rapid."

MISS CHAMBERS HURT.

Thrown from Her Horse at Bronxville—Injuries Serious.

MOUNT VERNON, N. Y., April 2.—Miss Marguerite Chambers, 24 years old, of Bronxville, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank R. Chambers, was injured seriously this morning by being thrown from her favorite horse, Governor. She is now in the Lawrence Hospital at Bronxville, and it is feared that her skull is fractured. She also suffered other injuries.

Miss Chambers, who is an expert horsewoman, left her home, Crow's Nest, at Bronxville, at 10 o'clock for a ride on Governor. The animal was in high spirits, but Miss Chambers managed him easily for a time. When she started for home the horse took the bit and dashed down Pondfield Road and across Midland Avenue. Within fifty feet of the entrance to the Chambers place Governor stumbled, and Miss Chambers was thrown from her saddle. Her foot caught in the stirrup and the horse dragged her about twenty feet with her head striking the ground. Then her foot was released and she fell unconscious to the roadway. The horse dashed riderless up the steep incline to the Chambers home.

Henry Grime, a driver for a Fourth Avenue market, arrived quickly, and with the assistance of John Maher, an employe at Crow's Nest, who had seen the horse dash up the hill, carried Miss Chambers to her residence, where Dr. Austin of Tuckahoe, Dr. N. B. Saunders, and Dr. Robert T. Howe of Mount Vernon were called and after an hour's work revived Miss Chambers. Later she was removed to Lawrence Hospital.

Mr. Chambers, who is the senior member of Rogers Peet Company, hastened to the hospital with specialists from New York City. Miss Chambers is a graduate of Vassar College, and only last week returned from an extended trip through the Southwest with her parents.

GOUCHER COLLEGE NEEDY.

Bishop Lewis of China Appeals—Flood Diverted Subscriptions.

When the three-day annual Conference of the Eastern New York District of the Methodist Episcopal Church began in the Metropolitan Temple yesterday, Bishop Wilson S. Lewis of Foo-Chow, China, called for immediate assistance in raising the remaining $145,000 of the $1,000,000 needed for the continuance of Goucher College in Baltimore, and without which the institution would have to close.

Mrs. Woodrow Wilson has been interested in this campaign for funds, which was checked by the recent flood in the Middle West. Large subscriptions that had been promised from Ohio, Illinois, and Indiana have since been diverted to the more pressing needs at home. In response to Bishop Lewis's appeal, the Conference immediately agreed to raise as much of the needed balance as possible before Friday night.

The session of the Conference held yesterday was largely given over to memorial services and the reading of reports.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 2.—Miss Margaret Woodrow Wilson, eldest daughter of the President, by her presence at a musical recital at the Lyric to-night, again aided the movement to raise a fund for the retention of Goucher College, of which she is a graduate, in Baltimore. Miss Wilson occupied a box with a party of guests of Miss Nellie Snowden Watts. Previous to the musical event Miss Wilson was the guest of honor at a dinner given by Miss Elizabeth Adele Brown. This was the third visit Miss Wilson has paid to Baltimore to take part in the work of raising the fund for her alma mater.

HELD UP THE MAURETANIA.

Late Comers from Flood Districts Insisted on Sailing—Paid on the Ship.

Charles Fecke, chief clerk of the Cunard Line passenger department, said yesterday that between midnight and 1 A. M. yesterday, when the Mauretania sailed, more than $3,000 in passage money was paid on board by persons who arrived late by train and wanted to get to Europe as soon as possible. The sum of $2,300 was paid for accommodations by twelve passengers in the first cabin, another $500 for berths of the second class, and $300 for third-class accommodation.

Late arrivals of baggage from the flooded districts and railroad floats blocking the fairway in the river caused the Mauretania to be forty-five minutes late in getting under way. Capt. W. T. Turner said that he expected, with moderate weather, to be in Fishguard about 3 P. M. on Monday.
